Newton.

—Rev. Dr. C. H. Patton of Franklin street has returned from Seattle, Washington, where he attended the meeting of the American Board.

—Mr. J. Edward Hills and family of Shorecliff road have moved to the Lord house on Lombard street. Mr. Alfred B. Young and family, who have been occupying the house have moved to New York.

—At the wedding of Mr. John Gorman Palfrey of Boston and Miss Methyl Oakes of Auburn, Me., which took place in that city Tuesday afternoon Miss Helen Howes, a classmate of the bride at Smith College, was one of the bridesmaids and Mr. Howland Twombly a law partner of the groom and his classmate at Harvard was one of the ushers.

Niles - Pearson

Following the good old fashioned custom of going to the parson, Miss Esther D. Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Pearson of Grove street Auburndale, was married to Mr. Frank A. Niles of Derby, Vt., last Sunday afternoon.

The young couple had been engaged for some time and the wedding was expected to take place later in the month. But Sunday afternoon, with the ostensible purpose of taking a drive the young couple stopped at the residence of Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, pastor of the Channing church, and became man and wife. The news was not broken to Mr. and Mrs. Pearson until the next morning, when Mr. and Mrs. Niles departed on a wedding trip to Vermont and Montreal.

The bride is a charming young lady, popular in the younger set of the city, and has been employed for a short time in the office of the City Clerk. The groom is a distant relative of ex-mayor Pickard and holds a responsible position in the E. L. Pickard Lumber Co at Princeton, Me., where they will make their future home.

Roe - Highby

Miss Eva Dianna Highby of Brookline and Rev. Robert Exwell Roe, assistant rector of St. Luke's church of Scranton, Pa., were married at 7.30 o'clock Tuesday morning by Rev. Richard T. Loring at St. John's Episcopal Church, Newtonville.

William W. Howe

Mr. William Wirt Howe a well known resident of Newton died quite suddenly at his home on Durant street last Wednesday evening about eight o'clock. Mr. Howe had been taking a nap upstairs and was called to dinner at six o'clock. It is not certain whether he was taken suddenly ill at the top of the stairs or whether, while dazed with sleep, he made a mis-step. The first the family knew of the matter he had fallen the full length of the stairs and was unconscious when picked up, death taking place two hours later.

Mr. Howe was born in Brookfield, Mass., seventy years ago. In 1862 he enlisted in Co. H, 44th Mass. Regiment and served nine months with the rank of Sergeant. At the close of the war he took a large cotton plantation at Como, Miss., and was in active business there until 1885 when he retired and made his residence in Newton. He married Miss Elizabeth Hobbs, daughter of the late Prentice Hobbs, and is survived by her and four children, Frank, William and Herbert and Alice the wife of Mr. Edward F. Chidell.

He was a member of the Loyal Legion and of the Hummel club.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence on Durant street tomorrow morning at 9.45 and the interment will be at Brookfield.

RENOMINATED

HON. Wm. F. DANA
FOR SENATOR

Harmonious Convention at Newtonville.

Senator William F. Dana of Newton, President of the Massachusetts State senate was unanimously re-nominated for another term yesterday afternoon by the republicans of the First Middlesex district. The convention was held at the Newton Clubhouse, and Mr. Charles E. Hatfield of West Newton was the chairman and Alderman Albert P. Carter of Newtonville was secretary.

Senator Dana was placed in nomination in a neat speech by Mr. W. R. Bigelow of Natick and the action was taken by acclamation. Mr. William M. Flanders of Newton Centre was re-elected a member of the state committee, also by acclamation, the nominating speech being made by Mr. A. J. Heath of Framingham.

Senator Dana was escorted to the hall and accepted the nomination saying in part:

I thank you again for the very great honor you have conferred upon me. I trust that if I am re-elected President of the Senate you will not put upon me the burden which you did last year, and that, this year you will return a republican Governor to the State House. I was anxious all of the last session that politics would enter our legislation, but I think I can claim that we left an honorable record, one of which the party and the commonwealth can well be proud. In closing Senator Dana pledged his best efforts to the duties of the office.

James W. Woodward

Mr. James W. Woodward of Auburn street, Auburndale, who was thrown from his team last Friday morning died at the Newton hospital on Monday the result of his injuries. He was a native of England where he was born 62 years ago and he had been in the employ of S. O. Thayer & Co for the past 22 years. He is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters. Funeral services were held from the house Thursday afternoon Rev. Dr. Henry J. Patrick, a former pastor of the deceased, officiating and there were many floral tributes. The interment was in Newton Cemetery.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Pelham Street Residents Object to Electric Poles

Board Again Goes on Record in Favor of Five Cent Fares in Newton

The regular meeting of the board of aldermen was held Monday evening President Saltonstall calling to order at 7:45 p. m.

Present: Aldermen Baker, Bishop, Bosson, Bowen, Cabot, Carter, Doherty, Ellis, Hunt, Palmer, Riley, Stone, Underwood, Webster, Weston and White.

The notice of hearing before the board of Railroad Commissioners on Sept. 20th on petition of Newton & Boston Street Railway Company for extension of the time within which it may continue the withdrawal of transfers on its line, was placed on file.

City Solicitor Slocum, in response to questions of Alderman Bishop stated that at the hearing, the Chairman of the commission had said that the action of that board would probably be based entirely upon the financial condition of this company. The commission had delayed rendering any opinion in the matter until this meeting of the aldermen and would consider any action which might be taken by this board.

A communication from the Board of Health recommending sewer construction in Floral st., Boylston st., Walnut st., and Centre st., Ward 5 was referred to the Committee on Public Works.

HEARINGS.

A hearing was then announced upon petition of the N. & W. Gas Light Co. for location for 4 poles on Pelham street.

Mr. James G. Langdon appeared in remonstrance, and had the clerk read a protest signed by himself and other abutments on this street. Mr. Langdon said that this was a move for the protection of property, and this was the third attempt to place wires on this street. The object is to reach Dr. Fessenden's house with electricity for use in operating his X-ray apparatus. The wires can be brought through from Beacon street, by the telephone company's building and without encumbering the street. Dr. Fessenden has used water power for his apparatus heretofore and only wishes electricity as it is cheaper. We will do all we can to help him get the power without having poles on the street.

Mr. Samuel A. Walker said he had been a resident of the street 57 years. Five years ago, while absent from the city the telephone company had placed a large pole in front of his house. He cited Beacon street as an illustration of what would occur if wires were placed on a thickly wooded street.

Dr. Hiram F. Russell said that he had lived there 45 years and objected strongly to poles on the street. The abutments some years ago gave a foot strip of their land to widen the sidewalk. The trees will be badly damaged if wires are run through them.

Dr. C. H. Fessenden said he had built a modern house on Pelham street some 8 years ago, wiring it for electricity, which he had never been able to obtain. Four years ago he began X-ray work with a small machine, using water for power. Two years ago he purchased a better machine and attempted to obtain electricity for power. Objection was made to poles and it was thought permission could be obtained from Mr. Farnham to cross his land in the rear. It had not been convenient to see Mr. Farnham and he had let the matter drop. He had now purchased a modern machine and must have electric power. It had become almost wholly his entire business and he would have to move away from the street if he could not get it. He had written Mr. Farnham about permission to cross his land and had been refused.

Supt. W. E. Holmes said they were willing to cross private property in this instance if permission could be obtained. The underground work outlined by his company was known to the board and it was out of the question to take up this small piece in that way. The cost of underground was about $2.25 per foot and the distance was approximately 500 feet.

Mr. Langdon said that Dr. Fessenden had stated things different than they are, and the hearing was closed.

At the hearings upon taking land for sewers in Lee ave. in Ashmont ave., in private land between Lincoln st. and Meredith ave.; and upon laying out, etc., of Oakwood road, Woodside road, and of Foster st., no one appeared and the hearings were declared closed.

Alderman Bishop was designated to draw four jurors for the Supreme Judicial Court at Cambridge, Oct. 17 and Charles W. Hall, Waverley ave., Patrick Garity, Dalby st., Chas. A. Hubbard, Beacon st., and Geo. Smith, Bowen street were chosen.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Public Franchises, etc.—Katherine Flaherty for license for intelligence office; and Joseph

P. Burke for license for 2 wagons.

To the Committee on Claims:—Saladino Di Stefano for compensation for injuries received while working for city.

To Committee on Public Works:—John A. Potter for sewer off Waltham st.

Petitions of F. L. Rogers & Co. for license for 1 combination table and 2 pool tables, and application of John Shorten, through the Public Buildings Commissioner, for permission to erect a wooden frame building for business purposes, Dalby and California streets were each granted without reference.

The acceptance of the N. & W. Gas Light Co. of conduit locations in Walnut and Homer sts was placed on file.

Hearings were ordered for Oct. 16 at 7:45 p. m. on petitions of the N. & W. Gas Light Co. for pole locations on Lowell ave. (8), Riverside road (1), Fuller st., (9) and for attachments on Washington st.; of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. for attachments on Washington st. and on Pleasant st.

These petitions for newsboy licenses were referred to the Committee on Public Franchises, etc. and subsequently, on favorable report from the committee, were granted:—Chas. L. Maloney, Matthew Maloney, James I. Maloney, Edmund A. Hall, Geo. W. Bakeman, Wm. H. Hurd, James H. Brundrett, Thomas Curry, Wm. H. Cady, Raymond Kingsbury, Fred Hawkins, John Considine, Mark Lucas, Alfred Young, Edw. J. Loughlin, Wm. J. Green, John J. Cronin, Michael L. Cronin, Augustin S. Hargodon, Joseph L. Kelly, Joseph T. Greene, Albert E. Rust, Leonard J. Hickman, Wm. A. Hesse, D. Jos. O'Brien, Jas. Sullivan, John T. Boland, Edw. F. Leary, Jas. P. Ahern, John Loughlin, Fred Green, Arthur T. Ahern, Wm. Ahern, Henry King, Herbert L. Woodman and Wm. J. Cousens.

Report of the Committee on Public Works recommending taking land for sewer in Waban Hill road and Waban Hill terrace was accepted.

RECESS.

from 8:28 to 9:03 o'clock for meeting of Committees on Public Franchises, etc., and Rules, etc.

On reassembling, reports were received, as follows:

From Committee on Rules, etc., submitting amendment to regulation governing speed of automobiles on Commonwealth ave., requiring reduction of speed when approaching cross roads, and around curves. The regulation was adopted. Submitting amendment to regulation governing minor's license, authorizing City Clerk to require deposit of fifty cents, to cover cost of badge. The amendment was adopted.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The order granting the Boston & Worcester St. Rwy. Co. a cross over on Boylston street near Walnut street was taken from the table.

Alderman Webster. There is a cross-over now located within 400 feet of this place and I can see no necessity for another.

The order was then unanimously adopted.

ORDERS ADOPTED.

Calling meetings of voters for State election, Nov. 7: taking land for sewer in Lee avenue; taking land for sewer between Lincoln street and Meredith avenue; for sewer construction in Lee ave. for sewer construction in private land between Lincoln st. and Meredith avenue; laying out, etc., of Oakwood road; laying out, etc., of Woodside road; laying out, etc., of Foster st.; authorizing renumbering of Gibbs st.; and assigning hearing Oct. 16 on discontinuing certain lands taken for Commonwealth avenue.

TRANSFERS.

City Solicitor Slocum at the request of Alderman Webster repeated his statement regarding the hearing before the Railroad Commission upon matter of extending time during which the N. & B. St. Rwy. Co. could withhold transfers on its line.

Alderman Webster. I believe the Railroad commissioners will be affected by the action taken by this board. It is a question whether the city of Newton should pay 2 fares for a ride within its own limits. President Chaffin claims they cannot give transfers as they cannot discriminate between passengers travelling within the city and those going to Waltham and Watertown. I believe they can make some satisfactory arrangement, and offer this resolution:

RESOLVED, that in the opinion of the board of aldermen, the rate of fare upon the street railways in the city of Newton within the city limits, should be five cents, so that the people may go from any point in the city to any other point where street railway locations have been granted for a single fare of five cents for each person.

Alderman White. I was present at the hearing and feel that it makes no difference whether we take action on the matter or not. The Chairman said it was simply a question of whether the company was paying financially or was running at a loss. If the road is not paying, why does the company take on a half mile more of track at Needham. They have also changed the running time and added another car, which according to their own figures should increase their expenses about $3,000 a year, and thereby add to their deficit.

Alderman Bishop. It is often necessary in a losing proposition to put out money in order to make it successful. The Commissioners have evidently extended this hearing as a matter of courtesy and not as a matter of right. I agree heartily with the resolution as presented and feel that there can be a vast improvement in the present transfer system.

Alderman Ellis. The Railroad Commissioners have had this matter before them last year and this. They have given it careful study and will settle it solely as a matter of finance. I agree in principle with the resolution just presented but cannot at this time and under these circumstances bring myself to vote for it.

Alderman Weston agreed entirely with Alderman Ellis.

Alderman Webster. The Railroad commissioners have extended the time in order to give us an opportunity to express ourselves. We are simply saying what is perfectly proper. It cannot injure us in any way and may cause some improvement.

The resolution was then adopted, 12 voting in the affirmative, and 5 in the negative. Aldermen Baker, Bishop, Bosson, Cabot, Doherty, Hunt, Riley, Stone, Underwood, Webster, and White voting aye, Aldermen Carter, Ellis, Palmer, Weston and Pres. Saltonstall voting nay.

And at 9:35 P. M. the board adjourned.

About Town

An automobile trip around the world for the Mothers' Rest. What a paradox.

Why do people persist in telling how many years they have lived on a certain street and how much land they have given to improve their own places, when objecting to the location of poles in front of their houses. They might just as well talk about the man in the moon, so far as practical results are concerned.

Persons who know what they are talking about, say that the West Newton Unitarians are getting some excellent results in the stone work on their new church.

The daily medical inspection of schools delusion seems to have received a solar plexus blow in the report of the special committee of the school board.

The condition of Newton Highlands square reminds one of that famous advertising line "See that hump?"

With the president and vice president of the board of aldermen in the new legal firm of Saltonstall, Dodge and Carter it is too bad that Mr. Dodge doesn't live in Newton in order that he might make it unanimous.

A splendid collection of beautiful butterflies, nicely mounted, has been presented to the Newton High School by Miss Sally Sprague of West Newton.

An enjoyable as well as instructive half hour can be spent at the Newton Free Library this week examining one of the collections of photographs of China which were loaned by the Library Art Club. This club is doing a fine work along educational lines their numerous collections of photographs, which cover practically the entire world, giving those who are unable to travel an excellent idea of foreign art, architecture and the manners and customs of other countries.

Suffolk West Conference

The 64th semi annual meeting of the Suffolk West Conference will be held next Wednesday at the North Evangelical church, Bridge street.

The afternoon service begins at 2:30 the subject being: The Witness of the Church to Spiritual Law. The devotional service will be led by Rev. E. M. Noyes of Newton Centre. Rev. Allen A. Stockdale of Boston speaks on "The Fulfillment of the Times and Seasons." Rev. J. T. Stocking of Newtonville on "The Call to Reverence." Rev. Harris G. Hale of Brookline on "The Stand for moral Leadership;" and Rev. P. T. Farwell of Wellesley Hills on "The Call of the Master to Young Men."

There will be an adjournment at 5:40 for lunch and a social hour, the conference resuming business at 7 p. m.

In the evening, Rev. Dr. Patrick leads the devotional service, followed by an address on Home Missions by Rev. Dr.

The city of Newton is well represented among the republican state convention officials, today at Tremont Temple, Boston, as Hon. John W. Weeks of West Newton is the permanent chairman. Mr. William M. Flanders of Newton Centre is secretary, Rev. Dr. Huntington, also of Newton Centre is the chaplain, and Alderman Frank A. Day of Newton is a vice president. Thus from the Alpha of the invocation to the Omega of the attestation of the nominations made by the convention, residents of our city will be prominent figures.

The choice of Congressman Weeks as permanent chairman is a signal honor to a representative of what might be called, a new generation just entering the political arena. Six years ago, Mr. Weeks was unknown politically. Today he looks back upon a flattering record of service as alderman and mayor of Newton and forward to a most promising future in national and state affairs. This position has been attained by the application to public questions and political matters, of that rare judgment and sound common sense which has also brought him success in the business world.

We take pleasure in presenting to our readers in this issue, the speech which Captain Weeks delivered this morning to the convention. While necessarily a partisan address, it is sound in its logic, conservative in statement and will commend itself to the fairminded judgment of the voters of the state.

The convention and the state committee made no mistake in choosing the Congressman from the 12th district as its presiding officer.

The nomination of General Curtis Guild Jr. for governor by the republican state convention today, and the almost certainty of his election next month, will bring to pass what has been the accepted will of the people of this state for many months.

In General Guild, the party has a candidate who appeals alike to that sentiment, which surrounds a popular figure, and the common sense which approves the successful results obtained by honorable business methods.

General Guild as a business man, soldier and political leader has the hearty good wishes of the entire Commonwealth.

The position of the five aldermen who opposed the resolution calling for a five cent fare within the city limit is liable to be misunderstood by the unthinking public. There is no doubt at all that these aldermen thoroughly believe in a five cent fare as stated in the resolution, but they were voicing a natural protest against taking any action which, was admittedly of little avail, and an interference with the duties of another tribunal.

When our citizens will fully understand that the street railway situation in this city is simply a matter of finance and that the street railways of the entire Commonwealth with the possible exception of the Boston Elevated, are all laboring under the same burdens and disadvantages, they may realize that the Newton companies are up against a hard proposition, and are entitled to a trifle better treatment than has been given them in the past.

The passage of that five cent fare resolution by the board of aldermen was as useless a piece of legislation as we have seen for many a day. The next resolution will probably endorse the Ten Commandments.

Daily medical inspection of schools is a misnomer. The committee of the school board which has been considering the matter reached the only sensible conclusion possible in its recent report.

At the Churches.

The Channing Unit. Church will resume its meetings at Channing church next Sunday at 12.

The first social of the season was held at the Newton Centre Methodist church Wednesday evening. A supper was served and later an entertainment was given consisting of readings by

"The Delight of Mankind."

Titus, the Roman emperor, was entitled "the delight of mankind." Titus' beneficence was unbounded, and it so happened that during his brief reign there was the most urgent need of its exercise. In the first year occurred the great eruption of Vesuvius, overwhelming Herculaneum and Pompeii and ruining numerous other towns and villages. The next year a fire broke out in Rome, which raged three days, causing great destruction, and in the tracks of these calamities followed a dreadful pestilence. Titus dealt out gifts with lavish hand to the houseless and ruined sufferers. He even despoiled the palaces of their valuable ornaments to obtain money for distribution and schemed and planned to furnish occupation for them. He was now the idol of his subjects, the "love and delight of the human race," but, unfortunately for that part of the human race over which he ruled, in the commencement of the third year of his reign he became suddenly ill and died at his patrimonial villa in the Sabine country.

Noted Dead in Trinity Churchyard.

Alexander Hamilton is buried in Trinity churchyard, at the head of Wall street, New York, and the grave is marked by a conspicuous white marble monument near the Rector street station of the elevated road. His wife, who lived until 1854, fifty years after his death in the duel with Burr, is buried beside him. Albert Gallatin, who succeeded Hamilton as secretary of the treasury, lies only a few feet away, and near by is also the grave of Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat. Another famous occupant of Trinity churchyard, whose monument is near the Broadway gate, is Captain James Lawrence of the United States navy, commander of the frigate Chesapeake, who fell in battle with the British ship Shannon June 1, 1813. In the thirty-second year of his age. As he fell upon the deck he cried to his subordinates, "Don't give up the ship."

A Losing Dream.

"I made a nice idiot of myself the other morning," said the commuter, who is paying trolley in a savings bank. "My wife was afraid I'd miss my train, and she got me by the shoulder and shook me, telling me that it was time to get up. I got about half awake, and, somehow, I thought I was at my window in the bank with a long line of women awaiting their turn. The one at the window was handing me a check, and, from force of habit, I said: 'How much money do you want?' 'You know, most women who present checks want to draw some and deposit the rest. Well, what do you think the wife did? Quick as a flash came her answer to my 'dopy' question: 'Five dollars will do.' 'She got it, but I hope I won't dream any more.'—New York Post.

An Eccentric Painter.

William Willard, well known as the painter of Massachusetts' governors, was very eccentric in his ways. His special aversion was the attempted purchase of his many old relics of furniture by people of wealth. A New York woman visiting in the vicinity of Sturbridge, hearing that the old artist possessed a beautiful colonial mirror and a rare clock, tried to buy them. Mr. Willard seemed to readily agree to the sale, but when asked when it would be convenient to have them packed, replied, "Not until after the funeral." "Whose funeral?" asked the visitor. "Mine," replied Mr. Willard, with a chuckle.

An Early Railroad.

An old inventory of the Mohawk and Hudson railroad, now a part of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, dated Jan. 1, 1833, gives the following as the total rolling stock of the road at that time: Three locomotives (the John Bull, the De Witt Clinton and the Experiment), three passenger cars, accommodating twelve passengers each; nine, accommodating nine each; two, accommodating six each, and three, accommodating eighteen each, a total capacity of 183.—Four Track News.

The Change of a Letter.

"Business men should be careful," writes a correspondent of a London newspaper, "to read their typewritten correspondence before committing it to the post. I have received a typewritten letter from a gentleman of German extraction who informs me that he is a 'wholesale tobacconist and cigar importer.'"

Diplomacy.

"What did papa say?"
"He showed me the door."
"And what did you say?"
"I said it was certainly a very handsome door, but not what I had come to talk about. That made him laugh, and a minute later you were mine."

London's Intensity.

London is the most intense of all cities. New York is noisier; there is more rattle in Paris; in London alone you have that subdued roar, that indescribable murmur which suggests an irresistible volume of life that is deep as well as strong.—Christian.

Under the Chandelier.

Next time you go to a party watch some of the women as they stand under the chandeliers. Notice how a light shining from above brings out unsuspected lines and angles in all but the youngest and freshest faces. It is a severe test of beauty.

Down and Up.

The entertainment schedule will be finally settled at a meeting to be held next Tuesday night by the committee.

The first game in the winter sports tournament was held Monday evening, with 6 pairs playing, first prizes were won by Fred Johnson and E. F. Lovejoy.

High School Notes.

The football team opened the season last Tuesday with a victory from the Wellesley high school team at Newton Centre by a score of 5 to 0.

The fall tennis tournament which has been played at the Neighborhood Club's ground is down to the finals. Bothford and Willard Howard play tomorrow morning for the championship.

A HAZING TRAGEDY.

Origin of the slang phrase "Who Struck Billy Patterson?"

"It's many years now since the slang expression, 'Who struck Billy Patterson?' was heard all over New York and Brooklyn," said a veteran of the metropolis. "Few people remember the origin of the expression, which was really the killing of a young man by sheer fright. Hazing at colleges was as rough then as now, and a common plan was to capture a new student, try him for some imaginary offense, condemn him to execution, and then hold his head on a block while a blow was struck on the ground with the dull side of a hatchet. A student named William Patterson was caught and tried in this way and was led weeping and shouting to the block. He was then blindfolded and held down, told that his last day had come, and then the bogus blow was struck with the hatchet. His cries ceased instantly, and when the students in alarm tore off his eye bandages and felt his pulse they discovered that he was dead. Several investigations were held to ascertain who struck the fatal blow, and it was because it was finally ascertained that no one ever struck Billy Patterson at all that the aggravating question referred to was shouted at every stranger by street boys, bootblacks and other juvenile nuisances."

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by William B. Blakenore of Newton, Massachusetts to George F. Robinson Jr., Administrator of the Estate of Samuel Q. Robinson, dated June 21, 1900 and recorded with Middlesex. So. Dist. Deeds, book 269, page 418, for breach of the condition of said mortgage, will be sold at public auction on the premises, on Monday, October 14, 1935, at four o'clock in the afternoon, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, and therein described substantially as follows, viz.:— A certain parcel of land and buildings thereon, situated on Hunter Street, in that part of said Newton called West Newton, bounded as follows, to wit:— Commencing at a point on Hunter Street at the southwesterly corner adjoining land now or formerly of Carpenter, and running easterly on the line of said Hunter Street, one hundred and twenty (120) feet to land now or formerly of Cate, thence turning at right angles and running by said land now or formerly of Cate, eighty-three (83) feet, to land formerly owned by John S. Tuttle, then turning at right angles and running westerly on a straight line to point where the old lam stood, which is the southerly corner of the said John S. Tuttle's land, and then turning northerly by the said John S. Tuttle's land about forty (40) feet more or less to land now or formerly of the Norfolk Investment Company; thence turning at right angles and running westerly by said land now or formerly of said Norfolk Investment Company to land now or formerly of Carpenter; thence turning and running southerly on a line of said Carpenter's land to said Hunter Street, the point of beginning. Containing about fifteen thousand (15,000) square feet of land. Said premises are subject to a prior mortgage for three thousand ($3,000) dollars. The premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes or assessments which are a lien thereon. Two hundred dollars of the purchase money to be paid at time and place of sale. Other terms at said time and place. ADA T. HAYDEN, Present holder of said Mortgage. September 8, 1935.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Frank A. Hoyer to Freelan O. Stanley dated October 28th, 1900, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, in Book 2884, Page 362, for breach of the condition therein contained and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction upon the premises on Monday, the thirtieth day of October, 1935, at four o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:— A certain parcel of land with the buildings and improvements therein in Newton, in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being the Northerly part of Lot One (1) on a plan of lots in Newton belonging to Francis Murdoch, drawn by E. S. Smith, Surveyor, dated Dec. 5, 1885, and recorded with Middlesex So. Dist. Deeds and bounded and described as follows:— Beginning at a stone bound on the Westerly line of Fairview Street Ward 7, in said Newton, at land of Bacon, and running Northerly by said land of Bacon Eighty-one (81) feet to a stone bound at land of Sunderlecker; thence turning and running Southwesterly by said land of Sunderlecker and land of Weston, Sixty-two (62) feet to land of Trowbridge; thence turning and running Southeasterly by said land of Trowbridge Eighty-one (81) feet to Fairview Street; thence turning and running Northeasterly by said Westerly line of Fairview Street Sixty-two (62) feet to the point of beginning, and containing 3222 square feet more or less, and being the same premises conveyed to said Frank A. MOSELEY, Executor under the Will of Frederick V. Glover, Mortgagee. West Newton, October 5, 1935.

School Board.

The regular meeting of the School Committee was held on Wednesday, Sept. 27, at 7:55 p. m. Mr. Gorham in the chair.

Present:—R. S. Gorham, W. A. Knowlton, Marcus Morton, Abbot Bassett, S. E. Howard, H. E. Wells, Cora S. Cobb, A. A. Tilney, J. L. Caverly, W. E. Parker, E. P. Saltonstall.

Sept. 20, 1905.

To the School Committee:—The schools opened on the 11th instant under very favorable conditions. With two or three exceptions all teachers were in their places. Work was begun promptly and is progressing without friction or annoyance at any point. Although an unprecedentedly large number of new teachers—forty, in all—have been brought into our corps, reports of good beginning and excellent promise are almost universal; and these reports are justified from my own observations.

The figures of enrollment by grades and by districts, made up last Friday, the end of the second week of school, are as follows:

BY GRADES.
	On Roll.	Expected.
Kindergarten	484	70
Grade I	673	41
" II	615	16
" III	602	21
" IV	566	22
" V	549	6
" VI	533	5
" VII	452	8
" VIII	407	10
" IX	353	7
High School	889
Fourth Class 276 (Boys 126; Girls 150)
Third Class 230 (" 99; " 131)
Second Class 189 (" 87; " 102)
First Class 184 (" 84; " 100)
Post Grad. 10 (" 9; " 1)

BY DISTRICTS.
	On Roll.	Expected.
Bigelow	706	37
Horace Mann	987	33
Peirce	985	13
C. C. Burr	496	15
Hamilton	124	5
R. W. Emerson	488	11
Hyde	542	21
Mason	903	61

The following figures show the enrollment by departments, a year ago, and at the present time. In both cases, the number of "expected" pupils are included.

	1904.	1905.	Inc.
Enrollment in Kindergarten	505	554	49
Enrollment in Prim. and Grammar	4722	4886	161
Enrollment in High School	887	889	2
Total Enrollment in all Departments	6114	6329	215

By districts, the largest increases have occurred in the Bigelow, Mason, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Horace Mann—Cliffin.

There is no real crowding anywhere. There are some very large classes in nearly every district. But the great majority of the classes are of reasonable size. And very few now are composed of more than one grade, with the exception of those in the small schools at Thompsonville, Waban, and the Lower Falls.

The Kindergarten at the Jackson is so large—the enrollment is between seventy and eighty—that it is necessary to continue the plan of last spring, having a session in the afternoon as well as the morning.

APPOINTMENTS.

To take the place of Miss Elizabeth A. Loveland, assistant Kindergarten at the Underwood, who resigned just before school opened, I appointed Miss Ruth M. Page, who held a similar position at the Peirce last year.

Mrs. Gertrude H. Millet, a strong teacher of experience, has been secured to take the place of Miss Josephine West, of the Peirce, who was unable to report for duty after something over a year's leave of absence.

Miss Bertha M. Sherburne and Miss Ida M. Petter have been employed, the former at the Peirce, the latter at the Ralph Waldo Emerson, to fill vacancies which occurred late in the summer. As I had not seen their work before engaging them, they are here on trial, their regular appointment to depend upon their success. Both have begun well.

CLOSING SCHOOLS OCT. 27.

I would ask authority to close the elementary, and, if it should seem advisable, the High School, on Oct. 27, that the teachers may attend the annual County Institute which is to be held in Boston on the above date.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

The Vacation School at Nonantum, which came this year, for the first time, under the direction of the School Committee, had a very prosperous term of six weeks, opening July 10 and closing Aug. 18. There was a total enrollment of 336, an average membership of 297, and an average attendance of 263. These last figures show an increase of over 45 per cent. compared with the session of 1904. The funds available permitted the enlargement of the work in certain directions, particularly in the establishment of a department of physical training, and provided ample to provide means for carrying out in a satisfactory manner all lines of work attempted.

The city appropriated for this use $400, to which sum the Social Science Club of Newton, added $500. The total expense of the school was $905.20, leaving a balance of $348.80.

MANUAL TRAINING.

The work in manual training consists at present, of a one-hour lesson each week in sewing for girls in grades IV, V, VI, and VII, and of a two-hour lesson each week in sloyd for boys in grades VII and VIII. Thus it appears that the courses for boys and girls parallel each other only at one place, that is, in the seventh grade, and only partly there, as the girls' work requires only half as much time as the boys'.

This arrangement is unfortunate, and results in much partial waste of time. As a rule, and this is reported to be especially true in the eighth grade, while one part of the class is engaged in manual training, the other part is "filling in" the time, but not employing it with the usual advantage. Boys and girls should both be occupied with manual training at the same time.

Another difficulty presents itself. The number of classes which should receive instruction in sewing has grown so large, that two teachers are no longer able to give each class an hour a week. Last year, indeed, several fourth grade classes received only forty-five minute lessons. As about fifteen minutes are required for starting and stopping each lesson, the actual time for work is very brief, and is secured with undue waste of effort.

For lack of time no instruction in sewing has been given in the Roger Wolcott School during the last two years. The people there desire this work resumed.

After carefully studying the whole matter, the only improvement over present conditions which I can suggest, and which can be at once carried into effect without increasing the expense of the department, consists in dropping temporarily the sewing from the fourth grade and extending it into the eighth. This change would enable the two instructors more nearly to carry out the program, as there are not as many eighth grade classes as there are fourth grade. It would also occupy the girls of the eighth grade half the time while the boys are having sloyd.

I hope means may be provided, so that after January first a third teacher of sewing may be employed. This would make it possible to lengthen the periods in the seventh and eighth grades, if it should seem desirable to approximately the length of the boys' sloyd periods. The work might also be resumed in the fourth grades, if that were deemed advisable.

Respectfully submitted,
F. E. Spaulding, Superintendent.

Capt. Howard, for the Committee on Special branches, having considered the matter of Manual Training with the Supt. of Schools, offered the following order which was passed:—

Ordered, That the superintendent be and hereby is instructed to discontinue the sewing temporarily, from the fourth grade, and to extend the course into the eighth grade.

Mr. Morton, for the Committee on text books and courses of study, reported in favor of outlines in music and arithmetic, and the following order was passed:—Ordered, That the new outlines in music and arithmetic, reported by the Supt., be approved and accepted.

It was also ordered, in accordance with recommendation of the superintendent, that he be authorized to close all the schools, on October 27th, in order that teachers may attend the annual meeting of the Middlesex Co. Teachers' Association in Boston.

The superintendent made an exhaustive report upon promotions in the grades, grammar school diplomas, and admission to the high school, in which he recommended that the matter be referred to a standing or special committee, such committee representing the Board at the proposed conference between masters and superintendent. Referred to Committee on Rules and Regulations.

Mr. Morton, for the Committee on Finance and Supplies, duly seconded, moved a suspension of the rule, in order to amend the budget for 1906. The rule was suspended.

Voted, That the following additions be made to the budget, as originally made, $2000 to salaries; and $500 to Conveyance of Pupils, a total of $2500. The additions were voted unanimously, and the amendment adopted.

Mr. Morton, for the Committee on Finance and Accounts, presented the amended budget for 1906, which was passed, and is as follows:—

Salaries,	$203,395
Fuel,	10,000
Water,	1,700
Incidentals,	20,000
Evening Schools,	1,500
Conveyance of Pupils,	2,000
Special Furnishing,	2,500
School for Backward Pupils,	1,200
Nonantum Vacation School,	400

Total, $248,695

Mr. Morton for the Committee on Text Books and Courses of Study, recommended the adoption of the following text books for use in the High School, and the books were adopted:—

Stevenson's Treasure Island.
Emerson's Conduct of Life.
Chaucer's Prologue, Etc.
Thomas Practical German Grammar.
Gannett's Commercial Geography.

Mr. Wells presented a petition from residents of Oak Hill, for opening a primary school in the school building there, and the matter was referred to the Supt. of Schools, with request that he report at the next meeting.

Miss Cobb, for the Committee on Evening Schools, presented the following order, which was passed:—Ordered, That the Committee on Evening Schools be authorized to open an evening school in the Horace Mann School building, and an evening drawing school in the old Cliffin School building, at Newtonville, on October 9.

Mr. Gorham, for the Committee on Teachers, presented the following resignations, which were accepted:—Adelaide I. Perkins of the Mason School, Marion Patterson of Peirce School, and Nellie A. Alger of the Rice School.

On recommendation of Committee on Teachers, leave of absence for the present school year, was granted to Alma M. Carpenter of the Cliffin, her return to be at the option of the Committee.

Mr. Gorham, for Committee on Teachers, recommended the appointment, for present school year, of the following teachers:—

High—Robert W. Belcher, Underwood, Grace J. Edwards, Cliffin, Anna H. Bartlett, Peirce, Norena Collins, Emerson, Helen B. Somers, Mason, Ada

M. Smith, Unassigned, Lillian Russell. Also recommends appointment of the following teachers in the Evening Schools, for season of 1905-06:—

HORACE MANN EVENING SCHOOL.

Frank W. Chase, haster, Emma D. Larabee, Elizabeth A. Stevens, Nellie A. Dorney, Amelia Gunther, assistants.

EVENING DRAWING SCHOOL.

Warren C. Hill, master, Edward J. Ruxton, assistant.

The recommendations were all adopted.

The following report on daily medical inspection, was presented by Mr. Morton, for the Special Committee, to which the matter was referred in January, 1905.

The Committee to which was referred, on January 30, 1905, the matter of daily medical inspection of the public schools, begs leave to report as follows:

The Committee considered the question referred to it, not as an abstract one, involving merely the advisability of daily medical inspection as such, but as a concrete one, the answer to which depended upon what was reasonably necessary in view of the conditions as they exist in Newton.

It seemed therefore to the Committee that as a preliminary to solving the question some investigation should be made into the number of contagious cases, either in the schools or affecting the schools during a period of years, the wards of the city affected, and the means taken by the Board of Health and the School Committee to meet the conditions. To obtain this information a conference was had with the Board of Health, with the following results:

There has not been within the memory of the present members of the Board of Health any epidemic, in the accepted meaning of that word, which was traceable to schools. There have been periods when the number of cases of contagious diseases has shown a somewhat dangerous increase and that in families containing school children altho' not always among children. For instance, in the fall of 1899 there were 61 cases of diphtheria affecting Lincoln and Parochial schools and during January and February of 1900, 65 affecting the Parochial, Jackson and Elliot schools. In November, 1899, there were 11 cases affecting the Davis School at West Newton in 10 days.

There seems to have been no more diphtheria cases until January, 1904, when 16 cases were reported, affecting the Davis and Franklin schools, and in February, 1904, 13 cases affecting the Rice and Mason schools. There were no outbreaks of scarlet fever during the same period traceable to the schools. In the spring of 1899, there were 73 cases of measles, affecting the Cliffin district, 179 the Williams district, 54 the Hamilton district, and 78 the Franklin and Davis districts; and in 1900, 189 cases affecting the Hyde School. No other outbreak occurred until 1902, when there were 116 cases, affecting the Parochial and Lincoln schools. No cases appeared after this time until 1904 in the spring, when 322 cases were reported, affecting the Rice and Mason schools.

It is to be borne in mind, in considering these figures, that the cases as has been said were not all of children, but in families containing school children, and that the inspection of the schools would not necessarily have discovered the presence of the disease. At none of these times did a situation develop, according to the Board of Health, which demanded that special attention should be given to the schools. The steps taken by the Board, when there exist situations of the kind stated, so far as they affect the schools, are as follows:

The children in a family in which there is a contagious case are immediately quarantined for a reasonable time. If, at the end of the period, no traces of the disease appear upon them, they are allowed to go to school. The Superintendent of Schools is notified as soon as a case of the kind stated appears in a family, and communicates the fact to the teacher under whose charge the child comes, so that the child may be sent home and a special watch may be kept after his return. Rules, p. 79 s10. Return to the School is conditioned upon a permit from the Board of Health. The Board of Health makes a further inspection at the time of a school which might have been affected by the case.

If there is a serious outbreak, which threatens an epidemic, the Board has the power and intention to make emergency inspections daily or less often, as seem necessary. This situation has not yet confronted it. Under normal conditions, the course followed by the Board is as follows: At the beginning of each term every scholar in the grammar grades is examined by the city physician or those in his employ, special care being taken with the throat and hands to discover evidence of diphtheria or scarlet fever.

During the terms, the Board of Health depends upon the observation of the teachers, who are required by the rules of the Committee to report to the Board any case of sickness in a child and to immediately send the child home.

A certificate from the Board of Health is necessary before such child is readmitted to the school. A teacher of ordinary keenness, if she keeps her eyes open and realizes that it is a part of her duty to do so, can quickly discern the symptoms of illness. It is to be remembered that even if there should be daily medical inspection the results must still depend largely upon the teacher. There are in the City of Newton some 43 schools and between five and six thousand pupils. To daily examine each of those pupils in other than a superficial manner would take a large amount of time and would necessarily involve an expense out of all proportion to the results probably to be obtained.

Experience has shown in other places that daily medical inspection as ordinarily conducted as a fact reduces itself to an inspection of those whom the teachers believe need inspection. It is to be noted from these facts that there has been for a period of 5 years no outbreak of the most dreaded sickness in school districts except in those north of the track and those not serious.

Daily medical inspection in districts which experience has shown are seldom affected would fairly expose the city to the charge of excess paternalism and would seem to be unwarranted. In the affected districts the methods of prevention now in use seem to have been efficient and effective.

Faithfulness to their duties on the part of the teachers such as has marked the past, and the continued hearty co-operation between them and the Board under the present methods seems to your Committee all that could be expected or that was reasonably necessary to insure, through inspection, the minimum amount of danger from contagion.

They recommend, therefore, that no action be taken on the matter of daily medical inspection.

It seems wise, however, to call to the Committee's attention some suggestions made by the City Physician which would supplement and aid the good work already being done and which would involve but slight expense. One suggestion was to have the floors of every school room oiled twice a year, and the other to substitute in place of brooms and feather dusters, damp mops and clothes, thus preventing the stirring up and circulation of germ carrying dust.

It will be of interest and perhaps of value to the Committee to know that in Brookline where the conditions are very similar to those in Newton, inspection is in charge of the Board of Health, is dependent upon local conditions, being omitted at times altogether when the freedom from contagious disease seems to warrant it; and has cost the town during the last 6 years less than $600 a year.

Marcus Morton.
Abbot Bassett.
A. A. Tilney.

The report was received, and the same Committee was continued.

A request was received for use of the Jackson Kindergarten room, upon which, Mr. Tilney, for the Committee on school houses, recommended passage of the following, which was passed:—

Ordered, That the use of the kindergarten room in the Jackson School be granted to Mrs. Caroline S. Hosley and associates, two evenings a week for balance of present school year, for meetings of a Girl's Club, subject to the supervision of the superintendent and master of the school.

Wickins—Leeman.

Miss Lillian Rose Leeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Leeman was married to Mr. Charles Bertraud Wickins U. S. A. of Fort Andrews, Boston, last Tuesday evening. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride 24 Richardson street by Rev. George S. Butters at seven in the evening.

The bride was gowned in white silk muslin with white silk applique and carried white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Jennie Leeman as maid of honor prettily dressed in white lawn with lace insertion. The bridesmaid was Miss Clara Robbins of Charlestown, dressed in pink embroidered silk muslin and the flower girl was Miss Evelyn Snow of Woburn, cousin of the bride.

Mr. Harry E. Towle of Somerville was the best man and Messrs F. J. Wright of Fort Andrews and J. L. Roll of Boston were the ushers.

A reception was held until 9.30 with many guests present from Newton, West Roxbury, Somerville, Woburn, Charlestown and Boston Harbor, and the house was charmingly decorated with potted plants, autumn leaves and hydrangeas for the occasion. Music was furnished by members of the 10th Band Artillery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickins were the recipients of many beautiful gifts including a valuable remembrance from the bride's Sunday School class.

Late in the evening, the happy couple, the bride gowned in green cloth with picture hat of green velvet and white ostrich plumes, were showered with rice and confetti on their departure on a wedding trip to Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickins will reside at Fort Andrews.

Political Notes.

At the third councillor convention held at Wesleyan Hall, Boston, last Tuesday noon, Mr. Seward W. Jones of Newton Highlands was elected chairman, and Hon. W. W. Rawson of Arlington was re-nominated for councillor. Messrs. E. T. Colburn, S. W. Jones and W. F. Garcelon were re-elected members of the district committee.

At the Middlesex County convention held at East Cambridge on Wednesday, County Commissioner Levi S. Gould was re-nominated for another term and Register of Probate, William E. Rogers was nominated for his present position. Mr. Chas. E. Hatfield was re-elected a member of the County committee.

Castle Square Theatre

Castle Square Theatre—The second month of the Castle Square season opens on Monday with a comedy revival of Madeleine Lacette Ryley's "Mice and Men," the play in which Anne Russell was heartily welcomed some seasons ago. Its title, taken from Burns' familiar lines, is suggestive of a quaint love story and a romantic plot, and in these and other respects, "Mice and Men" fulfills the most pleasurable anticipations. The play is a humorous and piquant compound of delightful humor and dramatic power, its dialogue being especially bright and nuth-provoking. Early forthcoming at the Castle Square is a grand and elaborate production of Sargol's "Cleopatra."

Mrs. Mary A. Follett

Mrs. Mary Abby Follett, widow of the late Austin W. Follett and mother of Mr. William J. Follett of this city and of Edgar A. Follett of Philadelphia, Pa., died yesterday at the home of her son on Eldredge street, Newton, at the age of seventy three years. Mrs. Follett was born in Parkman, Ohio, August 17, 1832, and passed most of her life in Brooklyn, N. Y., coming to Newton about six years ago. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at Mr. Follett's residence on Eldredge street at 2 o'clock and the interment will be at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Police Paragraphs.

The annual meeting of the Newton branch of the Massachusetts Police Association was held at police headquarters, West Newton, last Tuesday. It was voted to send delegates to Lynn, Oct. 11 and 12 and Chief Mitchell, Lieut. Soule and president Harrison of the association were chosen. The following officers were elected: President, R. S. Harrison; vice president, W. H. Dolan; secretary, C. H. Tainter; treasurer, A. S. Kimball.

Clubs and Lodges

A successful and well attended whist party, under the auspices of Waban Lodge, I. O. O. F., was held Wednesday evening in Dennison hall, Newtonville.

John Eliot 149 of West Newton held a very interesting meeting Tuesday, Oct. 3rd. There were present visitors from Waltham, Auburndale and Newton Lodges, also the Deputies of District 31. Social initiation seemed to be the order of the evening. John Eliot Lodge, with the other lodges of this district, will endeavor to carry out the wishes of the G. M. W. and the membership of the several lodges will be considerably increased before the first of next month. A collation ended an enjoyable evening.

The members of Gethsemane Commandery K. T. and their ladies who enjoyed the trip to Bangor last June held a reunion last week Tuesday in the Masonic Building, Newtonville, over 300 being present.

An attractive entertainment, including impersonations, readings, instrumental and vocal music was presented by home talent and a synopsis of the Bangor trip added to the pleasures of the evening. Commander W. F. Jarvis was presented with a handsome sword, and Recorder Asa C. Jewett was greatly surprised with a beautiful jewel.

A sociable and whist party under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Division 32, A. O. H. will be held in Circuit hall, Monday evening, October 16.

An interesting and well attended meeting of Riverdale Lodge, N. E. O. P., was held Monday evening in the society hall on Auburn street, Auburndale. The district deputy and suite from Framingham were present and after the business session there was a collation and social hour.

At the meeting of Garden City encampment I. O. O. F. held at Newton Highlands Monday evening an official visit was made the lodge by Grand Patriarch Johnson.

A meeting of Deputies was held at a business session of John Eliot Lodge of district 31 held in A. O. U. W. hall, West Newton, last evening.

St. Bernard's Court, M. C. O. F., observed its 23d anniversary in A. O. U. W. hall, West Newton, last Thursday evening. Guests were present from Cambridge and Boston and the informal program consisted of music, dancing and refreshments.

Letter to Francis Newhall,

West Newton.

Dear Sir: You are so well known that the people have put you in office. They knew what they were about: They didn't do it by accident.

Wouldn't it be a handsome thing to do to paint your house? It is a nice house, has a good substantial commodious look, and isn't rusty at all, you know; but a fresh coat of paint would make it so bright! it's a pity not to.

Devote is beautiful paint, but the beauty of it is: it lasts so long, and does so much more than adorn an already interesting and attractive edifice. House out-buildings and fences. There isn't a man or a woman in town, who wouldn't see them and make some pleasant remark.

Of course, you will paint the town property: nothing would mark your administration more, in the eyes of the people; and, having done the same thing at home, it is the most natural thing in the world to do for them.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

—The opening services of the Union Church Society of Waban for the season of 1905-06 have been very interesting and well attended. Last Sunday the pastor, Rev. Dr. Adams, gave a special discourse on the "Seeds of Luyden," which was very instructive and received the close attention of the large congregation present.

—It is pleasant to note the progress of this Society in Waban, meetings first being held at the residence of Mr. Seaver, where the organization was formed. Later services were held in Waban hall with a small number attending, and before the season closed having an attendance of nearly one-hundred persons.

—An unique feature of this organization is its financial arrangement. No pew rents are charged or collections taken; the Society being supported wholly by voluntary contributions. All indebtedness is paid when it is incurred, so there never is a time when the Society is in debt. Last season the financial year closed with over one-hundred dollars in the treasury and the Society free from debt.

—Another feature is the religious belief of the congregation, it being composed of Unitarians, Congregationalists, Baptists, Methodists and several others, all meeting in harmony for the worship of God.

—There is a Sunday School connected with the Society, which meets in the Hall Sunday mornings previous to the church service. This branch of the organization has also been very successful, having increased over one-hundred percent in membership since its formation.

—The Society intends to follow the same lines for this year and confidently expect that a larger growth will be shown both in the Society and the School.

—Next Sunday the usual services will be held at the Hall, Sunday School at 10 A. M.; church services at 11 A. M., with sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Adams. All are cordially invited to attend.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass., October 6, 1905.

SPEECH OF HON. JOHN W. WEEKS, MEMBER OF CONGRESS, PERMANENT CHAIRMAN.

Gentlemen of the Convention:

For the first time the representatives of the Republicans of Massachusetts are assembled for the purpose of naming standard bearers for the coming State election. It has been the custom at previous State Conventions to consider the party's course in the past and to call attention to its position relative to those active and living issues, the settlement of which may mean much to the welfare of the people. Similar action will be followed at this convention—the proper committee will later present to you for your adoption a statement of the party's principles, while it becomes my duty as chairman of the convention to briefly review the party's record.

Political parties like individuals should stand on their record and let their records be judged. To accomplish successful legislation and administration by bringing together the different views of the Executive, his advisers and the members of the Legislature, representing as they do the varied thoughts and opinions of many people and nearly as many interests, into a condition of concurrent action which means government, is a very different matter from assuming the position of critic, advancing theories of government which have not been tried, and fortunately are not likely to be, and predicting dire results whenever any action is taken outside the beaten tracks.

These are the relative positions of the two great political parties in Massachusetts and throughout the United States. For nearly fifty years the Republican party has controlled the law-making machinery of this State and, with the exception of six years, the Executive as well. These six years when there has been a Democratic Executive, emphasize the fact that, unless by chance there has been an essentially unfit nomination made by the dominant party, which has never been the case in Massachusetts, it is unbusinesslike that there should be divided authority in the management of State affairs; for, while theoretically the representative of one party may check possible extravagances on the part of the other, practically the people should have some definite place to put responsibility; that place under our form of Government is Party and if it is desirable in Massachusetts, with its fifty years a Republican House of Representatives, a Republican Senate and a Republican Council, there can be from a business standpoint no reason for weakening the political structure by electing a Democratic Executive; it would be as logical for the share holders of a corporation to elect a president whose views of conducting that special business were known to be diametrically opposite to those held by his Board of Directors as to divide authority in the State, yet that is exactly what has been done six different times by the voters of Massachusetts.

It is not worth while to discuss the earlier of these exceptions but it is all important that this convention should consider the last one.

At your State Convention a year ago you nominated as your Candidate for Governor Hon. John L. Bates of Boston. For the previous five years he had been more intimately connected with the political affairs of Massachusetts than he. He had been five times a member and three times Speaker of the House of Representatives, three times nominated and elected Lieutenant Governor, twice nominated and elected Governor. This record was an open book, and no man could suggest that he had not filled all of these places of trust with signal ability, that honesty and high purpose were not at all times his guides. His voice was familiar in all parts of the Commonwealth and his sound reasoning and eloquence had convinced and electrified those who had heard him, and yet he was defeated. With such a personality, backed by a record of almost unblemished service, pitted against a candidate in no way approaching such a record of service or experience in public affairs, we naturally look beyond the candidate to reasons in his party's record which would warrant such a change. A careful review of Democratic platforms and of statements of Democratic candidates and others in positions of responsibility at that party develops the fact that that party as a State organization, has no policy or issues which do not vary from year to year, other than the claim of extravagance by Republican Administrations, the bad policy of carrying on important administrative functions by commissions and the always present desire to get into office, with the accompanying promise of a better administration.

In calling attention to the record of the present Governor, it gives me pleasure as a citizen of Massachusetts to say to this convention that in my opinion he has, in many of the essentials, been a good executive; he has been a good Governor, however, not because he is a Democrat, but in spite of it, not because he has established new methods of administration or followed the course outlined by his party's platform and orators, but rather because he has avoided such a course and has seldom deviated from the businesslike ways adopted and followed by his immediate Republican predecessors. As I have just stated, every Democratic platform in this Commonwealth formulated within the memory of man has declared against the extravagance of Republican administration and against State commissions with variation of opinion as to the best method of abolishing, consolidating or in some way, changing them. Their platform one year ago, and the position taken by their candidate for Governor and by their party leaders was no exception to the general rule. Their candidate was elected and we might reasonably have expected that his presumed desire to find the exact places where alleged Republican dishonesty or carelessness, or at least extravagance prevailed, would have exposed them without delay, but there has been no such exposure. Governor Douglas has signed every revenue and appropriation bill sent him by the Republican Legislature. Even to a greater extent than his immediate predecessors he has agreed with the work of the Legislature; Senator Crane, during his three years as Governor, signed on an average each year 637 acts and resolves and vetoed a total of 16, an average of more than five each year; Governor Bates during his two years as Governor signed an average of 578 acts and resolves and vetoed 29, or an average of 14½ each year; while Governor Douglas signed during the last session of the Legislature 587 acts and resolves and vetoed four, and of those bills vetoed, three were minor matters, a record which is a conclusive proof of the care used in enacting legislation by the Republican Legislature.

He has endorsed the suggestions of Governor Bates for increasing the State's revenue, but not a single suggestion as to a reduction of expenses, and finally, we have his reported declaration at a public meeting called to celebrate a Democratic anniversary, that he has hunted diligently for extravagance and failed to find it, that the Legislature has kept appropriation bills down to the lowest level which reasonable efficiency in State administration allowed, and that it is his opinion that the State's affairs have been well managed. Coming from such a source and at such a time, this endorsement of Republican Administrations in Massachusetts ought to be considered final and Democratic conventions should adopt in future some other way to replace this hardy annual which has served over time. The fact is, the people of this Commonwealth have been and are in favor of, not an extravagant government, but a liberal one; they demand good highways, proper care of the needy and helpless, enlightened treatment of criminals, the encouragement of education, arts, manufactures and agriculture, and the maintenance of an efficient militia. They have been getting exactly those things, provided by a complete Republican administration. The injection of a Democratic executive has simply emphasized this condition and he has been too honest to state conditions differently from what he found them.

And now as to Commissioners, with the exception of the Boston Police Commission which will be a bone of contention as long as the desire exists to get it into the hands of those who would use it for their personal or political benefit, they have not been referred to in any way by the Executive; no recommendations, no criticisms; more than that, while men may agree on principle, they are quite likely to disagree as to personality, so that we might naturally have expected that there would be many changes in the personnel of Commissions, but even there the Governor finds efficiency and the same excellent judgment in the selection of the membership of commissions which was noticeable in all the acts of his Republican predecessors.

In a few instances the Governor has replaced Republican incumbents with Democrats, admittedly for political reasons, but not in a single one of them has any charge of wrong doing or inefficiency been made against the deposed official or any claim that the position will be better filled by his successor. Whenever a great commercial corporation selects a new head, many changes are likely to be made by the new executive, those who are to be initiated associated with him in carrying out his policies, but so carefully have the commissioners, heads of institutions, and other State officials been selected in this Commonwealth, that, notwithstanding partisan anxiety and desire, there have been fewer changes made than would have been the case in commercial life.

There have been changes, however, generally of small importance, and it is to be regretted that it is to be replaced with experience, method, which are working well; the new order of things in the Militia will serve as an example.

For many years the people of the Commonwealth have felt that there was being maintained a useful and effective militia force, that in most respects at least it was up-to-date, that its personnel was excellent and that, compared with other States, just pride could be taken in the work of our citizen soldiers.

This year we have had an innovation in the shape of so-called "grand military maneuvers" conducted by a staff officer, acting with an authority which gave him no right, either by the statutes or by custom, to assume command. Men going into the militia service sacrifice in most cases one-half of their customary vacation and for the time thus given to the State they very seldom receive pay. All authorities agree that no use was made of the Regulars brought to the Westfield camp at great expense to serve as models for the State troops; that there was an entire disregard for the comfort of the men in the times and weather of conditions for drills that no systematic plan was made for giving useful instructions; that from the beginning to the end of the camp there prevailed a want of discipline; the natural result of which was a disgraceful raid at the close of the camp which reflected and will continue to reflect on the forces present for years to come and finally, that the expenses of the encampment were greater than ever before and out of all reason compared with the results obtained.

The Voter will naturally ask—"Is this a fair sample of Democratic administration and do we want more of the same kind?" I have no doubt of a negative response to this inquiry, not only from the militia man whose best interests have been sacrificed, but from citizens at large who will neither approve of the lessening of the effectiveness of the militia nor of the wasteful expenditure of money.

The voters of this Commonwealth should never lose sight of the fact that there is not a law for the promotion of education, for the protection of the laboring man and for the advancement of his cause, for the care of the needy and helpless, for the reward and care of the veterans of the Civil War, for the protection of life and property, and for the innumerable other acts which combined give to this State a code of laws acknowledged to be far in advance of the code of any other State in the Union, that has not been enacted by a Republican Legislature, very often against the active opposition of the Democratic party. When the Democrats ask to have the affairs of this State turned over to them to manage, let them show any State where their party has been in control for a long term of years in which the condition of its people compares in all that goes to make up the best in life, with the conditions of the people in this State. When this can be done and only then should the voters of this State consider a change.

This is what is called an off year in political affairs, one in which State and not National issues would naturally be considered by the people, but when the Democratic party proclaims, as it has done, that the result of the election is to be interpreted as the judgment of Massachusetts upon the National Government and on National questions the election has been almost entirely set aside. Significance than a State election. Moreover the voters of every State are at all times interested in and affected by the adjustment of National questions; this is especially the case in this Commonwealth, where a very large proportion of the people are interested in manufacturing and, as a result, in foreign trade. Fortunately for the Republicans of Massachusetts, beneficial and effective administration during the past fifty years, they can turn to the performance of similar duties by the great National party to which they belong with a certainty that there too is a government loyal to principle and efficient in the performance of every duty. This condition has been almost universal, wherever our party has been in control in the past, but during the administration of President Roosevelt the party has not only sustained its past record for efficiency, but under his masterful guidance this country has reached a position of power and prestige never equaled before in this or any other land.

It is impossible to call your attention to this brief address to any more than the most far-reaching of the large number of acts and inceptions of this great man and his Administration which are being vigorously developed, or are already successfully completed.

Fifteen years ago the United States, which up to that time had purchased manufactured goods abroad to make up the deficiency in our home production, reached a point in the producing stage when it must be a matter of its excess. It has gradually become, and is now one of the first duties of government to provide additional markets for this surplus product of ours, for if other markets are not found our manufacturers and other producers will find on their hands an over-production, which will be followed by the shutting down of mills, throwing workmen into idleness, and by all the evils which such conditions produce. Our excess in manufactured goods had reached very small proportions before the enactment of the Dingley bill in 1897, but now we have become a great manufacturing nation and, while Mr. Blaine and other far-seeing statesmen could see in the early nineties that the time was coming when we should be obliged to carefully consider this question, they could not have comprehended the marvellous strides which have been made since the Reciprocity treaties were first provided for in the McKinley tariff bill. For the last five years under the Dingley tariff our total exports have averaged $1,453,000,000; for the previous five years they averaged $1,157,000,000 and for the five years before that $899,000,000, an average gain in ten years of $550,000,000 annually. During the same period our imports have increased but $105,000,000, showing an excess of exports over imports in ten years, based on five year averages of $365,000,000. It should be added that for the first time in the history of this country more than one-half of our total exports, exceeding $1,500,000,000, for the year ending July 1, were manufactured goods or other articles than agricultural products. It is a reasonable question for the voters to consider when we again appeal to them for their suffrages in support of our candidates and principles, whether the Republican party and Republican Administrations have attempted and accomplished satisfactory results in working out this problem, which put in another form means the maintenance of our home markets and the development of our foreign trade sufficiently to provide an outlet for all of our surplus product.

Various causes have contributed to the development of our industries and various means have been used to increase our trade, first of these being the protective principle as illustrated by the McKinley and Dingley tariffs. There would be little occasion for considering our foreign trade if the tariff had not been maintained at a high level by those bills, for in that case the manufacturer, not having comparative immunity from foreign competition, would have had his hands full keeping control of the home market and would not have been able to reach out for foreign trade as he has done in the past few years.

The Republican party has from its inception been a consistent advocate of protection; this does not mean that all men in our party have agreed in the details of the application, for that has never been the case and never will be; it is a distinctly business proposition and it would be a miracle if any considerable number of men agreed at any one time on every item connected with it, but speaking broadly, Protection has been and will continue to be one of the main principles of the Republican party, and generally speaking, it has been attacked and denounced by the Democratic party; occasionally, however, that party is represented by those who, inadvertently, perhaps, express their honest opinions, as, for instance, last winter Governor Douglas in his inaugural made some suggestions relative to Massachusetts interests in the tariff, which were referred to the Joint Committee on Federal Relations, included in the membership of which there are three Democrats. This Committee unanimously reported a resolution which passed both the House and the Senate unanimously. In part, this resolution, as finally adopted was—

Resolved—"That the General Court of Massachusetts favors the establishment of freer trade relations between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland, as soon as it is possible to secure such relations without injury to American agriculture, American labor or American industries, and without sacrificing the American policy of protection to the manufactures, under which not only the manufacturing, but also the agricultural and mercantile interests of the Commonwealth have largely prospered. The test of protective legislation, however, should not be 'is a duty demanded?' but 'is a duty needed?'" At first thought one would naturally say, "That settles it. The Democrats of the old Bay State have adopted the Republican position on this subject, and further consideration is not necessary." If the Democratic party were a normal organization this would be true, but it is not such an one; it changes its views with as much readiness as a chameleon changes its color, and we shall doubtless find in their platform to be adopted tomorrow that the country is still groaning under the burden of the Dingley tariff. The trouble with the Democratic party is that its members cannot discriminate in the meaning of those sounds called groans; if they could, they would discover that these are not groans of distress, but groans which indicate plenty. The employment is growing because he cannot harvest his crops; ten thousand miles of railroad trains are in motion this very minute, groaning with the products of factory and farm; these are the noises our Democratic friends hear and, if they were not in a nightmare of doubt and indecision, they would recognize them as their Representatives at the State House last winter seem to have done.

To further develop our foreign trade the Republican party has adopted the policy of Reciprocity and has used every endeavor to make this policy effective, showing its sincerity not only by platform declaration, but by putting the policy into practical execution. To carry out the Reciprocity clause in the McKinley Tariff Bill Mr. Blaine as Secretary of State, made ten reciprocity treaties—eight with Central and South American countries—one with Germany and one with Austria. These treaties continued in force until 1894 when they were abrogated by the Wilson-Gorman bill that being the only general tariff measure passed by Congress since 1845 when both Senate and House as well as the Executive were in the hands of the Democrats. That was the time, if ever, when that party could have shown interest in the extension of our foreign trade by promoting the reciprocity movement. The effect which these treaties had on our trade while in operation, from 1890 to 1894, had been to increase exports 20 per cent to the countries with which treaties had been made and to increase imports from them 28 per cent; while our exports to all other countries during the same period increased 3 per cent and our imports from the same decreased 27 per cent.

Once more in 1897, when the Dingley bill was framed and passed by a Republican Congress, special reciprocal provisions were inserted. The President was authorized to negotiate with countries producing certain articles which were specified, allowing them to come in free of duty, provided a sufficiently satisfactory trade could be made by giving our exports the benefit of the established minimum tariffs of those countries; none of the articles admitted without duty by this Act being produced in this country. President McKinley took advantage of this provision in 1898, and made trade agreements with France, Italy and Portugal, which arrangement applied to Germany under the terms of the Favored Nation clause of our treaty with Prussia, made in 1828. Reciprocity is a separate section, also, authorized the President to enter into commercial relations with any country with which suitable reciprocity arrangements could be made, provided not more than 20 per cent reduction in the duties fixed by the act should be made and that the term should be limited to five years. Under this authority Mr. Kossuth, representing the Republican administration, negotiated eleven treaties; eight of these were favorably reported by the Foreign Relations Committee, but were defeated; the other three were not favorably reported, but there is no record to show that a single Democratic Senator raised his voice or voted in favor of the adoption of any of the treaties and it is reasonably certain that several of them could have been adopted if they had been supported by even a majority of the Democratic Senators.

The Republican Administration made and a Republican Senate and House passed the Reciprocity Treaty with Cuba while the only votes cast against it in either House, with a single exception, were cast by Democrats; the results of this treaty should have been adopted for moral if not for business reasons, have been, not injurious, but beneficial to our industries. It has been the means of increasing our Cuban trade, both imports and exports, at the expense of the trade of our competitors and it has assisted in bringing to the Island of Cuba a prosperity unheard of in its previous history.

There is nothing in this statement of facts regarding our attempts to broaden our markets by reciprocal arrangements which does not show that every reasonable attempt has been made to carry out its repeated declarations in favor of this policy, made by the Republican party when formulating National platforms since 1888, and we may be sure that this effort will continue whenever opportunity offers. At the same time there is not a particle of evidence to show, since the declaration of the National Democratic party made in its National platform in 1892, that Reciprocity was a humbug, which declaration was followed by the repeal of the Reciprocity Treaties made by President Harrison, down to the present day, that its more recent favorable declarations have not been humbug and that its representatives have not only given aid and in promoting Reciprocity, but have in many cases been the direct cause of its defeat.

But treaties in any form are not the only methods which can be used to develop foreign trade, or which have been used by the last two Republican Administrations for this purpose; strong and active foreign policy is one of the causes for the rapid development of our trade; indeed the triumphs of our Department of State in the past half dozen years must give to every citizen whose veins contain a drop of red blood, a thrill of pride and satisfaction. No greater change has been wrought in recent years than in our so-called foreign policy which, since the peace of Paris, is based on the dual proposition of our being a world power, with all the duties which such a position involves, and of an American policy involving the Monroe Doctrine, with its complex duties to our neighbors on the American continent.

The best known of the Administration's achievements for this purpose are the retention of the open door in China, which has not only practically doubled our trade with that country in the past two years, but has insured our share of the trade with 400,000,000 of people for all future time, and the negotiations which have enabled us to undertake the building of the Panama Canal, which when completed will bring the markets of the Orient, the Pacific Islands and the West coast of North and South America so near our manufacturers that we can compete on at least equal terms for them with any section of our own or any other country in the world. But these are not the only successes, they extend through a long list of diplomatic triumphs down to the successful bringing together of the contestants in the great Eastern conflict and so influencing their actions that an honorable peace could be made; an act which not only stamps President Roosevelt the first diplomat of the world, but which confounded his critics who have held him up as the incarnation of strife, for they find instead that he is the first peace maker of his time. One of the first evidences of the benefits to be derived from this last diplomatic victory has been the removal by the Russian Government of the discriminations which have been in force against our products.

The reason for many of these successes may be traced to another source than our increasing power as a nation—rather to a diplomacy which has substituted personal integrity and the highest standards of manhood for the tortuous methods which have obtained in the past, especially among the diplomats of European capitals. For many of these changes—the tremendous advances and improvements in our system and methods, we are indebted to that great diplomat, John Hay but so thoroughly has this policy become established, both in usage and approval of the people, that we may expect its continuance; it certainly will not suffer, but will become strengthened in the hand of Elihu Root.

MERCHANT MARINE.

But our foreign trade, especially with neutral ports and neutral countries, cannot be developed to its fullest extent or indeed in a business-like way without an American Merchant Marine. No better example can be found of the advantages of a protective tariff than in the history of the rise and decline of our shipping interests. One hundred years ago we carried 90 per cent of our foreign commerce in American ships; fifty years ago we were carrying two-thirds of it, while today our ships are carrying less than 10 per cent, leaving 90 per cent of this enormous foreign commerce, amounting to more than $2,000,000,000, to be carried by foreign built ships, sailing under a foreign register, manned by foreign sailors, the result being that the freights paid, amounting annually to nearly $200,000,000 inure to the benefit of foreign labor and foreign capital.

From 1800 to 1850 our Merchant fleet was in some form or to some degree a protected industry, while for the last forty five years this industry in which our people were once leaders, and in which they are natural leaders, has been the one great industry that has had no protection—no government encouragement. It has been hampered by a cost in building of nearly 50 per cent in excess of the cost of foreign built ships and a high cost of running, due to the higher wages paid and to our higher standard of living in every way. Any other of our great industries laboring under such disadvantages would have gone into bankruptcy and out of existence long ago.

The President, recognizing the humiliating condition of this industry, recommended in his annual message to Congress in 1903, that a commission be appointed for the purpose of investigating the subject and reporting desirable legislation for the development of our Merchant Marine and of American commerce. Opinions will always differ on the details of any attempt to carry out such an important object, but after an exhaustive examination of the whole subject this commission has reported a bill which should and doubtless will become a law without unreasonable delay; not because all Republicans are agreed that the bill will necessarily accomplish the desired object in the most direct or effective way, but because it is the best method which has been suggested for bringing about this result and at least making a beginning of what should be a great and profitable industry.

This bill would in effect provide for the location of new ocean mail routes. The establishment of new lines of cargo ships to neutral countries, especially the new and largely undeveloped fields in South America and Asia, would create new ship-building industries, employing largely skilled labor of the highest type.

It would create a fleet, the operation of which will require large numbers of American sailors, who, having in this way acquired the sea-going habit, will be available for a real naval reserve, which is absolutely necessary for our present and future naval development. And lastly, it would enable our own people to get the direct benefit of the large expenditures made annually to improve our harbors and entrances to them.

NAVY.

The great prominence which we have attained in international fields could not in my opinion have been reached if we had not at the same time physical power and in connection with the undertaking to build the canal, to preserve and develop our foreign trade, to protect our citizens abroad and to compel a strict observance of the Monroe Doctrine, there is no greater duty than to maintain substantially our present Naval building programme.

FREE HIDES & COAL.

Whatever changes are made in our trade relations we should remember that that country is rich which transforms its raw material into manufactured products, disposing of the surplus to foreign countries and that it is poor if it sells its raw material and on that account buys more largely of manufactured goods; this fact is of great importance to the manufacturers of Massachusetts and it applies with special force to two articles—hides and coal. REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

State in the Union in the manufacture of shoes; to keep our manufacturing constantly employed we must have a suitable foreign outlet for our surplus and at the same time provide raw material so that the cost shall be as nearly that of other nations as possible. Experience shows that cattle do not increase in proportion to the increase in population of a country, but on the contrary, they often decrease as population increases; therefore, we must look to other countries for a constantly increasing quantity of hides, and whenever there is any change in the tariff, or any reciprocal arrangement can be made with Argentina, or any other country having a surplus of hides, every effort should be made to give our manufacturers free hides.

Almost the same argument may be made relative to coal which must be used to supply a market comparatively near the place of production. Unless unusual conditions prevail—Canada is the only country from which we would be likely to receive any considerable quantity, even if the duty were entirely removed; if this were done it would greatly benefit the manufacturers in Massachusetts and I believe that the producers in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, who would apparently be affected adversely would have a largely increasing field for their product in Ontario.

RAILROAD LEGISLATION.

In the last seventy years there have been constructed in this country by private means and enterprise, over 200,000 miles of railroad; in many cases, especially in the West and Southwest, these roads have been the means of the development of the country; without them this development would have been slow and difficult, in some cases impossible. They have been in the largest sense, and are today, the arteries of our commercial life. No community is well served which is tributary to transportation lines that are not prosperous; there are invested in them $11,250,000,000, 1-10 of the wealth of the United States. They give employment to 1,500,000 men; there is spent in their operation $1,250,000,000, annually and to a great extent the savings of the laboring people are invested in their certificates of indebtedness. The mere statement of these facts is sufficient to show that radical legislation affecting such vast and wide-spread interests should be enacted only after the most painstaking inquiry and consideration. But these railroads, which were originally chartered as local enterprises, have become great operators in interstate commerce; they have received in almost all cases locations, now very valuable, without expense; in many cases they have been encouraged by local aid and often by large grants of the public domain; therefore, it becomes the right of the public and the duty of the Government to see that these corporations continue to aid public development and commerce, and to give the people fair and reasonable service.

Very naturally, as in most large developments, abuses have crept into their management; rebates have been given to aid one company or set of individuals at the expense of others; certain towns and sections have received unfair advantages of various kinds; wharves and terminals and side-tracks have been owned by the officers of the roads and used at the expense, not only of the stockholders, but of the public at large, until finally these abuses reached a degree which required that legislation be passed and further action is now necessary to protect the public interests. There is a distinct demand that discrimination between individuals in the shape of rebates, discrimination between commodities and discrimination between localities shall cease; that there shall be a square deal. The President, recognizing these growing evils promptly recommended legislation to prevent their recurrence, and a Republican Congress, actuated not by a destructive, but by a just spirit, will without doubt enact legislation which will carry out his recommendations.

POLITICAL MORALITY.

Notwithstanding a civil service system of appointments, which is being constantly extended and which was never so strictly adhered to in spirit or in letter as at the present time, had and corrupt men get into the public service, and we are in the midst of investigations and trials of men who have been honored with political preferment; there have always been similar cases, but there has not always been the same determination to punish offenders. In this tendency, as well as in others, political parties may properly be judged and it is at least a sign of our moral position on such questions when we see corrupt men in the United States service, whatever party they may belong to, tried and punished either by imprisonment or by dismissal from the public service; in Democratic Boston we see a Democratic while serving sentence for a crime against the Civil Law, elected to an important office and immediately on his release from confinement, taking his place among those who have the management of great municipal affairs and received in full fellowship by his party associates. It cannot be possible that the people of this Commonwealth can wish to encourage such a policy in preference to that adopted by the Massachusetts Legislature in a similar case, or the undeviating course of punishing all classes of criminals found in the public service which is now relentlessly followed by the National Government.

LIFE INSURANCE.

As early as 1791 Alexander Hamilton, with a prescience which has not been equalled by any other public man in the history of our Government, advocated among other things that the General Government should regulate life insurance on the ground that it was interstate commerce.

As conducted today life insurance has become a distinctly beneficial instrument of civilization, but the want of systematic regulation and supervision has had a tendency to create and stimulate abuses, which are just now especially in the public eye. The volume of the business has become enormous; American life insurance companies have written policies enough abroad so that the annual premium received amount to nearly one hundred millions of dollars. There are seventeen millions of contracts outstanding in this country, the annual premium receipts from which amount to over five hundred millions of dollars and the assets of the companies doing business in this country aggregate $2,000,000,000.

The volume of this business, the number of people involved in its successful or unsuccessful prosecution, warrant Federal supervision, at least, as to an inspection of the companies and the limitation of their investments. There are similar reasons for the examination of life insurance companies which obtain in the case of National Banks and it should be a supervision which any reputable company would court.

President Roosevelt has recognized this situation and in his annual message to Congress in December, 1904, recommended Government supervision of interstate transactions in insurance.

PARTY DISTINCTIONS.

The people of Massachusetts have had an opportunity during the past summer to witness the different methods followed by the two great parties in selecting candidates for office. A Democrat is technically one who promotes government by the people and the rank and file of the Democratic party have been repeatedly told and doubtless sometimes believed that they really occupied that position; if so, the comedy of selecting their candidate for Governor should dispel such an illusion.

The indecision of Gov. Douglas when considering another nomination was simply illustrative of his party's course, and this irresolution was interspersed with offers of the nominations made by the party leader, with declinations from the proposed candidate, couched in such terms that one would have supposed that one was representing and the other replying to the real representatives of the party in Convention assembled; discussions as to who would finance the candidate if nominated and other irrelevant matters, until the rank and file of the Bay State Democracy if they considered the matter at all, must have concluded that Col. Gaston and Chairman Quincy had arranged a promotion syndicate and were looking for some one to promote and for possible underwriters, instead of allowing the voters to select a candidate for this great office. The method followed by the Republican party is so different that it cannot have escaped the attention of the citizens of the State. Whenever there is a vacancy we promote to fill it if there is a suitable man in the line of promotion; in case a long tried official declines to serve longer, there is active competition for the position, the candidates going before the people and giving, as nearly as possible, every voter an opportunity to make a choice; and again when the position is not thrown open for competition by such declination the party, committed as it is to Civil Service of the highest order, deems it a duty to continue in office those faithful and efficient officers who have been tried and not been found wanting.

Instances in all of these methods will be considered and determined by you today; you will make Lieutenant-Governor Curtis Guild Jr., your candidate for Governor, not because he is the Lieutenant-Governor, for he makes no claim on custom or precedent, but because he has filled that position most acceptably, because he is known to the people of the Commonwealth as an able, tried and honest man and because he is known to the Representatives of the Republic of Massachusetts, as a party man who has won his promotion by over twenty years of effective party service. You will renominate some of those efficient State officers who are willing to continue to serve and if you, for the positions for which there is competition, select any of those who have been prominently before the people during the past season, you will complete a ticket which should make a convincing plea to the voters of the Commonwealth. We can at least ask their support because the candidates we present are of proved character and competency; we can ask it because the people's business is being well done in both State and Nation and ought not to be turned over to untried and quite likely inefficient hands; we can ask it because the test of history shows that the policies of the Republican party are beneficial, not to the party alone, but to the whole American people.

Posters are being displayed throughout the infested district, explaining the appearance of the gypsy and brown tail moth egg clusters and the remedy for exterminating them. The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once wherever found, while those of the brown tail can be more easily found after the leaves have fallen from the trees.

GRACE CHURCH

The sermon by Bishop Lawrence at the closing of the Anniversary Week of services in Grace church, Sunday evening, Oct. 1st, was an extremely fine effort, and was listened to with deep attention by the very large congregation present. The Bishop first read the account of our Lord's visit to the Temple and His driving out the money changers and then followed this by reading the story of the cure of the crippled and the singing by the children in the Temple. The theme of the sermon was: When commercialism is driven out of the Church we have a House of Prayer and when men cultivate piety by devotion they aim at benevolence in word and deed.

The preface to the discourse was a most graceful message of congratulation to Grace Church Parish. Among other things he said that as a Bishop had so many discouraging features to meet in some parishes it was delightful to come to a Parish where he never found any quarrels to settle, and never any rough places to make smooth. He always expected to find Grace Church people doing their work with unity and wholeness of heart.

He was glad not only that the Parish had been such a blessing to Newton but to the Diocese and to so many parts of the land. The interest of the people was shown in missions and charities and whatever helped the community and the country, and made life better worth living at home and abroad.

He then went on to speak of commercialism pervading the church and interfering with man's opportunity for communion with God. The spirit of greed was not the spirit to be cultivated in the church. It was not only out of place there but it hindered the growth of a better spirit. And yet money has its place in religion. It is an aid to the best things. Its use may be sanctified to men's welfare. We must not think of money making as altogether unworthy of effort, but must bring it into proper proportion with other things. The Church stands partly for the purpose of teaching us to keep a right proportion between things, how to make a right use of things temporal that we lose not the things eternal.

In illustrating this point he urged strongly the duty of a regular attendance at Sunday services, and drew a contrast between two men one of whom kept up his thinking and planning in temporal matters all day Sunday and the other came to God's House for worship. The latter found a wholesome change from the business of the week to the higher things of life, and lived for a while in an atmosphere in which his obligations to God and to his neighbor were recognized. He found himself in higher altitudes of thought and feeling than did the man who let business and social matters and amusements grasp him in a clutch that was not relaxed even on the Lord's Day.

The speaker claimed that the only men who were really trained to do the best work for the community were the men who came regularly under the hallowing influence of the Lord's House.

He passed on from this to say that when the Church drives out the spirit of Commercialism and encourages the spirit of devotion then the Church becomes benevolent. Just as after the money changers were driven away our Lord healed those who needed healing.

When the Church regains the spiritual note it takes hold of spiritual things and becomes helpful. A worldly, commercialized Church is not helpful. Only that which is lifted up and is pervaded by spiritual motives can lift up the community.

The Church is intended to be an inspiring influence, to take hold of the life of men and women and make them purer and better. It is intended to be a spiritual centre from which there flash out the vivifying current that warms and blesses.

The Bishop made a beautiful reference to the contrast between the harsh cries of the trades and the sweet singing of the children heard after the Temple was cleansed. The Church is the home the welcome place of childhood and all that childhood represents. And the children must learn the glory of the Church and rejoice in it. If we do not help them to know the Church we are doing the children irreparable wrong. Older people should try to keep their religion simple and pure like the religion of a child. Then it becomes helpful for it is genuine and can be understood by others.

He closed by making an appeal to the members of the congregation to consider each one's personal duty. The Parish has a noble record for the past 50 years. What record shall it make in the future? Progress was shown not simply in adding to the beauty and convenience of a group of buildings but more important than all was the lifting up the tone of life, and helping others to love and serve the Lord.

While material prosperity was not to be despised the spiritual things of the Parish and the impress it makes upon men's lives are vastly more important.

Each member of Grace Church should feel that he belongs to an organization whose main object is to lift men up so that greed or gain shall not enchain them, but that deeds of mercy and the sacred songs of rejoicing from those who seek to be pure in heart shall be welcomed.

DEER AND MOOSE IN MAINE.

Law Off Oct. First.—A Big Season.

The season of 1905 gives every promise of becoming a record breaker in the amount of big game which will be sacrificed to the sport of the hunter. From all over Maine, from the wilds of Aroostook County and far down in the wilderness of the Washington County region, the deer and the moose are coming down to the nearer Ranges and the border lands of New Hampshire, come tales of herds of deer and numerous moose, awaiting the advent of the sportsman. Two deer and one moose are the allotted quota by law, for every non-resident who visits Maine protected with his $15.00 license; and it is very seldom that one reads an account of a returned hunter, who has not secured his legal allotment of deer at least, and judging from the moose market this year, the big game hunter with a good eye, a steady arm, a trusty rifle and a Maine Guide, or a thorough knowledge of the region which he traverses has a "long shot" chance of making good on his quarry. Maine covers a vast territory and the hunting grounds are scattered throughout the state. Around the shores of Moosehead Lake and scamping over the islands are numerous deer. The Rangeley Region, known to every follower of Isaac Walton, is also a pro-life game territory. Mt. Katahdin is the rendezvous of the moose and every year some likely specimens of the lordly animal are carried from here. Away down in the Aroostook Region the sportsman will enjoy himself to his heart's content; like the other portions of Maine's hunting section suitable camps have been erected here for the accommodation of the sportsman, and reports from the guides in this particular section, state that thirty moose within the last month were seen close to the camps. Already the sportsman who enjoys hunting smaller game or bird shooting is in the Maine wilderness. Partridge, woodcock, plover and pheasants are very plentiful in sections of this state and the hunter with a good dog who seeks these haunts will find rare sport. October 1st, when the law is off on deer and moose, then the great influx into the game region commenced. Guides are prepared for a record breaking season, and the adventurous sportsman who feels strenuous enough to tackle something bolder than a moose, if reports are accurately recorded, will find adversaries in the shape of shaggy brutes among the berry patches and orchards of Washington County. Besides deer and moose there is an endless variety of quadrupeds, awaiting the sportsman in the Maine woods. Rabbits, mink, squirrels, hedgehogs, foxes and any quantity of fur bearing animals will be found in the northern section. Maine has been well termed the "Sportsman's Paradise." Surely he cannot want for deer or moose, he knows where to seek larger game, and the endless variety of smaller animals and birds will surely satisfy the hunter who is steering in this direction. Write to the Boston & Maine Passenger Department, Boston, and receive free one of the beautiful booklets telling in detail the various sections of this prolific game paradise and how to reach it, and profusely illustrated with pictures of camps and hunting scenes.

The Gray Squirrels Again

Not long after mentioning the half amusing, half provoking mischief of gray squirrels in my article in the GRAPHIC of August 25th, I saw and heard of another form of mischief by them, such as I never saw before in all my thirty-three years experience on one and the same lot.

Having happily found what has proved in my case to be a complete and thorough remedy for this new mischief, it is a pleasure to tell of it in your columns, so that all interested may have the benefit of the information more quickly and effectually than by conversation only.

The case was this. Gray squirrels were seen jumping from the ground directly into the lowest limbs of a seckel pear tree, not to eat the pears, but to bite them in two, and then eat only the seeds and throw away all that was left. All the household would gladly have fed the little rogues with crumbs, nuts, etc., but such waste of such pears was not to be endured. A large box trap proved useless, fire arms were practically unavailable, since no one could be kept watching till the unforeknown moment when the whisking thieves would appear.

So then what did we do, at the suggestion of a friend, but experiment with the familiar and very cheap, "tangle-foot" fly-catching paper. A very few sheets made two bands, one about two feet, the other about four feet from the ground, and around the main trunk and its few main divisions. This, with the temporary lifting out of a loose wooden hitching post, and the pruning off of a few topmost pear tree twigs, and lowermost of an overhanging shade tree, effected the complete prevention of any further loss of the pears. About two quarts of them were lost. Three pecks are now ripening for use, and for glad gifts to those who have none, or can get none.

This last use sends the thoughts straight from squirrel misdoers to small boy thieves, who know better, or ought to, and would, if properly taught at home, and in Sunday and day schools. Such should be heartily ashamed of acts so mean as to rob the poor of what kind friends would gladly give them, and so foolish as to steal unripe fruit which does nobody any good before ripe. I and near neighbors have thus been troubled this year as not before for several years, and earnestly hope, for the sake of the peace and pleasantness of the neighborhood, that the ten commandments, brightened and sweetened with charming Bible stories as in many a happy home I have known, will lift all our young boy hearts far above the possibility of doing anything so sadly wrong as to disobey the loving Heavenly Father who tells us all to love our neighbor as ourselves.

It pays the buyer to buy from an advertiser and to say he saw the article advertised in this or that paper. The man who mentions an advertisement when buying goods really gets the best possible service—even better than the regular customer when this is possible. Why? Simply because the advertiser pays good money for his advertisement and he is glad to hear from it. It is a compliment to his good business judgment.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Keith's Theatre—Another capital vaudeville program that will certainly prove as strong as any offered this season, is announced from Keith's theatre for the week of Oct. 9. The leading entertainers on the bill will be Staley and Birbeck, "the musical blacksmiths," who will present the quickest of all the lightning transformation acts seen in the varieties. The change is made from a drawingroom to a smithy, complete in every detail, in approximately two seconds, including changes of costume. Among the notable entertainers included in the surrounding show are Will H. Murphy, Blanche Nichols and company in their screamingly funny burlesque specialty, "From 'Zaza' to 'Uncle Tom';" Lew Bloom, the clever tramp comedian, and Jane Cooper, in the funny sketch, "Pictures from Life;" George Day, the popular blackface comedian; the Village choir, a mixed quartet of vocalists; Winona Winter, a pleasing comedienne; the Holdsworths, novelty banjoists and dancers, and Nibbe and Bordenaux, singers and dancers. Paul Conchas, who scored such a hit last week will be held over for another six days and Barron's burlesque managerie will continue to be the special feature of the juveniles. The usual new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph.

Majestic Theatre—"As Ye Sow" will be seen for the first time in Boston at the Majestic Theatre for a limited engagement beginning Monday evening, Oct. 9. The drama is the work of a minister of the gospel, the Rev. John Snyder, and it is the first play ever written by an American preacher. The Rev. Snyder calls his play "As Ye Sow," and he places the action in Cape Cod and its environs. The story concerns the affairs of the Rev. John St. John and his brother Frank. Both men love the same woman—Frank has married her under an assumed name and she does not know him as the brother of John St. John, whom she learns to love, thinking herself a widow and free to marry again. Just as the ceremony which is to unite her to the clergyman is about to be performed the brother re-appears to the great horror of the wife and the clergyman. The untangling of the knotty problem fills out the play. Incidentally there is much bright comedy and three or four minor love affairs. William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer, who make the production, have been lavish in expenditure. The presentation of "As Ye Sow" is their first joint enterprise since the production of "Way Down East."

Tremont Theatre—Three weeks more will conclude the engagement of "The College Widow" at the Tremont Theatre, the end coming October 28. This will give Ade's rattling comedy a record of ten weeks as a beginning of a long and comprehensive season. The richness of the dialogue and the author's positive genius in character sketching are to be added to the reckoning. Mr. Ade is keen for exposing pretentious humbug, and the philosophical side of his comedy is of equal interest with its humor. The author ingeniously contrasts his personages and the speeches he gives them, and when the laugh over something of a distinct comedy nature has subsided, something sententious follows in short. "The College Widow" is the typical American comedy, and that it is fully appreciated in Boston is shown by the fact that every seat in the Tremont has been occupied nightly for seven weeks, while hundreds have stood through each performance and other hundreds have been turned away for want of room.

Park Theatre—Next Monday, Mr. Charles Dillingham will present Thomas W. Ross in the new American comedy "A Fair Exchange" and seats are now on sale at the box office. Mr. Ross is the clever young comedian who made "Checkers" famous. In "A Fair Exchange" Mr. Henry Blossom the author would appear to have selected certain essentially American types of individuals around whom he has written a story of an intensely human character. His well established reputation for wit and humor stand him in good stead and the superstructure, so to speak, of "A Fair Exchange" is a charming love story of modern, every day people.

Literary Notes.

Did you know that President Roosevelt is of royal descent—a sort of far-removed cousin of King Albert Edward of Great Britain? That both men have in their veins the blood of Bruce and Wallace and other Scottish kings? That the presidents maternal uncles were Confederate soldiers and sailors, and that one of them was sailing master of the Confederate privateer Alabama when she was sunk by the Kearsarge? These facts and others scarcely less interesting are developed by Julia McKinley in an article published in the National Magazine for October. Portraits of the father and mother of President Roosevelt, and of several of his distinguished southern forebears, are given with the article. In the same number Frank Putnam's "Note and Comment" is devoted to a pungent discussion of "T. R., His Critics and Some Others." Yone Noguchi discusses the personality of Edmund Clarence Stedman, the famous poet and critic, and Charles Warren Stoddard tells the romantic story of "Ralph Keeler of Vagabondia." John P. Heap's "Future of the Negro in America" is quiet in tone but sensational in matter. Pushball, the new game, is illustrated in text and picture. Michael A. Lane, the social scientist, discusses "The Survival of Man." Stanley Waterloo, Christobelle van Asmus Bunting, James Ball Naylor, F. F. D. Albany and Ernest McGaffey are the story tellers of the number. Nathan Haskell Dole's noble poem, "The Founders," leads the poetic offerings. The magazine is liberally illustrated throughout. "Affairs at Washington," "Beauties of the American Stage" and "The Home"—the National's unique departments—are varied and readable. The frontispiece is a new, autographed portrait of Vice President Fairbanks, made expressly for the National in his library at home.

Civil Service

A civil service examination for clerk and carrier in the Newton Center, Mass. post office will be held in Boston, Mass., on Nov. 22, 1905 at 9 o'clock a. m. in order that an appointment may be made in the office, and future appointments as occasion may require.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 45 years and citizens of the United States. Male applicants must measure not less than 5 ft., 4 in. in their stocking feet, and weigh not less than 125 lbs in ordinary clothing. Medical certificates will not be required of applicants, but those who may receive appointments will be called upon to furnish the same before entering upon duty.

For the required application form, and a pamphlet of general information containing specimen examination questions, apply to Mr. H. F. Butler at the Newton Centre post office, of Edward E. Stebbins, Secretary Board of Examiners, Post Office Building, Boston, Mass. Applications should be promptly filled out and filed with the latter not later than 4.30 p. m. Oct. 16, 1905.

At the Churches.

The prayer meeting of the Young People's Society at the Immanuel Baptist church next Sunday evening will be in charge of Mr. Clarence V. Moore. The topic will be, "The Christian's Trials and Triumphs."

A consecration meeting of the Christian Endeavor society was held at the Auburndale Congregational church last Sunday evening. The topic considered was, "The Joys of Church Membership."

At the Immanuel Baptist church, Newton, Mr. William H. Short has been appointed head usher and will be in charge of the pews and sittings.

A business meeting of the Woman's Association was held Tuesday afternoon at Eliot church.

"Rally Day" was observed in the Bible School connected with the Immanuel Baptist church on Sunday. Mr. Pitt F. Parker gave an interesting talk on "The Handwriting on the Wall," illustrating with crayon sketches.

The first in the series of sociables to be held during the winter takes place in the parlors of the Eliot church next Thursday evening.

The Mother's Association held a meeting at the Auburndale Congregational church Wednesday afternoon. Miss S. M. Mills of Sutton was the guest and spoke on the topic, "Reading for Children and Young People."

A deacon is to be elected at Eliot church this evening. A sermon is to be preached appropriate to the occasion.

The new hymnal was used for the first time at the Newton Methodist church on Sunday. It is an attractive book in green covers and is designed for official use in the North and South.

The opening exercises of the Sunday School were held at Channing church last Sunday noon. Addresses were made by the minister and acting superintendent and a special musical program was rendered.

Next Sunday will be observed as Rally Sunday at the Newton Methodist church. At the morning service the pastor will preach a sermon appropriate to the work of the Sunday School.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society held at the Newton Methodist church last week the following officers were chosen: President, Mrs. H. S. Leonard; Vice President, Mrs. F. O. Barber; Secretary, Miss Clara Cushman; Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Bliss. At the social gathering vacation experiences were related by Mrs. Douglas, the Misses Clara Cushman, Laura Rice and Gladys Barber, Messrs Earl Barber and Harry Tower.

At St. Bernard's church, West Newton, last Saturday Bishop Brady of Boston administered the rite of confirmation to about 200 persons. Rev. Edward Costello of Brockton took part in the services and celebrated mass and several vocal selections were rendered by Mr. Henry E. Mozealous.

LIB

WOMAN'S WORLD

DR. ANNA W. BLOOMER.

New York Physician Who Has Won Fame and Wealth.

For a woman to climb to the top in the medical profession is a matter to wonder at, but when she earns $10,000 a year she strikes a hard blow to the almost universal masculine assumption of superiority. Dr. Anna W. Bloomer of New York has, however, attained this distinction in the arduous profession of medicine. Probably of all walks of life that of the physician seems most incompatible with preconceived ideas of feminine gentleness and love of ease. To be at the beck and call of all the city or county, to sleep at irregular hours, to bear exposure to all sorts of weather—hitherto this has been the part of a man. But the world moves rapidly in this new century, as Dr. Bloomer well exemplifies. In speaking of her calling she herself says: "Unless a woman has an unusual amount of vitality and endurance, the medical profession is no life for her. She must also not be too impressionable, else the troubles of other people will soon wear her away, although, on the other hand, she must not be adamant. There is a happy medium, though it is not easily found."

"In the beginning it is not pleasant work. One must accustom herself to seeing things that have never before been presented to her; she must take the bitter with the sweet. If a woman is a conscientious physician she can live a very happy life, for there is an unlimited chance for doing good to those about her. There are some men who strenuously object to women entering this profession, for a woman physician appreciates an encouraging word from her men colleagues more than anything else, for it gives her a certain amount of confidence in herself that she may have lacked for the simple reason that she knew the eagle eye of the profession was bent searching and earnestly upon her."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Look Out For Baby.

The food and feeding of an infant are beyond all doubt the most important questions with which mothers have to deal, says a writer in Home Notes. You may be sure that if your baby indulges in screaming fits its food is disagreeing with it. To eat and to sleep are the primary animal instincts which guide and safeguard the infant life.

I say safeguard because a baby's brain at birth is about 14 per cent of its entire body weight, an adult's being only in the proportion of 2.37 per cent of his weight; therefore, on account of this phenomenally rapid brain growth in infancy, a great deal of sleep is absolutely necessary—indeed a baby cannot have too much sleep. For this reason the ventilation of a nursery becomes of vital importance, so that a pure atmosphere and all conditions which conduce to healthful slumber may be assured.

Any excitement to the little brain growing so rapidly should be positively avoided, and may be regarded as dangerous. For this reason tossing a baby high in the air is a risky amusement.

Beauty Rules.

These are beauty rules that are highly recommended:

Never wash your face in very hot water unless you are going to steam it and cream it. Hot water takes the natural oils out of the skin and makes it dabby.

Don't wash your face at all if you want it fat. Keep rubbing in oils, but do not wash them out. Water baths will take the oils out of the face wonderfully. Perspire if you can. This makes the skin fine and soft. The flesh of the chest is soft because one perspires there, and so with the palms of the hand. They perspire freely and stay soft. The brow is soft and plump, but the cheeks are often hollow and thin, hard and full of pores. Try to sweat the face.

If you want a plump face drink plenty of water, but don't eat greasy foods. Greasy foods will make the nose red and the face break out. Try to let water be your main beverage, with cream and chocolate, cocoa and milk. These will plump out the cheeks like the cheeks of a baby. Don't let your face fill in for lack of teeth. There are too many good dentists in the land.

Making the Best of Things.

The gift that makes it possible to successfully cover up deficiencies is a rare one to possess. Every now and then you light upon a woman with no apparent talents, and yet with a veritable streak of genius in the way a palm is deftly arranged to cover this ugly corner or that, or a picture is hung at just the right angle to draw attention away from a water stain on the paper.

It is possible to acquire that quality, difficult as it may seem, by systematically finding the remedy. The back of a piano, for instance, if the only place in the room where you can put it hasn't enough wall space to hide the back, can be covered with tapestry or other hangings, and a low, wide stool moved up against it and piled high with cushions makes an attractive, cozy seat out of a very unattractive place.

There's no pretense called into play, nothing but a brave gift of making the best of things, and the effect upon every one who comes in contact with that sort of spirit is marked in the best sort of way.

The Rest of Changing Clothes.

Every woman should learn how to change her clothing. Take off the shoes you have been wearing all day and put on other shoes. The pinch will come in a different place. Take off the blouse you have worn all day and the collar which has been round your throat since morning and put on a different blouse and a different collar. You have no idea how a fresh blouse rests one, and especially a fresh piece of neckwear. The pinch goes on a different set of muscles. Changing the underwear is a good plan, and best of all is changing the corsets. The bones will rub, no matter how carefully you plan things, and a new corset makes you feel as though you were just beginning a day instead of just finishing one.

A Wrinkled Throat.

The following course of treatment will work wonders, it is said, with a wrinkled throat and flabby chin if persisted in faithfully: First wash the chin and throat in hot water. Moisture the finger tips with good cold cream and, starting with the left hand under the right ear, draw it briskly, but firmly, from ear to chin. Then take the right hand and repeat the movement from the left side. The pressure from chin to ear should be light, but under the chin the pressure should be firm. Ten minutes of this exercise should be followed by a douche of cold water, to which has been added a little astringent fluid, either a tincture of water or tincture of benzoin.

Tact in Conversation.

Tact is necessary for the good conversationalist. The woman who mentions the wrong thing at the wrong time and says things that were better left unsaid has no place in polite society. She lacks tact. She should study how to be tactful, how to be kind hearted, how to avoid hurting other people's feelings and when to stop talking. The good tactful conversationalist will know by a word or a sign when to stop. She will be observant and will never, even accidentally, tread upon the other woman's corns.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Wees of the Girl.

Whatever a girl does it seems inevitable that she should be laughed at, and she must learn to expect this. A few years ago she was called a "blue-stocking" for her devotion to learning, next an "empty headed, over-dressed doll," and now she is "a creature of iron muscles, of waistless symmetry, of biceps and ungainliness." Should she turn her energies to cooking and domesticity she becomes a "mere household drudge."—Cassell's Magazine.

Frying Fish.

The difficulty in frying fish can be quickly overcome if you use plenty of perfectly boiling fat. Dry the fish thoroughly and have sufficient fat for it to swim in. Let the fat throw off a blue smoke before using. Drop in only one piece at a time and cook till a light brown. Drain on thick paper before the fire for a few moments before serving.

Salted Milk.

Salted milk as a beautifier is to be used externally and is a wash that makes the skin fine grained and clear. It is an English remedy as old as the hills and so simple and harmless that it cannot be popular because there is a pervasiveness about feminine nature that inclines to costly and risky beautifiers.

Dusting Brush.

If a brush such as palaters use is used for dusting books the work will be much more satisfactorily done than with a cloth or a feather duster, neither of which can dislodge the fine particles of dust from the corners and crevices. It is also very useful for dusting picture frames, bric-a-brac and moldings.

Individuality in Attire.

It is said to be one secret of the Frenchwoman's success in matters of dress that her attire is individual, and even when simple and plain has generally a touch, a line, a something that pleases the eye by its variety while not detracting from the gown by undue prominence.

Varnished paint can be kept looking as bright as though freshly done by soaking in water some time a bag filled with flaxseed and then using it as a cloth to clean the paint.

Washing soda dissolved in boiling water cleanses and disinfects dental and stinks. It should be used daily for bedroom utensils.

Don't wear bracelets so tight that they affect the circulation or so loose that they rub on the wrist joints.

Hardwood floors and rugs are better than carpet on sleeping rooms.

SHUN THE PILLOW.

Life Flat If You Would Always Be Young In Form.

No longer does the girl of today have a pillow to rest her tired head on. She now studies the athletic side of the question, and athletics have determined that she shall lie perfectly flat with no pillow to support her tired head.

The exponents of the beauty class claim that the reason that our grandmothers were round shouldered was owing to the fact that they showed a decided preference for bolsters and pillows.

Consequently those showing an inclination to be straight, lithe of form and beautiful in figure have cast aside pillows as they would sweets that would cause them to develop fatty tissues.

The girl who is a student and burns the midnight oil may disclaim all knowledge of her study by not having a pillow to rest on at night, lying perfectly flat, and thus counteracting the round shoulder. A curve of the neck is developed that is enviable, while a straight back causes one never to thus lose her usefulness—in fact, a veritable Ponce de Leon fountain has been discovered through this medium, many claim.

Pillows are unhealthy, the physical culture advocates claim, so "beware of signs of age." Leave out the pillow, and you will always be young in form.

LOOK TO THE CLOSETS.

See That They Are Properly Aired, Cleaned and Dusted.

All closets need airing, cleaning and dusting as much as or more than any other part of the house—more, because they are shut up from the sun, that great purifier and deodorizer. In small apartments the shelves in the closets will be generally found packed tight with cardboard boxes or newspaper bundles, for there is so little space for storage in a modern flat or house that every inch of space has to be utilized.

The closet should be opened and left to air every week for a few hours at least. All clothing should be removed from the hooks and hung out on the clothesline to air. The heat of the sun will take all creases out of cloth and velvet garments and save pressing. If there are superfluous articles of clothing on the shelves these should also be removed.

Every cranny and nook should then be washed with naphtha and the painted surface washed with ammonia and water. The floor should be scrubbed and the door left open until the time arrives to replace the contents. If this is done early on a cleaning day it will not add much to the sum total of work to be accomplished, and all danger of moth and vermin and that disagreeable "musty" odor will be removed.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Castors on all heavy kitchen furniture will save strength and aid in keeping the kitchen clean.

Two pads the size and shape of kettle holders and sewed to a piece of tape are useful for lifting hot dishes out of an oven.

If a little ammonia is used every few days on brass faucets and tubes they will be kept bright and shining and with much less trouble than if polished only occasionally.

A saucepan in which rice, oatmeal or anything sticky has been cooked may be very easily cleaned by putting in a cupful of ashes when you take it off the fire and then fill with water.

A satisfactory way of preventing fish from tainting a refrigerator or any of its contents is to wrap the fish closely in a cloth wrung out of cold water. This will also prevent it from becoming hard and dry.

The Vanishing Home.

People who know what a home is are not so many as middle aged men and women think, and they who never had one will hardly be expected to join in the lament at its gradual disappearance. That it is going out of fashion there is no doubt. Every new pile of flats, every conversion of a dwelling to a boarding house, is a blow to the home. The modern family shifts from one tenement to another, loses or damages its goods in the transit, is constantly making new acquaintances, but as constantly losing the old, and is without quiet and retirement and peace. The older people regret the change; the younger have no standards by which to measure it.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Using the Toothbrush.

Frequently as a woman takes a toothbrush into her hand she rarely uses it properly. It does very little good to rub a brush across the teeth. To cleanse it must be rubbed up and down so that the bristles go into the crevices, as they cannot when the motion is across. Hold the brush firmly and rub it up and down, going carefully from the back teeth, that are too often neglected, to the front and then back to the other side. After brushing rinse the mouth with a fragrant wash. This will not only be strengthening to the gums, but will impart a pleasant odor to the breath.

Alice Stopford Green.

Alice Stopford Green, widow of the historian John Richard Green, is herself eminent in the same line, as the honors accorded her in England attest. She is a member of the committee of the London Library and of the board of history of London university, a life governor of University college, one of the board of governors of the School of Irish Learning, Dublin, and one of the vice presidents of the African society. Mrs. Green is an Irishwoman, born at Kells, County Meath. She has published numerous historical works.

OUR BIRTHDAY

The Graphic Enters Its 34th Volume With This Number

Facts Regarding the Splendid Growth of Newton's Leading Paper

It was on Friday June 13, 1873, that the first paper was printed. The editors were William W. Wood, who resides in this city, and Stillman B. Pratt. The former came here from South Framingham and the latter from Marlboro. They had looked over the ground pretty thoroughly and decided that a paper of the character they were prepared to establish would meet with public favor.

A greater part of the editorial duties rested upon Mr. Wood. He had also to superintend the mechanical part. In several rooms on the third floor of Brackett's block the first office of the Republican was founded. A cylinder press was operated with power supplied from the engine in Brackett's wood yard. Thus the Republican readers, at least those who favored Mr. Brackett with their patronage, were getting their supply of firewood cut into available lengths and their weekly budget of news speedily "run-off" through the energies of one machine.

The quantity of village or town news, even in those days, did not demand the amount of space and type now required. There were five 17-inch columns on each page and eight pages in each issue. Among the gleanings of the editor-reporter was this:

"One hundred and fifteen trains pass this station every day."

Advertisements were a feature in those years that did not fail to receive attention. It is the Graphic's proud boast that business men who then employed its columns as one of the best mediums for getting the trade of Newton people, are today using its space in greater quantity.

Kimball Bros. carriage manufacturers, perhaps the best known firm in New England, advertised in the Graphic 30 years ago and are advertising in it today.

Thomas F. Swan, wall-paper dealer at Cornhill, Boston, placed an advertisement in the Graphic more than 20 years ago. Today he is still satisfied to give it his patronage.

A popular criticism in the discussion of newspapers nowadays is the phrase "yellow journalism." Each reader has his or her idea of this "taint" for it may mean anything from the pyrotechnic introduction to a murder case to an uncomplimentary cartoon.

However, assuming that sensationalism is the fault let me show of what the Republican was once guilty. The editor's name was not mentioned in the issue from which I am about to quote. The Republican Publishing company was the owner.

It may have been that the editor was ill that day or that he had forgotten to read the proof of this particular story.

At any rate the man who is responsible did something which even in these days would make the Hearst papers look like as dry as a text-book on Latin grammar. Here is what he said in describing the feelings of a woman whose daughter had left home and for whom a vigorous search was being conducted: "Mrs. ——— is terribly calm and speaks with great composure, having either schooled herself to calmness or fallen into the lethargy of despair." Accompanying this was a reproduction of the young woman's picture. If it resembled her one readily understood her reasons for disappearing.

For effusiveness a record was made in the late 70's. Here is what was said of a well-known citizen:

"The election of Mr. E. W. Cate, clerk of the municipal court, to the presidency of the Newton High school alumni is a choice eminently fit to be made."

Now, is it any wonder that Mr. Cate has always spoken highly of the Graphic?

It was about this time that the editor, had his thing by poking a friend with this gentle thrust:

"Mr. ——— celebrated Washington's Birthday by taking to himself a wife. He has the sympathy of a large circle of friends."

On October 28, 1876, the headline writer made his appearance. Up to that time display heads as they are called, so common in the daily papers of today, were unknown to the conservative people of Newton.

The following, however, which tells its own story was what greeted them:

NEWTON WIDE AWAKE!

Grand Torchlight Procession in Honor of Ex-Gov. Claflin.

Most Brilliant Pageant Ever Seen In Newton.

The Route of the Procession Ablaze With Light.

The first wood cut, used as an illustration, was found in the Republican of Jan. 6, 1877. An extended editorial announcement pointed out what the readers might expect. Without entering into details one might say that the Newton Republican Publishing Company was seeking to favor the readers of Sunday newspapers with their favorite reading two days in advance.

As has been said Messrs Wood and Pratt were the first owners. In 1877 it became the property of the Newton Republican Publishing Company. Two or three years later Charles F. Rand purchased it and conducted it in connection with a real estate business.

It was at the time that the late Henry M. Burt and his son Frank H. Burt of Charlesbank road, became the owners (Oct. 21, 1882) that the name was changed to Newton Graphic. The elder Burt was publishing "Among the Clouds" on the summit of Mount Washington, the publication that has a worldwide fame and which is now so successfully handled by Mr. F. H. Burt.

Mr. Rand had removed the plant to that part of Lancaster block now occupied by the postoffice. The steam power was secured from the Blackwell laundry.

On March 7, 1885, Henry H. Boardman became editor. Among the changes he made was the placing of the Newton local items on the first page. On March 21 of the same year the Graphic and the Newton Transcript, the latter then published in West Newton, were consolidated.

Mr. Boardman was followed by Edward D. Baldwin who took charge April 1, 1886. Mr. Baldwin believed that the Graphic's growth demanded larger quarters and removed it to a one and one-half story building on Washington street, now the site of McCammon's shoe store in the Taylor building.

Some years later larger quarters were required and the removal to Centre place followed.

Five years ago the present management assumed control and a larger and more conveniently arranged building was secured.

The Graphic's home at 8, 10 and 12 Centre place meets the present demands, though every inch of available space is required. A Graphic Building we may next expect I am sure.

Roff-Elliott

Miss Elsie Cady Elliott, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Elliott of Maple street, Newton, was married to Mr. Archibald Allen Roff of Cohoes, N. Y., at the Unitarian church, Watertown, on Wednesday evening. The church was filled to overflowing with the many friends of the bride who is popular in both Newton and Watertown society. The edifice was decorated with large palms, white asters, laurel and clematis, the pews being roped off with the green laurel.

With the strains of the wedding march from the organ the six bridesmaids appeared at the pulpit and slowly marched down the stairs at each side, meeting at the chancel and passed to the rear of the church, where they met the bride on her father's arm, and the maid of honor. Turning, they preceded the bride and maid of honor down the centre aisle while the ushers marched down the two side aisles. The party met the groom and best man at the chancel where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter F. Greenman, pastor of the church.

The bride was becomingly dressed in liberty silk gauze, made princess style, with Duchesse lace and wore a veil. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Julie Edna Capen of Noroton, Conn., was gowned in pink tulle d'esprit and lace and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were mostly college friends of the bride at Smith, and were Miss Cassandra Kinsman of Salem, Miss Anna M. Wilson of Chicago, Miss Constance Richardson of Newtonville, Miss Alice Faulkner of Norwell, Miss Lucy Walters of Buffalo and Miss Helena Roff of Cohoes, sister of the groom. They wore white India mull and lace with Dresden bodices and carried pink roses.

The ushers were college friends of the groom, Harvard '03 and were Messrs. Walter Merrill of New York, James Torrey of Boston, Paul Harper and Joseph Moore of Cohoes, Herbert Schwarz of New York and Harmon Elliott of Newton, brother of the bride. The best man was Mr. Frederic Roff of Cohoes brother of the groom.

A wedding reception followed at the Elliott home on Maple street, Mr. and Mrs. Roff being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Roff and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott. The decorations here were chrysanthemums, asters and autumn foliage. Mr. and Mrs. Roff received under a wedding bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Roff will reside at 5 Collins avenue, Troy, N. Y., where they will be at home after January first.

The bride has been the recipient of much attention since the wedding has been fixed. Miss Wilson, one of the bridesmaids gave an elaborate luncheon to the wedding party at the Touraine, Boston, on Monday, at which the decorations were beautiful crimson roses. On Tuesday, the bride and bridesmaids were given a luncheon by Mrs. Albert S. Partridge of Oakleigh road, Newton, where violets were the favors. Miss Elliott was also given a shower of handkerchiefs, another of linen and a third of preserves, and her wedding gifts were many and beautiful.

Harwood-Sumner

Miss Elizabeth T. Sumner, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Sumner of Newton became the bride of Mr. Harry Adams Harwood of Medfield, Mass., on Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony took place at three o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, 102 Charlesbank road, and Rev. Dr. Alexander S. Twombly officiated.

The bride wore white crepe de chine, en train, trimmed with Duchesse lace and the usual tulle veil. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and swansonias. She was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Sumner, as maid of honor, dressed in Nile green crepe de chine with a deep lace bertha. Mr. Herbert Wilbur Hill of Stamford, Conn., was the best man and Messrs. Conrad M. Gerlach of Brookline, W. Babcock Swift of Wellesley Hills and Clement A. Holbrook of Medfield were the ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony until five o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Harwood being assisted in receiving their many friends by Mr. and Mrs. John S. Sumner, Mr. Willard E. Harwood, father of the groom, Dr. Chas. H. Harwood of Boston, Mr. Frederic E. Harwood of Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Conant of Medfield. The house was trimmed with wreaths of smilax, and effective masses of white and pink roses, banded with palms and ferns.

After a wedding trip through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Harwood will make their home at the Nottingham, Boston.

The bride is a graduate of Columbia University, New York, and the groom of the Mass. Institute of Technology. He is also a 3rd degree Mason and a Knight Templar.

Fisher - Hall

Miss Gertrude Davis Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thurber Hall, became the bride of Dr. Irving J. Fisher, of West Newton, last Friday evening at the Winter-Hill Congregational church, Somerville, on the birthday anniversary of the groom.

The church decorations consisted of a bank of tropical plants, with green and white foliage in the chancel. Baskets of asparagus fern were suspended from the chandeliers, while the green and white leaves of a trailing plant were effectively arranged at the front of the altar. The whole mass of greenery was arched by ropes of laurel. The pews of the families of bride and groom were distinguished by bouquets of white chrysanthemums and white ribbons.

Organist Edgar Jacobs Smith rendered a program of bridal music while the guests were being seated. The notes of the "Lohengrin" wedding march followed the ribboning off by the ushers promptly at 8 o'clock, and the bridal party passed down the central aisle. First came the ushers, Dr. Harris B. Haskell, of Auburndale; Dr. Peer P. Johnson of Beverly; Dr. Arthur T. Legg, of Boston; Herbert L. Felton, of West Newton; Myron C. Fish, of Providence, R. I.; and Herbert E. Stone, of Somerville. The bridesmaids and maid followed, Miss Gertrude E. Miles, of Wellesley Farms, Miss Amy B. Sylvester, of Somerville, and Mrs. Herbert L. Felton (nee West), of West Newton. All were attired in pink liberty silk gowns, with netted trimmings. They carried shower bouquets of golden gate roses. The maid of honor, Miss Ethel Bowman, wore white liberty silk, and carried golden gate roses.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white chiffon crepe, with duchesse lace bertha and veil. She carried a shower bouquet of anemones.

The groom entered by the side door at the front, and awaited his bride at the altar. Frank H. Wentworth, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. The Episcopal ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. Charles L. Noyes, while soft music was rendered on the organ, the couple kneeling during the prayer. The bride's Sunday school class showered her with rose leaves from the gallery as she made her departure.

Three hundred guests attended the reception at the home of the bride's parents, 365 Broadway, immediately after the ceremony. The adjoining residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Evans Fisher, parents of the groom, was also thrown open for the occasion, and the cramped entrances to the two houses were banded with palms and ferns. Dr. and Mrs. Fisher received under a lower of palms, nephrolepis, and Southern smilax. Pink and white flowers were used on the chandeliers and wreathed the doors and ceiling. In the adjoining parlor of Mr. Hall's residence bridesmaid roses were used, with smilax, for banking the mantels. The halls of both houses were trimmed with autumn leaves and asparagus fern. Two orchestras, one in each house, furnished music from behind tall palms in the hallways.

The double parlors of Mr. Fisher's residence were used for refreshments. White chrysanthemums and palms were used in the front room, while the red Richmond rose was beautifully entwined with green in the adjoining room.

Besides the bridal pair, the reception party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thurber Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Evans Fisher, parents of the bridal couple, Mrs. Sarah Fisher, grandmother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Wentworth. Mrs. Hall wore black Breton lace, over white silk, with rose point and jet trimmings. The groom's mother was attired in gray silk, with rare lace garniture. Mrs. Sarah Fisher wore black peau de cygne and lace.

After their wedding trip, Dr. and Mrs. Fisher will reside at Hillside terrace, West Newton, where they will be at home afternoons on the second and fourth Tuesdays after December 1.

Ensign - Page

The ceremony was performed at the Page residence 150 Church street at 7 o'clock, by the Rev. Wolcott Calkins assisted by Rev. Charles E. Hesselgrave of Chatham, N. J. The bride a petite brunette, was gowned in white marquisette over white satin, trimmed with point lace and wore the usual tulle veil. Her only ornament was a diamond crescent, the gift of the groom, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss A. Gertrude Ensign, sister of the groom, was the maid of honor and wore pale blue net over silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Edwin O. Childs, Jr., of Newton as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Philip Dana of Westbrook, Me., Alderman Thomas Weston, Jr., of Newton, Mr. Henry B. Patrick of Newtonville, Mr. Allan C. Emery of Newton, Mr. Albion L. Page of Madison, N. J., Mr. Laurence Stanley Page of Chatham, N. J., and Mr. Raymond F. Page of Denver, Col.

The reception was held at the Hunsell club, from 8 until 10 o'clock, the spacious rooms being beautifully decorated with white and pink chrysanthemums and southern smilax, the bridal party receiving before a screen of green and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Ensign were assisted by Mrs. Geo. Shepard Page, Alderman and Mrs. Charles S. Ensign, the maid of honor and the eldest brother of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of the late George Shepard Page of New York and has resided with her mother in Newton but a short time.

The groom is the only son of Alderman and Mrs. Charles S. Ensign of Billings park. He is a graduate of Harvard '09, of the Boston University Law School and was admitted to the bar in 1904.

Mr. and Mrs. Ensign were the recipients of many and valuable wedding gifts and after a wedding trip will be at home at 150 Church street, Newton, after December first.

Street Railway Notes

After a meeting by a committee from Needham with General Manager Brush of the Newton & Boston Street Railway Company on last Saturday, October 7th, arrangements were immediately made for carrying the through passengers between Watertown and Needham during the early hours when going to work, and the later hours when returning from work. These arrangements were gladly made by the road in compliance with the request of the parties affected, and it is believed now that the service given to those interested is entirely satisfactory. This practically gives a 15 minute schedule during the morning and evening out of Watertown and Needham.

At the Churches.

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society will be held Thursday at 3.30 at the Newtonville Methodist church.

At the Newton Centre Methodist church next Sunday morning the pastor Rev. R. T. Flewelling will preach on the topic, "The Prophecy of Wasted Opportunity."

Systematic Disinfection

Without going to the extreme of imagining danger where none exists, it is wise to have a systematic plan of disinfection; not by spasmodic efforts when an epidemic exists, or is threatened, but making a determined effort to keep the home in a healthful or sanitary condition at all times. The constant use of the well known bactericide Cabot's SULPHO-NAPHTHOL, the "modern cleaner," will maintain such conditions as no other agent will. Its use is constantly growing among all thoughtful and careful housekeepers who realize that one of the most important places to safeguard the public welfare is the home itself.

The Republican party, in the character and standing of its recently nominated candidates has clearly the confidence of the people of this Commonwealth. It is rarely that public sentiment so unanimously endorses the nomination of a new man for Governor, as it has in the person of General Curtis Guild, Jr. His achievements as a business man, as a soldier, as an orator and as a statesman combined to give him the gubernatorial nomination without a contest, and ensures his election to the highest office in the gift of the people.

The state ticket in other respects re-nominates old and tried officials except for the office of attorney general. The Hon. Dana Malone has many friends in this city who say that his success in the office to be which he will be elected is a foregone conclusion.

For the Senate, the Republicans have again nominated one of our own citizens, Hon. William F. Dana. In Mr.
Dana, the city has one of the most influential men at the State House. His work has made a great impression on the legislators and his unanimous election as President of the Senate last year is but an indication of the high regard he has won by hard, careful and thorough work as a law maker. His re-election as President of the Senate is certain and we predict that the legislation of 1906, under his careful scrutiny will maintain the high standard he set last year.

The Republican candidates for the House of Representatives are equally worthy of the support of the good citizens of this city, irrespective of party.
In re-electing Mr. James A. Lowell who will in all probability become House
Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and the titular leader of the House, Newton will certainly have a strong influence upon the popular branch. In nominating Mr. John F. Lottrop, for the position vacated by Representative Warren, the party has honored one of our most substantial citizens, whose conscientious, faithful work and sterling character will undoubtedly make him an influential member of the legislature.

We heartily endorse the entire Republican ticket and urge the voters to give its candidates their unqualified support,
"without a skip." Let Newton again roll up an old time Republican majority, and help swell the tidal wave which is due on November 7th.

Local automobilists should give due heed to the terrible accident last Sunday in which one life was sacrificed and two other persons seriously injured. The cause is not far to seek. Criminal carelessness of the public's rights in the highway and a reckless courage, worthy of a better object, are too often seen upon our own streets.

It requires some such atonement as that of last Sunday to open the eyes of a certain class of citizens, who regard the speed regulation of this commonwealth, as a personal reflection upon themselves and not a measure of public safety.

The Mothers' Rest of Newton Centre, through the enterprise of the ladies of that village has become so well known that we hope its financial future is already assured. Its work certainly deserves the generous sympathy of the people in this vicinity.

We have received many comments on the improvement in the typographical style and enhancement of the Graphic. We are grateful for the kind words of our friends and hope they will spread the good news among their neighbors.

Our infantile contemporary from the South Side, the Town Crier, has nearly discarded its swaddling clothes and has come out in an eight page form.
Brother Temperly has our best wishes for success.

Seeton - Tribble

Last Monday evening at 8.30 at the home of the bride's parents, 50 Chandler street, West Somerville, occurred the wedding of Miss Abigail M. Tribble, daughter of Hiram Tribble of West Newton, to Leonard E. Seeton of West Newton.
The house was prettily decorated for the occasion. Under an arch of roses, the knot was tied by Rev. E. F. Snell of the West Newton Baptist church. The bride carrying a bouquet of roses was attended in white silk the veil caught with a diamond brooch, the gift of the groom.
The bride was given away by her father Her charming sister, Adella acted as bridesmaid and her affianced Mr. Hollis Scott of Cambridge was best man.
They were recipients of many useful presents in cut glass and silverware.
Guests were present from Bethlehem and Manchester, N. H., Poland Springs, Maine, and neighboring places. Collation was served to seventy five after which the happy couple started on their wedding trip in an automobile. They will make an extended tour through the Berkshire Hills and Connecticut. After December first they will be at home, 12
Dunstan street, West Newton.

Howe - Rand

An autumn wedding of great interest in Newtonville, took place at five o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Miss Adelaide Almira Rand, the daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. James Henry Rand of 309 Newtonville avenue became the bride of Mr. Liverus Hull Howe, also of Newtonville.

While the ushers made an aisle of white ribbons through the assembled guests, the bride on her father's arm, and preceded by the maid of honor and bridesmaids came slowly towards the waiting groom and the Rev. Albert L.
Squier of the Methodist church who performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a princess lace gown over chiffon, a tall veil with orange blossoms, a circle of twenty two pearls, the gift of the groom and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.
The maid of honor, Miss Geneva S.
Thompson of North Tonawanda, N. Y., was gown in pink silk net over chif-fon, a bertha of point duchesse lace and carried white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Howe and Miss Mary Scribner Rand of Newton-ville and were dressed in white dotted lace over white taffeta, with bouquets of pink roses.

The best man was Mr. Albert Spaulding Howe of Brookline, and Mr. Frederick G. Melcher of Newton Centre, Mr.
L. G. Hodgkins of Melrose, Mr.
Wilbur Carey Phillips of Cambridge and Mr. James Henry Rand, Jr., of Newtonville were the ushers.

Following the ceremony the bridal party sat down to a wedding dinner, the guests being seated at small tables, that of the bride being decorated in green and white with a centre piece of white roses.

A largely attended reception was held from eight to ten the house being beautifully decorated with Southern smilax, laurel and chrysanthemums and the bride and groom receiving under a canopy of smilax and asparagus vine.

Mrs. James H. Rand was gown in lavender crepe de chine with rose point lace and Mrs. E. W. Howe was in black lace. Among the out of town guests were noted Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Rand, Mrs. Guy White, Mrs. Frederick Robertson, Mrs. E. E. Reynolds of North Tonawanda, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs.
George R. Rand of Buffalo, N. Y.

After a wedding trip to the mountains
Mr. and Mrs. Howe will reside at 409 Newtonville avenue and be at home after December first.

Cushman - Holland

Miss May Pearl Holland, the niece of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cushman, became the bride of Mr. Frank Vickers Cushman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred
H. Cushman, on Wednesday evening October 11th, the ceremony taking place at 919 Watertown street, West Newton, at 7.30 o'clock.

The matrimonial knot was tied by Prof. Henry C. Sheldon of Boston University, assisted by Rev. Dr. Henry Irving Cushman of the First Universalist Church, Providence, R. I., the bride being given away by her uncle.

The bride wore white silk muslin, trimmed with silk bands and lace, a long tulle veil and carried white carnations.

tions. The bridesmaids, Miss Helen M.
Cushman of Taunton, and Miss Eva A.
Sanderson of West Newton were dressed in white net with pink Dresden ribbons, and carried pink carnations. The flower girl was Miss Edith Perkins of Narragansett Pier. The ushers were Mr. George Wells Root of North Attleboro and Master Robert W. Cushman of West Newton.

A reception followed from eight until ten o'clock. Among the out of town guests were the Hon. Daniel R. South-wick, Jr., and wife of Hyde Park; Mrs.
Henry Irving Cushman of Providence,
R. I., Mr. and Mrs. George Rathbun and Mr. Reuben T. Holland of South Kingston, R. I., Mrs. Isaac Perkins and daughter Florence and Miss Minnie Briggs of Narragansett Pier, Mrs. John T. Wilson of Winchester, Mr. Frank Charnock, Miss Charnock and Miss
Eddie Charnock of Roxbury, Mr. Henry T. Root of North Attleboro, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charnock and son Percy of Medford, Mrs. George Harvey, Mr.
James Cushman and Mr. Theo. Cushman brother of groom of Taunton, Mass.

The house was prettily decorated with pink and green, the chandeliers being also draped with green and hung with bells.

Late that evening, the bride and groom left amid a shower of confetti for a wedding trip to Springfield and New York.

Automobile Accident

Last Sunday afternoon about one o'clock, an automobile containing Senator George F. Fulford of Brockville, Canada, William T. Hanson of Schenectady, N. Y., and the chauffeur, Louis E.
Zeriah of Albany, N. Y., came in collision with an electric car going north, at the junction of Beacon and Walnut streets at what is known as Kerry Cross. The automobile was hurrying towards Boston and immediately followed another machine which contained the ladies of the same party, who were touring from Albany to Boston.

It is not known whether the dust raised by the car ahead, prevented Zeriah from seeing the electric, but at all events he was unable to turn into Walnut street and parallel the car as evidenced from the fact that the machine struck the electric near the front end.
The impact was sufficiently hard to take the car from the rails and it ran quite a number of feet towards the side of the street. The automobile was smashed the body turning completely round.

As a result of the accident, the chamfeur Zeriah is dead, after suffering until Wednesday morning at the Newton Hospital from his injuries.

Senator Fulford was cut about the head and face and his right leg dislocated. Mr. Hanson was cut and bruised and suffered severely from the shock.

Two nurses happened to be upon the electric car and hastened to the relief of the injured, and the police ambulance responded promptly to take them to the hospital.

So far as learned no blame attaches to the street car company, altho as an additional precaution, orders have been issued requiring all cars to stop before crossing Beacon street. Travel was stopped on the Walnut street line for about two hours, while the wreckage was cleared away. The rest of Senator Fulford's party are stopping at the Woodland Park Hotel.

Clancy - Witham

Miss Winifred Witham, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Brown of Linden street, Newton Upper Falls, was married to Mr. John Willard Clancy on Wednesday afternoon Rev. O. W.
Scott officiating.

The Brown residence was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and dahlia, and the bride wore white chif-fon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clancy are to spend their honeymoon in Vermont after which they will reside on Wetherell park. They were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

Rev. Father Lee

Rev. Thomas Lee, curate of the Sacred Heart parish at Newton Center, died Saturday at the Carney hospital in Boston of heart disease. He was one of the best-liked priests in Newton. He had been unable to carry on his work at the parish for the past year owing to his illness. He was the son of Edward Lee of Lawrence, in which city he was born. He attended Villanova college in Pennsylvania and St. John's seminary, Brighton, where he was ordained six years ago. He was aged 32. Besides his parents he leaves two brothers, Robert and Edward.

The funeral was held at St. Mary's church, Lawrence, Tuesday morning, solemn high mass of requiem being celebrated at 10 o'clock by Rev. D. J.
Wholey of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Newton Centre. The Rev. F. J.
Hughes of the Sacred Heart church, Cambridge, served as deacon and the Rev. D. J. Heffernon of St. Peter's church, Lowell, as sub deacon. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. John B.
Peterson of Brighton Seminary. The bearers were Edward L. Arundel, Dr.
Joseph Hogan, Dr. J. J. McEvoy, Dr.
Walter Reardon, James Holihan and Thomas Holden of Boston. The interment was in the Immaculate Conception Cemetery, Lawrence.

In the large cities of Europe, the purchase and sale of so-called antiques is principally conducted by those who have found it more profitable to deal in reproductions and imitations than in the real article. The demand for genuine articles, of ancient or historical interest seems, in a large degree, to be supplied with those of false or uncertain record. Years of study in the best Museums of Europe, can only suffice in securing that judgment which may enable the critical buyer to select the genuine. Mr. Shepherd offers to his friends and patrons the experience of twenty-eight journeys through the length of Europe, visiting its galleries, museums and shops, with the one purpose of securing genuine articles of artistic, ancient or historical interest.

Police Paragraphs.

For some time past, residents of Oak Hill have been much annoyed every pleasant Sunday by a party of men and boys who have come along Dedham street from the direction of West Roxbury, playing some kind of a game in which an iron ball weighing ten pounds is thrown, first in one direction and then another. Nets are made as to the length of the throwing and about every man in the crowd has a bottle of liquor. Efforts to arrest them have usually failed as they have runners out who keep them informed of the police. Last Sunday morning was a little different, however, as Sergeant Clay located his men in the woods and at the proper time, swooped down upon the crowd and captured four men who later gave their residence as Charlestown. In court Monday morning each was fined $5.00.

Royal Arcanum

Mount Ida Council, Royal Arcanum, held an interesting meeting on Monday evening.

The special business of the evening was a report from the committee appointed to co-operate with the so-called "Committee of Fifteen" in opposition to the new rates.

Brother Abbot Bassett, chairman of the committee, made a long report, transmitting to the council what had been reported to the Boston Convention, by the "Committee of Fifteen."

This committee went to Put in Bay and tried to get a fair presentation of their case to the Supreme Council. It seemed to them that they were thwarted in every way and not received in the spirit which should be shown towards men earnestly protesting against what they believed to be a mistaken action. They were impressed with the idea that the Supreme Council were bound to stand by their guns and to make no concessions.

Brother Barrett and Brother Shirley presented the legal status of the case and assured the Council that there was a good fighting chance to win in the courts.

The sentiment of the meeting was all one way. Some very bitter remarks were made against the supreme officers not only for what they had done in raising rates but for a circular sent out forbidding members to express themselves on the question. American citizens do not relish "gag laws." To show what a close corporation the Royal Arcanum is, it was stated that the law-making power, the Supreme Council is composed of 115 members. 77 of these are elected representatives and 38 are salaried officers, chairmen of committees appointed by the Supreme Regent, life members etc. These latter always stand together. Every measure must have a two-thirds vote. It takes but one or two members which the 38 members of the royal family have to pull over from the representatives in order to get enough to block any measure.

Grand Secretary Boynton said that he had never changed the idea that he first entertained to the effect that the new rates were "outrageous." He believed we should get to work at once and start a movement which would give us new officers who would conduct affairs with wisdom and discretion. He had been called upon by hundreds of men who, with tears in their eyes had told him that they must give up the only insurance they had been able to carry. He thought the new rates all wrong. Collector Bailey stated that Mt. Ida Council had already lost fifty members and would lose many more. "Our new rates," said he, "are 73 per cent of what insurance companies charge and we are insured only from month to month. We get no benefit whatever from reserve funds, no extension of term, no drawback. Is it a wonder that men shrink at the new rates. Those who have gone out are mostly young men who have lost confidence in us. The old men will go when the new rates pinch them."

A subscription was recommended for a campaign legal fund and every one present contributed. The papers state that there is a change in sentiment and that members are resigned to the new rates. There is no evidence of resignation to fate from a single member of Mt. Ida Council. The protesting cry has not diminished. The committee was continued and instructed to keep up the fight.

Public Meeting

All citizens interested in the organization of a Nonantum Improvement Association are requested to meet in Atheneum Hall, Dalby St., Thursday evening, October 19th, 1905 at eight o'clock. It is expected that members of the several Improvement Associations of Newton will be present and address the meeting.

William S. Bowen, Temporary Chairman.

Post Office Notes

Postmaster George H. Morgan has been authorized by the Washington authorities to employ two more letter carriers in Newton. The carriers have already been appointed and one will be connected with the West Newton office and the other with the Newton Highlands office. This will give Newton Highlands and vicinity the long wanted three daily deliveries as the other sections of the city have had for several years. This makes a total of 37 carriers regularly employed in the city other than substitutes.

Mrs. Chas. J. Little

Mrs. Harriet A. Little the wife of Mr. Charles J. Little died at her home on Breamore road, Newton, on Sunday afternoon after a brief illness with heart trouble. Mrs. Little was a native of Jewett City, Conn., where she was born sixty six years ago. She has resided in this city for six years and is survived by her husband and one daughter, Miss Grace Little.

Funeral services were held from her late home on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dr. E. E. Strong in charge, Mr. J. C. Bartlett of the Albion quartet sang, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "Some where." The interment was in the Newton Cemetery.

Col. E. J. Bliss of West Newton has an interesting article in a recent number of the Pittsfield Sun on the 64th Annual Cattle Show at Great Barrington from which we clip the following clever introduction:

"The comments of the writer are always only the observations of a spectator who has nothing at the fair except a hand of fellowship that is always extended to everybody whose acquaintance he enjoys, and who is always ready to be introduced to the rest of creation irrespective of creed, color or previous condition of servitude. It is not a report, but simply the reflections of what a seer went forth to see and hear; a sort of go-as-you-please writer who has not been 'seen' by any exhibitor on the grounds, any of the drivers of horses, or the fakirs of fakes."

A Curious Occurrence

Early Monday morning, when Condrin's milk wagon was on its rounds on Watertown street, Nonantum, the driver noticed a well dressed young man, running close behind the team. He drove faster to shake the fellow off but the man only sprinted a little harder. When the driver had to stop he went toward the man flourishing a heavy milk can and asked his business, but the man simply stood, hat in hand and would say nothing.

For over an hour this performance was kept up while the milk wagon covered its route through Nonantum and Newton. At last when on Pearl street the fellow dropped down exhausted and the driver left him in the road until his return when no trace of the runner could be found. It is presumed he was demented.

FOR GOVERNOR— CHARLES W. BARTLETT

His Election Will Convince Congress that Massachusetts is in Earnest in its Demand for Free Hides, Coal, Iron Ore, Lumber and Wood Pulp.

Charles W. Bartlett, citizen, soldier, advocate, was born in Boston August 12, 1845. His parents removed to East Cambridge a few years later, where he attended the public schools. At the age of 11 he was a pupil of the Putnam Grammar School and much interested in his studies, but he was compelled to give up his school and go with his parents who removed to a farm in the town of Lee, N.H., where the educational advantages were not equal to those of Cambridge.

However, the boy was possessed with a desire to secure an education, and what time could be spared from the many duties he found to perform upon a rocky farm, he attended the district school of Lee. There are still living in New Hampshire quite a number of people who knew Gen. Bartlett at this period of his career, and who tell with pride of the efforts of a dutiful son to aid his parents in getting a living on a rented farm, while at the same time striving to secure an education. It is related by one who knows the early life of Gen. Bartlett that he was an omnivorous reader, devoting the long winter evenings after the farm work was completed to careful study and reading of such books as he could secure. It was in that New Hampshire home, devoid of everything but the bare necessities, that the successful advocate of to-day grounded himself in the rudiments of law and history. He was a good farmer and a good student, and the habits of early life imposed upon him by a lack of wealth and opportunity make him thorough in all he does, perfectly frank, open and honest.

Determined to secure an education, opportunity came to attend for two short terms a small academy at Andover, N.H. While enjoying this, to him great privilege of attending an academy, he continued his studies in private. It was his great good fortune at this time to form the acquaintance of Jeremiah Smith, at present a professor at the Harvard law school. Prof. Smith had graduated from Harvard and was living at the Hale farm, near the home of Mr. Bartlett. He interested himself in the Bartlett boy, encouraged him to study, and aided him in many ways, particularly by hearing him recite the lessons learned.

The pinch of poverty was increasing, however, and as the season grew more suitable for farming than for study, young Bartlett was compelled to relinquish his studies and go to work as a bread winner. He worked as a laborer in a crew that traveled about the state compressing hay into bales. This was hard work, and the hours were from daylight to dark; but two months of such labor enabled him to accumulate money with which to assist in his education.

At the breaking out of the war he was about 16 years of age, and he was extremely anxious to join his schoolboy comrades and enlist, but being an only son he could not secure the consent of his parents, and at this time could not go to the front. Later, however, he secured the consent of his father, and he promptly left the New Hampshire home, went to Boston and enlisted as a private in Company A, 5th Massachusetts regiment. He served his term of service and was mustered out in November, 1864.

When he returned home from the war, he resumed his studies at the academy at Andover, N.H., where some boyish prank brought him into conflict with the academy authorities, which resulted in his leaving the school. With a determination characteristic of the man, the boy was more than ever desirous of securing an education, and without saying a word to anyone he went to Dartmouth College, and there took the entrance examinations. One of the many branches in which he was examined he never studied, but it was here that his great reading and retentive memory came to his aid, and not only in this particular branch, but in all others, he successfully passed the examination. He learned in the month of June of his success with his examinations. Then arose the momentous problem of providing the necessary money to defray his expenses. Inspired with a worthy ambition, he sought work to earn the money. The best thing obtainable was employment as a laborer with a bridge-builder. He accepted the opportunity gladly, and was put to work with other men at the dangerous work of building a cofferdam. He continued in the employ of the bridge builder until the college year opened in September. With the money thus earned young Bartlett entered Dartmouth College, and managed to get along until the winter vacation came.

In those days it was customary to permit deserving students to leave college to teach for brief periods country schools throughout New England.

Availing himself of the opportunity to replenish his depleted funds, he went to Taunton, Mass., and there in that section of the old Cape Cod town known as Hogsbuck, young Bartlett made his first appearance as a school teacher. He was successful in his teaching, and with the money accumulated he went back to Dartmouth College for the spring term.

After completing his studies at college that spring he went into the hay fields as a laborer, and followed the harvest from the lowlands to the uplands. With the money earned he went to college for the fall term, later returning to Cape Cod to teach a brief term at Wellfleet. This was a rather peculiar school, in that it was made up principally of those healthy young Cape Codders who passed most of the year in deep sea fishing, returning home for a brief period in winter. There were between 50 and 60 of them, and they were a studious, well-behaved lot and seemed to realize that it was important that they should make the most of their scant educational opportunities.

From Wellfleet Bartlett returned to college for another term, when an urgent request came for a teacher to take charge of a school in which the pupils had been running things to suit themselves. The president of the college sent word that he had two men, either of whom were capable of undertaking the task. One of them was Gen. Bartlett, and the other was Judge Maynard, now of the Superior Court of Massachusetts. Gen. Bartlett was sent out to take charge of the school, and as in almost all his undertakings he was successful. This school was at South Gardner, Mass. Later he again taught at Wellfleet.

While in college Gen. Bartlett was a member of the D. K. E. fraternity. After he graduated from college in the class of '69, he received a proposition to teach the high school at Salmon Falls, N.H. There had been considerable trouble and one term had been broken up. He took charge of the school and taught it peaceably.

In the meantime at every opportunity he had been studying law, and soon after completing his college course he entered the Albany, N.Y., law school. He completed the course, and was admitted to the bar of New York in 1871. Gen. Bartlett returned to his New Hampshire home and entered into a law partnership with Samuel M. Wheeler of Dover, N.H. He remained there two years, and then started for New York city by way of Boston. When he arrived in Boston he met a friend with whom he had business transactions in New Hampshire who wanted him to take charge of some legal matters in Boston. Gen. Bartlett demurred, saying he had no office or facilities for work, and was on his way to New York. He was induced to call at the office of N. B. Bryant, an attorney, and explain the situation to him. Mr. Bryant very generously gave Gen. Bartlett a desk in his office, and invited him to remain just as long as he wished. The result was that Gen. Bartlett occupied that desk for 13 years.

Gen. Bartlett is the senior member of the firm of Bartlett & Anderson, one of the most prominent and successful law firms of Boston. He is a past commander of John A. Andrew post 15, G. A. R., and resides in Dorchester with his wife. He has been a member of the Suffolk County Bar association since it was founded, and is a member of the Curtis club, the Taylor club and the New Hampshire club, and is president of the Dartmouth Educational association and a member of other Dartmouth alumni associations. He is a man of simple habits, loves horses, baseball, football; but his greatest enjoyment he secures from his home life.

Gen. Charles W. Bartlett is an ideal man for the honorable position of governor of this commonwealth. He is scrupulously honest and fearless. He would represent in the executive office the interests of the whole people. Special interests asking favors at the expense of the people would receive no consideration. He is an advocate of reciprocal trade treaties with all countries, and with Canada in particular. He believes in a revision of the tariff to meet the requirements of the welfare of our New England industries. He has the confidence of the business interests, is trusted by the farmer, and the workmen will find in him a true friend.

Voters of Massachusetts are urged to cast their ballot for Charles W. Bartlett, and thus emphasize the appeal to Congress for relief from the tariff burden which threatens to crush the life out of industrial New England.

"For the benefit of Massachusetts industries, I believe that Congress should place upon the free list hides, coal, iron ore, lumber and wood pulp, and that duties upon manufactured and other articles be reduced wherever possible. I am also convinced that reciprocal trade treaties should be made by this country with Canada and other nations."—CHARLES W. BARTLETT.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Keith's Theatre—Another big vaudeville program is announced from Keith's for the week of Oct. 16. Clay Clement, supported by a competent company will present a delightful one-act comedy, "The Baron's Love Story," which is a condensed version of "The New Dominion." The playlet tells a pretty love story in an interesting manner, the character of the Baron being admirably interpreted by Mr. Clement. Salerno, one of the foreign bookings of the Keith circuit and the most expert and dexterous juggler ever seen in this country, will also be included in the bill, and the three Seldons, another European act presenting a series of handsome and artistic white face reliefs, are sure to be prime favorites especially with artists and art lovers. The surrounding program is a notable one including the "Three Keatons, with little 'Buster,' the cutest bundle of jollity that ever wiggled himself into the hearts of an audience; Lee Harrison with an original monologue; John Eberly, a pleasing baritone soloist; the LaVine Cimeron trio, comedy acrobats and dancers; Mr. and Mrs. Darrow, in an exhibition of sand and smoke pictures and shadow-graphs; Corbly and Burke, Irish dialect comedians, singers and dancers; the Valdings, wonderful double trapeze performers, and McGloine and Smith, in a singing and dancing skit. The customary new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph.

Grand Opera House—When the present day history of the stage shall become a matter of record, "Sherlock Holmes" will unquestionably occupy prominence among the greatest of all genuine successes. With a London run of one entire year, and subsequent prosperity for three hundred performances at two of New York's most popular play houses to begin with, a road experience fairly out-rivaling any play precedent of recent years, as an attraction of popular quality followed, and today no other instance of cordial esteem can be cited to compare with that in which William Gillette's adaptation from Sir A. Conan Doyle's unpublished Secret Service yarn is held. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Colonial Theatre—Mr. Charles Dillingham announces the annual appearance at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, on Monday, October 16, of the celebrated prima donna, Miss Fritzi Scheff, and her company, in an entirely new and original comic opera entitled "Mlle Modiste," by the distinguished composer, Victor Herbert, while the libretto and lyrics are from the pen of Henry Blossom. Mr. Charles Dillingham has this year succeeded in securing for Miss Scheff an opera from America's most popular composer. The combination has already proved itself a very happy one, since it was that delightful opera, "Babette," whose tuneful melodies have become part of the current musical literature of America, that first brought Miss Fritzi Scheff before the public at a star of comic opera. Mr. Charles Dillingham has arranged for Fritzi Scheff to make twenty-one appearances in Boston this season, including Saturday matinees on Oct. 21-28 and Nov. 4.

Majestic Theatre—"As Ye Sow," a Massachusetts play, written by a Boston clergyman, had its first "home" presentation at the Majestic Theatre last Monday evening and made a hit. William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer are given to establishing precedent which later become good theatrical law. They established several last Monday evening. First, they have proved a man may be a prophet in his own country, for the Rev. John M. Snyder's work received a warm welcome at the hands of his neighbors. Next they demonstrated a straightforward "human interest" play properly cast and properly staged, can be made more "the thing" in Boston than a musical comedy or an Ibsen fad. And finally, with an audience that crowded the theatre long before the curtain went up, with hundreds left outside clamoring for an opportunity to buy seats, with that audience made up of every class from gallery boy to society leader, with a representation of the Clergy never seen before in any theatre in America, they proved conclusively that "As Ye Sow" is undoubtedly going to be one of the most popular amusement attractions which Boston has had for many a day.

Castle Square Theatre—The production of "Cleopatra" at the Castle Square Theatre next week will be an extremely notable event. The play demands careful preparation and scenic equipment of the most elaborate order, and every care will be taken to make the production historically accurate and beautiful. The part of "Cleopatra" will be played by Miss Lillian Keable, and the Marc Antony will be Mr. John Craig. The entire stock company at the Castle Square will be enlisted in the presentation of "Cleopatra," and a large cast of extra people will also be engaged in order to fill out the pictures of Egyptian life. A week from Monday, "The Sword of the King," a romantic melodrama made popular by Henrietta Crossman two seasons ago, will be given at the Castle Square.

Tremont Theatre—"The College Widow" continues in its congenial role of record-breaker at the Tremont Theatre, but must abandon this pleasant and profitable field shortly, and undertake the long tour planned for it. Only two weeks remain, the seats being on sale for all performances to come. The success of George Ade's latest comedy is not difficult of analysis. Any one can recognize its cleverness in dialogue and character-sketching, and, moreover, every one is infected with the buoyant, youthful spirit of the story. It is not easy to recall a play in which so many healthy, wholesome young people are introduced. A man need not to have been college-bred to recognize its accuracy, because it deals with things with which almost everyone is familiar; its very light-heartedness moves an audience. "The College Widow" will be followed on October 30th by Henry W. Savage's great company, presenting grand opera in English.

How Editors Get Rich

After a good deal of study and work it has at last been figured out why so many country editors get rich. Here is the secret of success. A child is born in the neighborhood, the attending physician gets $10, the editor gives the long-lunged youngster and the "happy parent" a send-off and gets $5. It is christened; the minister gets $10, and the editor $50. It grows up and marries; the editor publishes another long-winded flowery article and tells a dozen lies about the "beautiful and accomplished bride," the minister gets $10 and a piece of cake, the editor gets $500. In the course of time it dies, and the doctor gets from $25 to $100, the minister perhaps gets another $15, the undertaker gets from $50 to $100; the editor publishes a notice of the death and an obituary two columns long lodge and society resolutions, a lot of poetry and a free card of thanks, and gets $5000. No wonder so many country editors get rich.—Newspaperdom.

About Town

The ladies certainly worked hard for the Mothers' Rest.

When you see a gypsy moth egg cluster, just cut it off with a knife and burn it. If the task looks too great, telephone the Street Dept.

What jolly times indeed, the brides of today are having in the round of pleasures furnished by their friends.

Politically, Newton is about as dead a place as the proverbial Chelsea. Indeed, that city beats us all hollow in political activity.

Municipal politics are still slumbering, the cut and dried policy of the political machine causing an early frost.

An improvement association for No-nantum would be a welcome addition to our civic organizations. There is plenty of work in sight for it to do.

It is rumored about police headquarters that Mrs. Martin, the genial matron is getting herself in condition for her annual walk to Boston.

The lack and great need of a suitable public hall in Newton is more noticeable than ever this autumn. It was bad enough when the armory hall was restricted to the use of the militia but now that the state police prohibit theatricals in Temple Hall there is no place on the north side for social and public functions. "The Players," that amateur dramatic organization whose record for excellent productions is of the best has no home or suitable place to continue its work and the Read fund lectures have to be held in the comparatively small hall in the Bigelow school. Here is an opportunity for a "Rindge," a "Farlow" or some man of like stamp to do the city a service and perpetuate his name as one of Newton's philanthropists.

The small boy is in evidence now with bag and stick. The squirrel must be up early mornings or his supply of nuts for winter use will become the property of "Young America."

Rev. Dr. Bronson, during his residence in Newton, was noted for his vigorous sermons and practical common sense. He has evidently still plenty of the latter quality as was shown on Sunday at St. Mark's church, Brookline, when he introduced our popular young mayor as a coming possibility for chief executive of the old Bay State.

Cupid must have been busy the past summer as the number of weddings this week will testify.

REPUBLICAN CLUB

Issues Statement to Voters on West End Railway and Legislature

The Republican Club of Massachusetts got into the campaign yesterday. It held a meeting at its rooms, 10 Milk street, and a committee prepared and issued an address directing attention to the charges, and the investigation made, relative to the passage by the Legislature of 1890 of the act "to authorize the West End Street Railway Company to build elevated railroads." Henry M. Whitney, the present Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, being then president of the corporation in question.

To the voters of Massachusetts:

An act "to authorize the West End Street Railway Company to build elevated railroads" was before the Legislature in 1890, and was approved July 2 of that year. There had been so much said about the methods by which the passage of this act had been secured that on June 12, 1890, the following order was passed by the House:

Ordered: That a special committee be appointed to inquire into the methods used for and against applications for legislation concerning elevated railroads. This special committee investigated the charges made by Mr. George Fred Williams against the West End Railway Company. The first charge was "that the West End Railway Company had maintained a large corps of lobbyists and legislative counsel and made expenditures through them and its officers beyond any legitimate purpose in securing legislation," and the committee reported that $24,708.62 was the amount of expense incurred for the purposes set forth in charge 1.

The committee found "that the testimony as to the number of persons employed and as to the sums paid to them, or still remaining to be paid, indicates to the committee that the West End company has made a bad practice distinctly worse. The committee can hardly believe that other applicants for legislation have spent such large sums of money in endeavoring directly and indirectly to influence legislative action, or have bestowed their retainers with such a lavish hand."

Mr. Henry M. Whitney was president of the West End Street Railway Company at the time of this investigation, and had been for two years and a half, ever since the road was incorporated. At this time, when the use of improper influences to affect the action of state legislatures is so widely and justly condemned, it is well for Massachusetts now to elect Mr. Henry M. Whitney Lieutenant-Governor, and thus put the seal of her approbation upon the methods which were employed to secure West End railway legislation in 1890 when he was president of that corporation?

The Republican Club of Massachusetts, by Grafton D. Cushing, President.
Charles B. Barnes, Jr., Secretary.

Mr. E. H. Greenwood

Mr. Ebenezer Henry Greenwood, for forty years a resident of Newton Highlands, died yesterday morning at his home on Hartford street after a brief illness of pneumonia. Mr. Greenwood was a native of Needham, Mass., where he was born seventy-eight years ago.

For many years he conducted a successful seed business in Boston and after taking up his residence in Newton Highlands, he was engaged in the grocery business. This was sold in 1888 to Mr. Erastus Moulton. Mr. Greenwood continuing as his assistant.

He was a loyal member of the Congregational church and its various societies. In 1888 he was elected a member of the Common Council from Ward 5, and served one year.

Mr. Greenwood was twice married, one son, Mr. Albert Greenwood of Newton Highlands and his second wife, who was Miss A. Carrie Brackett, surviving him.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from his late residence on Hartford street.

Last week Wednesday, the Parsons School named in honor of Rev. Moses Parsons, of Byfield, was dedicated at Summer Academy, Senator Lodge and Dr. Perrin of Boston University made addresses. The building was given by Mrs. S. P. Forbes, the library contributed by Mrs. Emily Morgan, and named for Judge Nathaniel Byfield. The latter was an ancestor of Messrs. Abram and Geo. D. Byfield of this place. Among those present were Mrs. G. D. Byfield, Miss Eleanor Magarity, Mr. C. E. Lord and Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Gay.

The letter printed below is of interest by showing the place Newton has in the heart of one of its sons, although he is no longer a resident. It was written from Madrid, Spain, in answer to a letter from one of the Committee having charge of raising the funds for the purchase of the Clavin estate for a high school athletic field and other municipal purposes. The letter is as follows, except for the superscription and signature:

"Yours of August 28th. has just reached me here as I am touring in Spain at present with my old friend — of Boston, whom I think you have met. While I haven't been a resident of Newton for eight years, having taken a permanent residence in England, yet I am deeply interested in everything connected with the city where I was born and always lived and where my ancestors for eight generations also lived and died and I am glad to contribute toward the cause you bring to my attention. I will send you $500 as soon as I get home to England in October and I am sure you will understand it isn't practicable to do so while away on a holiday."

Yours truly,

Erastus Moulton & Son,
Newton Highlands.

Dear Sirs: The Fair Ground buildings, Cobleskill, N. Y., were painted Devco last year.

Two other paint agents said the job would take 150 gallons (their price was 15 cents less a gallon).

Our agent said not over 125.

It took 115. We saved 'em at least $10 on paint and labor.

The American House, Tannersville, N. Y., was painted two coats last year; not Devco.

Mr. Charles Haner, across the street, put on one coat Devco.

Mr. Witte (American House) is sorry he didn't paint Devco. Haner's one coat was better than Witte's two.

Depends on the paint.

Yours truly,

At the Churches

In addresses before an annual gathering of the South Middlesex Federation of Young People's Religious Unions, at the Unitarian church, Newton Centre, Sunday, Albert R. Vail of Harvard divinity school and the Rev. John M. Wilson of Lexington urged that more enthusiasm be given in the religious work of the young people.

"Emphasis Needed in Religion," was the subject of both addresses by these speakers, and each gave practical illustrations of what can be accomplished by earnest work.

Many delegates from the southern sections of Middlesex county were present. Devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Morgan Millar, pastor of the Newton Centre church.

Luncheon was served by the Hale Union of Newton Centre. The evening service was conducted by the Rev. George H. Reed of Belmont. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Crothers of Cambridge.

At the recent annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society held at the Newtonville Methodist church it was voted to hold the annual bazaar Dec. 5, 6, 7. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. A. H. Soden; vice president, Mrs. Calvert Cray; cor. sec., Miss Caroline Gilman; rec. sec., Mrs. W. P. Soule; treasurer, Miss Nellie Wells.

A largely attended Sunday School rally was held at the Newton Methodist church on Sunday. An interesting address was made by Rev. Franklin S. Hatch, acting pastor of Eliot church.

—The Methodist church of this place has been well represented at the Missionary Convention at Brookline the past week. Among those who attended were Dr. Scott and wife, Miss Lizzie Barnard, Mrs. Thomas Hills, Mrs. Wilbur Halliday, Mrs. Bernard Billings, Mrs. L. P. Everett and others.

The letter printed below is of interest by showing the place Newton has in the heart of one of its sons, although he is no longer a resident. It was written from Madrid, Spain, in answer to a letter from one of the Committee having charge of raising the funds for the purchase of the Clavin estate for a high school athletic field and other municipal purposes. The letter is as follows, except for the superscription and signature:

"Yours of August 28th. has just reached me here as I am touring in Spain at present with my old friend — of Boston, whom I think you have met. While I haven't been a resident of Newton for eight years, having taken a permanent residence in England, yet I am deeply interested in everything connected with the city where I was born and always lived and where my ancestors for eight generations also lived and died and I am glad to contribute toward the cause you bring to my attention. I will send you $500 as soon as I get home to England in October and I am sure you will understand it isn't practicable to do so while away on a holiday."

Yours truly,

—Under the expert coaching of the gymnasium instructor, a former Princeton quarterback, the Waban School boys hope to turn out a fast eleven this year, although the material is rather light.

—Mr. Edwin P. Seaver, formerly superintendent of schools in Boston, has returned from Provincetown to his home on Woodward street. Previous to his sojourn at the shore Mr. Seaver made an extended visit in Europe.

—Miss Moffat, who for several years has played the organ at the Church of the Good Shepherd more than acceptably, has resigned to accept a superior position in New Jersey. Her loss will be felt in the choir as an accomplished musician and a faithful worker. Last Sunday morning Stainer's arrangement of "Love Divine" was sung at the offertory.

—The Epworth League of the Newton Methodist church held a social in the parlors Monday evening. Plans were made for a Halloween party to be held at the church.

There will be a love feast at the Auburndale Methodist church next Tuesday evening at 7:30 at which all the Methodist churches of Newton are asked to participate.

WORN OUT?

Are Your Strength and Energy Gone?
If you are discouraged and dependent and wish to die, it is not because everything is black before you. It is simply because your vitality is so low and you are so weak that you have not the courage to face a lifetime.

Eminent physicians have been attracted by similar cases and after making a careful and scientific study of their requirements have compounded a remedy called Vin-Tone, which builds up body and mind in a remarkably short time.

Vitality is what you need and vitality is what Vin-Tone gives.

We tell you of this preparation hoping it may find its way into every home where man, woman or child is suffering from lack of energy.

Vin-Tone can be procured at a very trivial expense and will build up your system as it has thousands of others. Sold on a positive guarantee.

The Bible class conducted by the Woman's League of the New-Church held its first meeting Monday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. H. H. Carter on Highland avenue, Newtonville. Mrs. Herbert S. Kempton was chairman of the meeting and the topic considered was, "Zechariah."

The first social and supper of the season was held at the West Newton Baptist church last Wednesday evening. During the evening a pleasing entertainment was given which was much enjoyed by all present.

The Home Missionary department of the Woman's Association of Eliot church enjoyed a talk on, "Home Missions at the South," by Dr. Hall last Tuesday afternoon.

The Missionary Societies connected with the Newton Methodist church met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Hamford on Newtonville avenue. The work for the new year was considered.

At the First Baptist church, Newton Centre, last Sunday morning an elaborate musical program was given under the direction of Mr. John Hermann Loud the organist. Selections were rendered from the compositions of Wesley, Woodman, Loud, Evans and Fink.

Among Women.

An Executive Committee meeting of the Newton Equal Suffrage League was held at the residence of Mrs. E. N. L. Walton, West Newton, Monday afternoon. Plans were made for the annual meeting to be held in November, and committees appointed for the various lines of activity in which the League is engaged. The State Convention is to be in Holyoke Oct. 24 and 25. Delegates were appointed as follows: Mrs. R. Rowe, Mrs. T. E. Stutson, Miss S. A. Whiting, Mrs. W. D. Tripp, Miss E. J. Simpson.

A SUCCESS

Trip Around The World Attracted Many Tourists

Newton Centre Ladies Carry Out an Elaborate and Unique Entertainment

A perfect day, combined with the unique entertainment planned by the ladies of Newton Centre, brought out a crowd of tourists, last Saturday afternoon and evening, which simply overwhelmed the Globe and Newton Centre Transportation Company, at their specially conducted excursion around the world in an automobile.

The tourists gathered early at the Grand Central Station adjoining the Newton Centre Methodist church, and for six hours kept the genial station agent, Mr. Lewis R. Speare and his assistant, Mr. Edward B. Bowen, as busy as possible in sending off those fortunate enough to obtain a seat when a machine came to a stop, and pacifying those who were left behind. At times the crowd resembled the Park Street subway during the rush hours, and at times fully 200 persons were more or less patient waiters for an opportunity to ride. 15 automobiles were kept in constant use from three to nine o'clock and several gentlemen and ladies sent their private machines to help carry for the rush.

Opinions vary as to the number who were present, but it is safe to say that the figure is between 600 and 800 people. Over 450 were served at supper in the dining room of the Methodist church, and that number does not begin to represent those who came for the afternoon alone.

The ladies planned to take the tourists in a constantly moving stream of automobiles from the starting point to the residences of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Colby on Centre street, thence to Mr. and Mrs. Morton E. Cobb's on Lake avenue, then to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Badger's on Chase street, then to Mr. and Mrs. George S. Smith's on Grant avenue and returning to the central station. But the crush and lack of completion of details, caused by sickness in the family of Mr. Speare, who had the transportation in charge, created a chaotic condition which was really no one's fault. Many walked from one house to the other, and forgot their fatigue in the novelties and decorations at the different places.

Ice cream and cake served in the Methodist church dining room during the afternoon and evening under the direction of Mrs. D. A. White and a corps of assistants in spotless white made some diversion while waiting, and the parlors of the church were used by many as a resting place.

But the chief interest outside of the novelty of the automobile ride centered in the attractions at the different cities on the route. These places were each in charge of a different committee of ladies, who selected their own assistants and good naturedly vied with each other in producing the most interesting and best money making affair.

The mansion of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Colby, on Centre street represented the city of Yokohama, Japan, and the grounds and avenue approaching the house were lined with Japanese lanterns making a very pretty sight, especially during the evening. The visitor was welcomed at the door by a jirrikisha man in native costume and politely ushered into the spacious rooms. A jirrikisha loaned by Mr. C. C. Bragdon was the first object noticed in the hall, and a young lady from its comfortable seat did quite a business in selling post cards and fans. Japanese tea and rice cake, were also served in the hall and found ready purchasers. In the other rooms Japanese ware, handsome embroideries, silks and dwarf plants found a ready sale and late comers met with disappointment.

The decorations in the house were Japanese army and navy flags, and umbrellas, and some beautiful embroideries brought direct from Japan by their owners and which were especially loaned for this occasion by Mrs. C. W. Leonard and Mrs. Arthur C. Walworth. Some rare and artistic bronzes owned by Mrs. J. Howard Nichols were also exhibited and there were some beautiful hand painted silks loaned by Mr. Lawrence Davis.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. J. L. Colby, Mrs. H. I. Ordway, Mrs. Arthur C. Walworth, Mrs. D. R. Wolfe, Miss Elsie Kimberley, Miss Fanny Davis, Miss Alice Myers, Miss Joan Wolfe, Miss Louise Walworth, and the Misses Alice and Julia Colby. The costumes worn by the ladies were brought from Japan and the handsome silks and embroideries were greatly admired. The jirrikisha men were Mr. Case and Mr. Allen Young.

Berlin, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Morton E. Cobb on Lake avenue was a great attraction to the young people, and its toys, dolls, and mysterious fish pond were well patronized. A German flag was displayed from the flagpole and over the entrance the word

"Berlin" was so arranged as to be illuminated after dark. The verandas of the house were all enclosed with hunting giving plenty of room for moving about with comfort. An attractive booth arranged like a German House with thatched roof and latticed windows was the home of the dolls and immediately adjoined the toy table and fish pond, the latter being simply an adaptation of the old fashioned grab box. Around the corner, some silver decorated beer kegs and crockery steins, led one to believe that the No License law was being ignored until it was learned that only lemonade and chocolate were on tap. Inside, photographs and candy were on sale, and Margaret Merrill, Madeline Dowd, Katherine Flanders and Alice West, dainty young misses, sold fortunes in the shape of small German flags. The ladies and their assistants all looked charming in German peasant costumes of white blouses, with velvet bodices, colored skirts with white aprons and German caps.

A most delightful feature at this place during the evening was the music of harp, flute and violin, the gift of Mr. Morton E. Cobb.

The committee in charge were Mrs. S. A. Stanton, chairman, Mrs. Morton E. Cobb, decorations, Mrs. Henry Bailey, treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Mills, dolls and toys, Miss Alice Kidder, fish pond, Miss Maude Hammond, candy, Miss Katherine Mears, chocolate.

The gendarmes at the door were Bradford Edmonds, Theodoris Polhemus and George Forristall.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Badger, represented the Russian metropolis of St. Petersburg, and was in charge of a committee consisting of Mrs. Frank A. Mason, Mrs. Arthur C. Badger and Mrs. Lewis R. Speare. The dining room and hall were hung with skins and draped with imitation snow and ice. A beautiful tiger skin was loaned by Mr. E. B. Bowen and a fine deer skin was the property of Mrs. Burton P. Gray. A magnificent polar bear skin in the hall was the subject of much comment as it had been shot by Dr. Arthur Dodge on one of Peary's expeditions. Russian tea from an ancient samovar was served during the afternoon by Mrs. E. R. Benton and in the evening by Mrs. J. H. Sanborn.

The crowd in this city was around the antique brasses, and Russian embroideries and long before night additional supplies had to be ordered from Boston. Russian relishes put up in tempting styles were also a great attraction. Music was furnished during the afternoon and evening by Miss Haines and Mrs. George Spaulding and the young people enjoyed dancing when the crush would permit. The back veranda in the evening was decorated with oriental lanterns brought from abroad.

The ladies in charge and their bevy of young lady assistants wore the peculiar head dress and were gowned in Russian peasant costumes, all hand woven and imported from that country.

London was found at the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Smith on Grant avenue, and visitors here lingered long and were loath to leave. The living room, with its wood fire, old fashioned settle and spinnet where old time songs were occasionally sung during the afternoon by Miss George and during the evening by Mrs. Robert Truitt, was a most attractive spot. Genuine old fashioned china, and many kinds of knit articles for household and infants' use were on sale and in the hall, toothsome pastry, and Chase & Sanborn's teas, the latter donated for the occasion, were prominent.

But the most interesting feature of London was the silhouette making under the charge of Messrs Charles Copeland and Chas. L. Smith. These were taken with a photographic camera, the picture being received on tracing paper instead of a plate or ground glass. It was quickly sketched by the artist in charge, transferred upon black paper and mounted on cardboards all in less than five minutes. Over 100 silhouettes taken during the day, testified to the popularity of this attraction. In a tent in the rear a Punch and Judy show also added pleasure as well as dollars to the affair.

During the evening the young people gathered around the spinnet and passed an interested hour for themselves and the spectators with songs and music.

The ladies in this city wore Colonial Dame costumes with powdered hair. Those in charge were Mrs. Norman H. George, chairman, Mrs. Geo. S. Smith, Mrs. F. E. Cutler, Mrs. W. P. Cooke, Mrs. E. D. Burr, Mrs. W. E. Parker, Mrs. Harry Carlson, Mrs. G. B. Baker, Mrs. A. A. Tilney, Mrs. E. R. Speare, Mrs. A. D. Claffin, Mrs. F. T. Parks

Mrs. Allen Hubbard, and Mrs. G. F. Huntress.

In the dining room of the Methodist church an excellent supper was served from 6 to 7.30 under the direction of Mrs. Rufus J. Smith assisted by Mrs. Ella Brown, Mrs. George W. Cobb, Mrs. W. R. Holt, Mrs. A. K. Pratt, Miss Annie Ward, Mrs. W. E. Sheld, Mrs. S. S. Widge, Mrs. W. G. Norton, Mrs. W. C. Bray, Mrs. Samuel Ward, Mrs. J. M. Hemenway, Mrs. J. B. Hall, Mrs. Abram O. Swain, Mrs. Charles B. Cady, Mrs. S. A. Sylvester, Mrs. Dwight Chester, Mrs. E. B. Bowen, Mrs. J. M. Dill, Mrs. S. B. H. Bravo, Mrs. D. A. White, Mrs. E. B. Putnam, Mrs. W. G. Burbeck.

The dining room represented America and was decorated with the national colors hung from the ceiling and draped upon the walls. The color scheme was further elaborated with red salvia and white and blue daisies upon the tables. The committee received many compliments upon the quality of the supper and service.

The entire affair was a tremendous success and great credit is due to the officers and finance committee of the Mothers' Rest Association under whose auspices it was conceived and carried out.

These ladies were Mrs. E. R. Benton, President; Mrs. Samuel Ward, first vice president; Mrs. A. C. Badger, second vice president; Mrs. A. M. Fowle, secretary; Mrs. Sumner Clement, treasurer; Mrs. E. D. Burr, auditor.

Finance Committee: Mrs. John H. Sanborn, chairman, Mrs. E. B. Bowen, Mrs. A. C. Badger, Mrs. Henry Bailey, Mrs. Adams D. Claffin, Mrs. Charles A. Clark, Mrs. Morton E. Cobb, Mrs. Joseph L. Colby, Mrs. Sumner Clement, Mrs. Norman H. George, Mrs. A. L. Harwood, Miss Marion Haskell, Mrs. Frank Hatch, Mrs. Frank A. Mason, Mrs. P. A. Plimpton, Mrs. Frank Schirmir, Mrs. S. A. Shannon, Mrs. Wm. E. Sheld, Mrs. E. Ray Speare, Mrs. L. R. Speare, Mrs. A. C. Walworth, Mrs. Henry H. Wyman, Mrs. George S. Smith.

Street Railway Notes

The following interesting narrative of a trolley trip from Philadelphia to Boston appeared in the New York Sun and a high tribute is paid the Boston & Worcester air line in that it is singled out for special mention.

The road from Worcester to Boston is about as near perfection as a trolley road can be, and the whole distance is covered in a little more than two hours. At times the speed must approach twenty-five or thirty miles an hour, but there is no sense of danger; on the contrary, one of exhilaration and delight. The roadbed is perfect, the cars heavy and the motormen know their business, all of which circumstances combine to add to the enjoyment of the occasion and to render the winding up of the most interesting journey not the least attractive part of it.

Y. M. C. A.

Mr. H. A. Maxwell General Secretary of the Everett Y. M. C. A. will speak at the younger men's meetings next Sunday on the subject "Lessons from the Back Pages of a Magazine." Boys 14 years and upward are invited.

Basket Ball is still the most popular of indoor games. 25 candidates were out for positions on the two teams. A fine schedule has been arranged which includes games with Boston, Malden, Cambridge, Chelsea, Lynn, Melrose, Quincy, Reading, Somerville.

The gymnasium classes are larger than ever before at this time of the year. The membership committee is composed of Wm. H. Short Ch., Walter Whitney, Judd W. Cone, Clarence Crandell, T. H. Lucas, H. H. Sullivan, Chester Wilson, Chandler Shapleigh, Chas. Bailey, Edwin Bosworth, Wm. Haman and David Webster. Their slogan is 100 new members this year. Help them get the new members.

The educational work will consist of a mechanical drawing class which meets for organization Monday, Oct. 10th and a class to study "First Aid to the Injured" which will begin its sessions about Nov. 1st. For those musically inclined there are the Glee Club for boys and the Orchestra for men.

Messrs. Hill, Moore and Ward attended the conference at Salem Saturday evening. Sidney Hill read a very interesting paper.

The Newton Woman's Auxiliary will be well represented at the Annual Conference at Northampton this week. Mrs. A. H. Bailey, Mrs. I. E. Moore, Mrs. Moses Clark, Mrs. Mary Stratton Lane and Mrs. Wetherbee will go as delegates.

On the 28th of Oct. the sale of Seven takes place at the Association rooms. This is to be one of the big events of the season when all the friends and members of the Association can take part. In the evening the Glee Club will probably be on hand to sing. Don't forget this date.

NEWSPAPERS AND REFORM

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE
Editor Emporia (Kansas) "Gazette"

This is a day of reform. Everybody is engaged in reforming someone else. The preachers are reforming the newspapers; the newspapers are reforming the politicians; the politicians are reforming the railroads; the railroads are reforming the tariff magnates; the tariff magnates are reforming Standard Oil, and Standard Oil is reforming the preachers—so the happy circle of reform is completed, and when the bulldog of reform finally does catch his tail and swallows it and turns himself inside out, we shall have a fine country. Generally speaking, most reformers are carrying their reform as a side line. They make their traveling expenses out of it. It doesn't cost the preachers anything to reform the newspapers. In fact, the preachers get a good deal of top of column next treading matter space out of it that they would hardly get if they devoted themselves to the perseverance of the saints and higher criticism. It doesn't cost the politicians anything to reform the railroads—not that any one knows of. The politicians keep right on riding on transportation from the law department of the railroads, while whooping it up for railroad reform, and it doesn't cost the railroad presidents anything to be for tariff reform, and what's more, it does not seem to hurt the tariff. If the railroad magnates were as serious about tariff reform as they are to see the trusts get their rebates, there would be no tariff reform. And the beneficiaries of the tariff aren't losing much by reforming Standard Oil. Anyone can reform Standard Oil. It is the punching bag in the national reformatory that we all try our muscle on. Standard Oil and its associates form a whole carnival of pleasure—one round of joy for reformers. In one booth are the Rockefeller and Henry Rogers and their friends, and it costs nothing to throw at these babies, and every time you hit a baby in the Standard Oil booth you get a fine cigar; two babies two cigars, and three babies a subscription to Everybody's Magazine.

The only place in this bright and more or less beautiful world where reform takes the hair and the hide, and the title thereto appertaining, is in a newspaper office. It costs a newspaper to go into the reform business. If you tackle the beef trust, brother editors, you will hear from it when you make a contract for Vigor and the beef extracts. If you tackle the railroads you will get a chance to see more scenery to the square mile when you travel than you have been used to observing. If you tackle the politicians they will start another paper which won't hurt you particularly, except as it is a disgrace to the honorable profession in which you are shining. If you whack away at Standard Oil there is danger of losing your Mica Axle Grease and paraffine candles advertising, and if you are for Sunday closing you are in danger of losing your tobacco and cigar and Malt Nutrine advertising. Yet you must reform something. The people demand reform. And if they don't get it they will stop taking the paper. After a long session of meditation and prayer the Gazette has come to the conclusion that the only safe thing to reform is the Russian navy. It needs the reform and the czar only gets our valuable papers thru a clipping bureau, and if he should decide to blister the varnish off several clipping bureaus no one would care much. The thing for all true reformers to do, therefore, is to go after the czar. Did you notice that our beloved president—the most exalted trust-buster and reformerissimo—has this week passed a few hot ones to the czar? That means that he is merely getting his breath, sparring for position in the big home fight. He knows it won't hurt the czar, who is always for peace, anyway, and it will give the president a chance to get his wind in the Panama matter.

The president is a successful reformer. He has done many useful things in a fine way. He has had the big national stage and has been under the limelight for fifteen years. He has worn the championship belt for four years and has been in the heavyweight class for a long time. More than that, he gets his gate money regularly whether he wins or loses. But sometimes when the telephone in the Gazette is having a fit, and the man with the firm-set mouth and a haughty air is in the business office stopping his paper there comes a funny thought to the editorial mind: What do you suppose Roosevelt would do if he were running the Oyster Bay Tribune; would he go right after the gamblers and saloonkeepers and violators of the law, who lived in his town; would he print the item which showed how the local bank was gouging in his interest account; would he dare to go to the court house and get the personal property tax list and run it—or would he consider the larger good and take his typewriter in hand and blaze away at the practice of polygamy in Utah, the iniquity of the fruit trust in California or the violation of the game laws in Maine? It is one thing to be a president with fifty thousand dollars a year raining on the tin roof whether you work or not, and quite another thing to be the editor of a country paper in a board sidewalk town, dependent upon retaining the good graces of the people for your board and keep. There is something inspiring in the sweetly solemn thought that you don't fear Saturday night, that gives a president courage in busting the trusts, which a country editor, knowing that the boys are tired of taking orders for their week's wages on the clothing store, some way doesn't feel Roosevelt is a brave man, but if he were running a country newspaper and found that the chairman of the printing committee in the council was getting a good many orders for pauper groceries contrary to the letter of the statute, do you suppose the president would open up in next week's paper and print all of the news? Grover Cleveland did a brave thing in sending the troops to Chicago, but if he had been running the Buzzard Bay Weekly would you suppose he would have the nerve to jump onto the druggist for illegal sales of liquor, whose wife came over to sit up with the Cleveland children when they had the scarlet fever? Joe Cannon is supposed to be indifferent to public clamor, but if he was running a little country daily down in Illinois and a lot of advertisers came to the office to tell him that they would order out their ads if he didn't stop printing the news about the smallpox and driving trade from town—what would he do? The eternal cheerfulness of President Roosevelt is remarkable the world over. A man can afford to be cheerful who doesn't have to take anything out in trade and gets his salary in cash. But supposing, after he had plugged away for twenty years making the best possible paper for Oyster Bay, he should find out that a number of his neighbors and best friends were encouraging a young man to come down from New York and start a bright, snappy paper, and were telling this youngster that if some man would just come to Oyster Bay with a little enterprise, he would have no trouble in running Roosevelt out of town in a year or so! Wouldn't that take the kinks out of his grin and make his face look like an aggravated case of before taking? He can preach the simple life and have pie for breakfast in his present high estate, but if he were running a country paper there would be five thousand considerate critics in Oyster Bay and vicinity who would read the files of his paper and paste things in the scrap-books and throw them up to him every time he changed his mind.

And now all this brings up the question—what are we here for, and if so, at how much a line? Here we are, American editors, granting our collar buttons off on the lever that moves the world, with the old handle flying up every few days knocking out our teeth, taking fifty per cent of the legal rate for printing, while statesmen are taking a hundred and fifty per cent of their pay; here we are, galloping up and down the earth, carrying other people's burdens, bearing other people's sorrow, and taking our pay in due bills on St. Peter—and all for what? For the fun of getting the smell of news ink in our noses, for the joys of ripping open the familiar old exchanges, for the pleasure of making a three days' speech every ninety days at the note counter of the bank, for the delectation of getting complimentary tickets to church socials, and for the sweet satisfaction of being too unpopular ever to be asked to act as pall-bearers at funerals. It is a great business—this newspaper business. And reforming the world is a mighty happy diversion, and if Andrew Carnegie forgets us with his hero medals there is some comfort in knowing that as we turn to the right when we finally go up, we have our harp cheek paid for by the best line of free church advertising that ever has been printed in the world.

It pays the buyer to buy from an advertiser and to say he saw the article advertised in this or that paper. The man who mentions an advertisement when buying goods really gets the best possible service, even better than the regular customer when this is possible. Why? Simply because the advertiser pays good money for his advertisement and he is glad to hear from it. It is a compliment to his good business judgment.

Literary Notes.

Human Life for October contains the final installment of Mr. Edwin M. Bacon's articles on Christian Science. Concerning Mr. Alfred Farlow who is a resident of Chestnut Hill, Mr. Bacon says: "Alfred Farlow, by virtue of his position as manager of the publication committee, is brought into contact with the newspaper and periodical world. He is in the prime of life, under forty, a capable man, energetic, shrewd. He is a genuine Westerner, with the blood of pioneers in his veins. Mr. Farlow had chosen the legal profession for his vocation, but while living in Nebraska the family became interested in Christian Science, then new to the West, and soon all of them—father, mother and sons—were ardently employed in the dissemination of the new doctrine. As a factor in the executive organization Mr. Farlow has held the presidency of the 'Mother Church.' In his present position, however, as manager of the publication committee, to which he was chosen not long after his coming to Boston, his exceptional executive talent and tactfulness have been most markedly demonstrated."

Anne Warner, the creator of the inimitable "Susan Clegg," who has repeated her first great success in her latest book, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," is in private life Mrs. Charles Ellis French, St. Paul, Minnesota, would doubtless be considered her home, although she resides in that city only a portion of the year. With "Susan Clegg and Her Friend Mrs. Lathrop" Anne Warner attained a place in the little circle of American woman humorists who have achieved distinction so rapidly within recent years. Many, however, consider her first book, "A Woman's Will," a clever international love comedy, written almost wholly in dialogue, the equal of "Susan Clegg." "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, will add materially to her reputation as a writer of popular fiction. It is the narrative of the adventures of Aunt Mary, another capital creation, in New York, where she is personally conducted by her nephew Jack and his college friends. The humor is irresistible, and a pretty love story runs through the book. To create three such strikingly dissimilar characters as "Von Ith," "A Woman's Will," "Susan Clegg," and "Aunt Mary," and to do it with the fidelity to the living types, is to demonstrate something very like a genius for characterization. Anne Warner is a frequent contributor of short stories to the leading magazines; in fact, she began her literary career in 1901 with the publication of a short story. Her "Susan Clegg" has amused the reading public of not only the United States but England and Australia, one English critic calling "Miss Clegg" the "female Dooley." At the present writing the author of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" is abroad.

Professor Hugo R. Meyer, of the University of Chicago, author of the timely book, "Government Rate Regulation of Railways," is an example of the socialist converted. Mr. Meyer had planned a business career for himself and was a clerk in a Denver bank, when, in 1888, his interest in political economy and socialism led to his entering Harvard with the class of '92. The next four years after graduating he spent in the Harvard Graduate School, specializing in government ownership of railroads. Professor Meyer's exhaustive study of the question of freight rates came about in a curious way. In his investigations of government ownership which dealt largely with the Australian railroads, he was impressed with the utter failure of a government in conducting such a practical business as transportation in a businesslike way, on lines of common sense and judgment, rather than those of theory and political expediency. Thinking that perhaps the conditions he found in Australia were due to local influence, he turned to the European countries which either owned their railroads outright or exercised a strict supervision over them. There the result was the same. The student discovered that state regulation not only cramped the railroads, but by so doing stunted the commercial and industrial growth of the territory in which they operated, and resulted in sectional favoritism in a high degree. Moreover, Professor Meyer was astonished to find in the reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission evidence that the supervision in the United States, when it undertook to equalize trade opportunities, was scarcely more intelligently exercised than the absolute restrictions imposed abroad. The young student by this time had become a firm believer in the doctrine of individualism. After completing his work in the graduate school, Mr. Meyer became an instructor of economics in Harvard, and in January, 1904, he was made an assistant professor at the University of Chicago. He pursued his work quietly until he testified before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce in May. The senators expected to be bored by a dull economic theorist, but when a business man (Professor Meyer was then in his 39th year) stepped before them and began marshaling a striking array of facts and figures and drawing his concise conclusions, the members of the Committee sat up and paid him more strict attention than they had given to any other witness. Professor Meyer left the committee room an economist of national reputation. Immediately a demand for his writings was made, and the first result is the book on railroad rates published by the Macmillan Company. Cloth, 485 pages, $1.50 net. 64-66 Fifth Avenue, New York.

PIANO ECONOMY

The little extra which an Ivers and Pond may cost over an indifferent or merely good piano is the best part of the investment, and will pay rich dividends during the life of the instrument.

Nearly 300 American educational institutions, shrewd judges of piano value, crucially practical sometimes, intelligently economical always, have purchased for their own use Ivers and Pond pianos. A single one of these, the New England Conservatory of Boston, has alone purchased 299 Ivers and Pond Pianos in the last twenty years.

Besides being large manufacturers, the Ivers and Pond Piano Co. are extensive handlers of pianos of all grades, new and used. Thus, whether a $50 square or a $1000 upright be desired they are in a position to supply it. Prospective purchasers will do well to write for their catalogue and list of bargains in slightly-used pianos, as well as explanation of their rental purchase plan—practically buying a piano by renting it. All this information may be had free by addressing Ivers and Pond Piano Co., 114 Bolyston St., Boston.

He who gets must give. He who would receive privileges must grant them. The man who has a complaint must see to it that he also isn't guilty in like manner, before he need expect redress. The man below referred to evidently endeavored to pull the mote out of his brother's optic while yet harboring a fourteen-pound "spec" in his own physical window. The joke, however, speaks for itself.

ROASTED.

A local merchant asked a Salina editor to roast the city administration for letting an itinerant peddler come in there and undersell him on goods. This is what the editor wrote: "City dads, you will hereby take notice that you are roasted for permitting peddlers to sell goods here. The merchant for whom we do this favor has his job printing done in Chicago."

$2.00 NORTH ADAMS EXCURSION THROUGH THE HOOSAC MOUNTAINS, Sat., Oct. 14

On Saturday, October 14th, the Boston & Maine R. R. will run one of the popular excursions to the famous Hoosac Mountains and North Adams. This trip is through one of the most beautiful sections of scenic New England. North Adams is in the heart of the mountains at the foot of "Old Greylock," and is an ideal place to spend a day. The round trip rate is only $2.00, and persons desiring can purchase on the Excursion train a round trip ticket over the famous Narrow Gauge Route, the Hoosac Tunnel & Wilmington R. R., to Wilmington, Vt., at the very low rate of 50 cents. Wilmington is at the extremity of the upper Deerfield Valley, the most beautiful portion of New England; and persons desiring can return to Hoosac Tunnel Station and continue their journey through the Tunnel to North Adams on their B. & M. ticket. Round trip tickets, good going on special train on October 14th, will be on sale at Boston City Ticket Office, 322 Washington Street, and Boston Union Station, at Ayer, Waltham (Fitchburg Division), Fitchburg and Gardner. The Gardner rate is only $1.75. Special train will leave Boston at 8.30 a. m., stopping at above stations, returning leave North Adams at 4.30 p. m. the same date or on regular trains October 15th and 16th. For time of special train at stations, see Boston & Maine posters or inquire of Ticket Agent.

Allen--Green

Young lady ushers made a charming innovation at the wedding, last Monday evening of Miss Edith Louise Green the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. G. Green and Mr. James Walter Allen of Newtonville.

The ceremony, to which only the immediate families of the bride and groom were invited, took place at 7.15 o'clock at the home of the bride, 488 Watertown street, Newtonville, and Rev. Albert Hammatt of the Universalist church officiated.

The bride who was unattended wore a dress of white satin over taffeta, trimmed with chiffon and Duchesse lace and the conventional tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The ushers were Miss Adeline M. Bartlett and Miss Marie Bartlett of Newtonville and Miss Helen E. Gould of West Newton. They wore blue and white.

A reception was held from 8 to 9.30 o'clock, the bride and groom receiving alone.

The house was decorated with potted plants, ferns, southern smilax and laurel, with pink roses in the parlor and pink carnations in the dining room.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Allen will reside at 14 Alcott St., Allston, where they will be at home after January first.

Police Paragraphs.

Boys are believed to be responsible for many broken incandescent lights in the Cabot park district and the Newton & Watertown Gaslight Company has requested the Newton police to put a stop to the vandalism.

Posters are being displayed throughout the infested district, explaining the appearance of the gypsy and brown tail moth egg clusters and the remedy for exterminating them. The eggs of the gypsy moth should be destroyed at once wherever found, while those of the brown tail can be more easily found after the leaves have fallen from the trees.

Recommending change of Police ordinance, giving Inspector of police the rank of lieutenant. Committee on Rules, Ordinances, etc.

Submitting agreement with Saco & Pettie Machine Works relative to South Meadow brook. Committee on Public Works.

HEARINGS.

No one appeared at the following hearings:

N. & W. Gas Light Co for 9 poles on Fuller st.

N. & W. Gas Light Co, for 1 pole on Riverside road.

N. & W. Gas Light Co for 8 poles on Lowell ave.

N. & W. Gas Light Co for attachments to 1 pole Washington st Ward 1.

N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co for attachments to 1 pole Washington st Ward 4.

N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co for attachments to 1 pole Pleasant st Ward 6.

The hearings were declared closed and the petitions referred to the Committee on Public Franchises etc.

At the hearing on discontinuance of land taken for slopes on Commonwealth avenue between Valentine street and Washington street, ex-alderman Henry B. Day appeared in favor.

Mr. Day, in 1893 or 4 we owned the land known as the West Newton section of the boulevard and agreed to give 540,000 feet of land for the street and the right to slope. For some reason, probably because all the abutments could not be reached, this part of the boulevard was laid out under the betterment act. The court decisions now cast a question on the land used for sloping, and our title is not clear. Under the circumstances, we feel that the city should take some action to clear our title, as we have paid taxes on this land for 11 years and have paid for whatever grad has been done. Unless this is done, we feel that the city would owe us for 125,000 feet of land, with interest and taxes for the past 11 years. This section of the boulevard has more than paid for itself. Before it was built land sold here for $200 an acre. We now pay on $130,000 valuation ourselves besides what has been sold off and has been built upon. The hearing was then closed.

At the hearing on taking land for sewer in Waban hill road and Waban hill terrace, written protests were received from Marcellus Coggan for himself and Dr. Chas. D. McCarthy and from Elder and Whitman for Dana Estes.

Mr. Arthur W. Robinson objected, saying that the present sewer system on Waban hill was satisfactory.

Mr. Alfred Farlow said that there was no sewer system on the part of the hill where the petitioners resided, altho there was a private sewer through the Estes property, which he rents to abutments. We have to depend on cesspools, which are not a success, as the hill is full of water. These cesspools are constantly overflowing, and are an annoyance to ourselves and our neighbors. The Board of Health has served notice on us on account of the drainage and the city will have to come to our rescue. The hill will be wholly occupied soon and the sewer needed still more.

Mr. Levi W. Scott said the protests are from non residents, while the petitioners who live there can see the necessity for the sewer.

The hearing was then closed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To Committee on Public Works.—Of John McCammon et al for sewer in Willwood avenue.

To Committee on Public Franchises etc.—Of George N. Prouty for Commonwealth Ave. license on Charles River: of Abram Shrier for junk license: of Timothy Coakley, Colby Doucett, Joseph O'Donnell, Edw. J. Doherty, John Larson, John Burke and Alfred J. Young for minor's licenses.

To Street Commissioner.—Of Mrs. Sarah E. Douglass for relief from surface water Bowdoin st. and of Hon. S. L. Powers et al for better street lighting of Arlington st.

Hearings were ordered for Nov. 6 at 7:45 p. m. on petitions of N. F. Ambursen et al for removal of three trees on Chase st: of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co for attachments on Columbus st: Howard st: for pole on Vernon st and of the N. & W. Gas Light Co for pole corner Sumner and Beacon sts, and on Washington st ward 7.

Petition of R. J. Morrissey for Auctioneer license was granted without reference, and the highway assessment of $815 on Wm. Saville, Windsor road, was apportioned into 10 parts.

RECESS.

From 8.42 until 9.30 for committee meetings, and upon reassembling these reports were received:

From Committee on Claims favorable to settlement of Newton and Green claims for $1000.

From Committee on Finance relative to grant for city expenses to Nov. 15: recommending certain transfers as requested by mayor and approving recommendations of committees on Public Works and Claims.

From Committee on Public Franchises, etc.; favorable to granting N. & W. Gas Light Co, pole locations on Commonwealth ave for arc lights, pole locations on Fuller st, on Riverside road, and attachments on Washington st, ward 1: favorable to granting N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co pole locations on Winchester st: and attachments on Washington st ward 4 and Pleasant st.

From Committee on Rules etc, recommending amended draft of speed regulation on Commonwealth ave.

From Committee on Public Works favorable to rounding corner of Chestnut and Beacon sts.

From special committee on perambulation of boundary line between Brookline and Newton.

Reports accepted.

From Committee on Public Franchises, etc recommending granting licenses to John Connelly wagon, Joseph P. Burke, 2 wagons and John M. Spence wagon: recommending leave to withdraw on license petitions of Barney Bimundo street musician, and Jacob Meilman junk: recommending revocation of junk license of Joseph Hoffman and Morris Greenwald: and recommending granting minor's licenses to Timothy Coakley, Colby Doucett, Joseph O'Donnell, Edw. J. Doherty, John Larson, John Burke and Alfred J. Young.

On the favorable report of this committee granting Wesley Fountain license for 4 pool tables, the City Clerk stated that the petitioner had requested the return of the license fee and leave to withdraw his petition.

This action was subsequently taken. From Committee on Public Works recommending leave to withdraw on petition of J. A. Potter for sewer off Waltham street.

ORDERS ADOPTED.

Assigning hearing Nov. 6 on rounding corner of Chestnut and Beacon sts: authorizing apportionment of sewer assessments received in 1905: authorizing Committee on Kenrick Fund to consider disposition of income for 1905: authorizing Mayor to execute agreement with Saco and Pettie Machine Works relative to South Meadow brook: granting N. & W. Gas Light Co location for 24 arc light poles on Commonwealth ave: 9 poles on Fuller st: 1 pole on Riverside road: attachments on Washington st, ward 1: granting N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co pole locations on Winchester St: and attachments on Washington st ward 4 and Pleasant st.

The regulation governing speed of automobiles on Commonwealth avenue was amended in some technical points on motion of Alderman Bishop and adopted as amended.

ORDERS READ TWICE AND ADOPTED.

For sewer construction in Meredith avenue: granting $14,950.83 for city expenses to Nov. 15: authorizing settlement of Green and Newton claims for $1000, etc: authorizing purchase of automobile by Health dept, and making certain transfers of appropriations therefor: authorizing Street Commissioner to relay drain on Commonwealth ave near Manet road: transferring $200 from Treasury Dept Salaries to Sinking Fund for City Debt: transferring $1000 and $771.77 receipts from Charity Dept Care of Sick Poor to Poor out of Almshouse: transferring $75 from Military Aid to Auditing Dept Office expenses: transferring $110 from Military Aid to State Aid: and authorizing discontinuance of land taken for slopes on portion of Commonwealth avenue (Alderman Ellis excused from voting on this order).

An order taking land for sewer in Waban Hill road and Waban Hill terrace was laid on the table on request of Alderman Bishop.

President Saltonstall invited members of the board to attend the meetings of the Committee on Finance, when the budget was being considered notice of which would be given by the Clerk of Committees.

At 9.58 the board adjourned.

The Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will hold a meeting in the New-church parlors, Newtonville, on Tuesday, Oct. 31, 2.30 p. m. Miss Helen A. Whittier and Miss Georgie A. Bacon will speak on State Federation Work. Club members and friends are invited to be present, and give a cordial welcome to our State Federation Officers.

Mrs. Fred W. Webber

Mrs. Esther Louise Webber, wife of Dr. Frederick W. Webber and daughter of Atwood Holmes died at the Carney hospital in Boston last Friday the result of a surgical operation. She was a native of New Bedford and previous to her marriage resided in Cambridge. Deceased was a woman of a most lovable disposition and charming personality and was actively engaged in the work of Channing church. She is survived by her husband and one daughter by a former marriage.

The funeral, which was largely attended by relatives and friends, was held Monday at 2 from Channing Unitarian church, Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson officiating and the Mendelssohn quartet sang "Eternal Goodness," "Crossing the Bar" and "Passing Out of the Shadow."

There was a profusion of floral tributes. The bearers were Messrs G. Frad Simpson, Oliver M. Fisher, William H. Emerson and George A. Graves. The interment was in the family lot at Mount Auburn.

Silver Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Brooks quietly observed their silver wedding with an informal reception to about one hundred friends, members of the Villagers Club of Newton Centre and old neighbors, last Friday evening at their pleasant home on Laurel street, Newton Centre.

The house was attractively decorated with plants and flowers, chrysanthemums and roses being particularly noticeable, and many being the gifts of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were assisted in receiving by their children Mr. W. C. Brooks, Jr., and the Misses Amy and Phyllis Brooks, and Mrs. Brooks wore her wedding dress of twenty five years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks have resided in Newton Centre for about twenty years and are well known and highly esteemed in social circles in the city.

Woodbury-Smith

A pretty home wedding took place Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith on Carleton street, Newton, when their daughter Miss Anna Smith was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Miller Woodbury of Boston. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Dr. Charles H. Daniels of South Framingham. The bride and groom were unattended. A reception followed the ceremony the bride couple being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, parents of the bride, Mrs. Mary E. Woodbury and Master Clifford Woodbury the groom's mother and brother. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted plants and ferns and other greenery also a profusion of cut flowers. Refreshments were served at the close of the reception and later Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury left for a wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 75 Brighton avenue, Allston, where they will be at home to their friends after January 1st.

Sherman - Bishop

With perfect October weather, and surrounded with hosts of friends, Miss Nellie Maud Bishop, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Washington Bishop, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Brown Sherman, the son of Captain and Mrs. Jesse T. Sherman of New Bedford, last Wednesday evening. The ceremony took place at the Bishop residence, 488 Walnut street Newtonville, at seven o'clock, Rev. Edward A. Horton of Boston, officiating. The bride, an attractive young lady, was gownned in ivory satin messaline, pattern yoke and shoulder effects of Bruges lace,

About Town

The arduous labors performed by one of the foremen on the telephone underground work in Newton is the subject of comment. Sitting still and keeping a T. D. pipe alight seems to be the extent of his daily burdens.

The work on the many brooks, which have been lowered on the South side of the city in consequence of the depression of the railroad tracks, is being splendidly done. The cement beds and sloping banks on the brooks give an attractive appearance.

One alderman, commenting on the transfer of $200 from "Contagious diseases" toward the payment of an automobile for the board of health, said that the automobile habit at City Hall seemed quite catching.

With two stone churches in process of erection in this city, Newton can claim the appearance of religious prosperity.

The new platform and walks at the Highlands station are very attractive.

Many favorable comments have been heard on the appearance and newness of the recent numbers of the Graphic. Last week's issue was completely sold out, although additional copies were printed in anticipation of the increased sale.

The F. A. Ober Company and the Gas Light Company are having rival window displays each night, and the well dressed and lighted windows attract considerable attention.

Notwithstanding the recent successful raids of the police, gambling is said to be quite common, all over the city.

Automobile Accident

While Mr. William E. Pike and Miss Alice Walker, both of Newton were riding in Mr. Pike's automobile in Charlestown, N. H., on their way home from a trip to Miss Walker's old home in Claremont, N. H., the front axle of the machine broke close to the wheel. The accident took place about half past eight in the morning, and the car was running at the rate of about ten miles an hour, to enable the occupants to enjoy the scenery. Miss Walker was thrown violently to the ground and rendered unconscious, one wrist and probably both being broken and she was also badly cut and bruised. Mr. Pike escaped with a severe shaking up. Miss Walker was immediately taken to a nearby farmhouse, a physician summoned, and later was removed to Claremont. There were some peculiar things to the accident. While Miss Walker and Mr. Pike were both thrown out, a camera, which laid on the seat between them was found in that position after the accident. A suit case filled with jars of preserves, was, with its contents found intact. Miss Walker wears eye glasses, and while both her eyes were blackened from the fall, the glasses were found on her nose and unbroken when she was taken up. The machine had been ridden by Mr. Pike for over 12,000 miles.

Hillier - Brown

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Willis Brown, 223 Park street, Newton, was the scene of a pretty pink and white wedding, on Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Fanny Marie Brown was united in matrimony with Mr. Everett Osgood Hillier of Hyde Park.

Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, minister of the Channing church, tied the knot at 7:30 o'clock in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, and Mr. Earl Percy Blake of Brockton played the wedding march.

The bride wore a princess dress made of white liberty satin over white taffeta, with long draped sleeves. The yoke and hertha were real point de Paris lace and the long veil came to the bottom of the dress and was knotted at the top with pearls and lilies of the valley. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Bessie Higgins of Brookline, in pink crepe de chine over pink taffeta with a touch of white in the yoke and on the sleeves. She also wore pink shoes, hosiery and gloves and carried brides roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Lucy Folsom Hillier of Hyde Park and Miss Blanche C. Batchelder of Salem. They were gownned in white china silk with pink girdles, white shoes hosiery and gloves and carried bouquets of pink roses.

Mr. Waldo Edgar Dodge of Hyde Park was the best man, and the ushers were Mr. A. Maynard Holcombe of Winchester, Tech. '04, Mr. William R. Esselen and Mr. Henry G. Esselen of Roslindale, Mr. George Folsom Hillier of Hyde Park, Mr. Frank Pierce Brown of Allston, Mr. Addison L. Holmes, Tech. '04, of Boston, Mr. Charles Lowell Homer, Tech. '04 of Quincy, Mr. Charles Rogerson Haynes, Tech. '04 and Richard Fox Hammett, Harvard '06 of Hyde Park.

A reception followed the wedding until 9:30, Mr. and Mrs. Hillier being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Brown, parents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hillier, parents of the groom. Mrs. Brown wore a beautiful gown of gray silk and Mrs.

Hillier was in black over taffeta and both ladies carried white roses. The house was beautifully decorated with potted plants, pink and white chrysanthemums and asters, and the bridal couple received under a canopy of green and white.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hillier will reside at 225 Park street, Newton where they will be at home on Tuesdays in December.

The bride is a well known figure in Newton society and the groom, a graduate of Technology, '04 is an instructor in the Mechanical Engineering Department.

Barker-Eaton

Edgar S. Barker of Newtonville and Miss Annie J. Eaton were married at the home of the bride on President's Hill, Quincy, Wednesday evening. The groom is a son of Mrs. M. E. Barker of Newtonville and the bride is a daughter of the late Hon. William N. Eaton and has been prominent in the social circles of the Granite city and very popular.

The house was beautifully decorated. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. C. Butler of the First Unitarian church. The bride was attended by Miss Grace Eaton, her sister. The best man was Wentworth P. Barker of Newtonville. The ushers were George Page of Chestnut Hill, Roydon Loring of Dorchester, Fred Howe of Braintree and Nathan Keith of Dorchester.

Milne-Allen

Miss Florence Allen of Newton Highlands, and James Milne of Quincy were wedded Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Allen, Newton Highlands. The Rev. David M. Lockrow of Melrose Highlands performed the ceremony. Miss Alice E. Allen, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and the best man was Albert C. Bruff of Quincy. The home was decorated with chrysanthemums and other fall flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Milne will reside at 3 Bennington street, Quincy, after a wedding trip.

Lisle-Sawyer

Mr. Frank Dyer Lisle of Providence, son of Rev. William H. Lisle of Perkins street, West Newton, was married in Worcester Wednesday to Miss Helen Josephine Sawyer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sawyer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Lisle assisted by Rev. Dr. Andrew Burns Chalmers pastor of Plymouth Congregational church where the bride has been a prominent worker. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Lisle will make their future home in Providence.

Y. M. C. A.

Thirty one teachers of Bible classes attended the first session of the Normal Class held in the Young Men's Christian Association Building. Prof. Albert E. Bailey, of the Allen School, delivered an address on the latest and best methods of Bible teaching. This address was followed by an interesting discussion on an exchange of ideas and methods. Next week Mr. H. W. Gibson, State Boys' Secretary will begin the normal instruction. Every fourth week a valuable and instructive address will be given by some man prominent in Bible teaching. This class is open to all Bible School teachers and meets every Tuesday at 7:30 at the Y. M. C. A.

The younger men's meeting will be conducted by Rev. F. S. Hatch. Bring your chum. The time is 3 p. m. Sunday.

On Oct. 28th the long looked for "Sale of Seven" will take place. Most of the members of the Auxiliary have learned their multiplication tables and can repeat 7x1 is 7; 7x2 is 14 etc. In the afternoon will be sold everything you can think of. Fancy and useful articles, cakes, pies, candy, ice cream, stationery, desk articles, receipt books, etc. In the evening there will be music and a few sketches and ice cream will be on sale. The writer makes a plea right here for the boys of the Newton Y. M. C. A. to whom the proceeds of this "Sale of Seven" goes. Help the ladies who are trying to build up this department of 150 boys.

There is still room for men interested in Music and Mechanical Drawing in the Orchestra and Drawing Class. If you are interested inquire at office.

A member of the younger men's department of the Association remarked to the general secretary that the business men of Newton will have to give us a new building if the membership keeps increasing as it has the past year. From 55 to 155 in two years is the record and more coming in every day. I wonder if that boy isn't right. A gift of $5000 was the starter for a new building at Northampton.

The Woman's Auxiliary meets Oct. 25 at 3 p. m. in the Association parlors.

The Democratic party in this state has the big stick this year. What they are stuck on is how to elect their candidates.

Attention should be called to the greatly inferior grade of men, as a rule, who are now applicants for appointment to the police force, as compared with those examined for such positions from fifteen to twenty years ago. Careful consideration of this matter should be given by those in authority, for as the civil service law limits the appointing power to the highest on the eligible list, that list can only present the best of those who apply for such positions.

In our opinion the change which has taken place in the character of applicants is caused by the failure on the part of our city authorities to recognize the fact that wages have steadily advanced in the trades and business from which the police ranks have usually been recruited.

For instance, baggage masters on the railroad were paid, wages of $1.90 and $2.00 in 1890 and now receive $2.10 and $2.15. Other trades have greatly advanced daily wages, and shortened the hours of labor, so that there is not the same inducement to become an officer from the class of men who, from training and education would make good policemen.

On the other hand the city government has gone backward in point of salary and where in 1890 a new policeman received a salary of about $2.20 per day, he is now paid but $2 per day.

In addition to the reduction of pay,
the new officer must provide a uniform at an expense of approximately $100 and take such temporary work as the chief assigns him. Men with steady paying positions do not care to accept such meagre chances where the maximum pay is only $3. per day, and that only after years of service.

The remedy is simply an increase of pay for the new men, to about $2.50 per day. This would, of course, require a pro rata increase in the graded scale of wages as paid at present, and would enable the officers to reach the maximum pay in a shorter space of time than is now possible. We believe that with $2.50 established as the daily wages, the attributions of the work, the steady tenure of office and the prompt and reliable payment of salary, would bring about a desirable change in the character of applicants for police examinations.

It is fairly clear that the Democratic campaign this year is to be aimed at the lieutenant governorship, and that they have virtually conceded the election of General Guild as governor. While this is satisfactory as far as it goes, the Republican party should simply redouble its efforts not only to elect Mr. Draper, but to give such substantial majorities to all its candidates as to settle the question as to whether or not Massachusetts is a doubtful state.

We invite our readers attention this week to the speech of Senator Dana to the Republican editors last Saturday, which we give in full. Emphasis should be given the fact that STATE officers are to be elected and that the matter of reciprocity, or tariff revision, or free raw materials do not enter into the campaign, except as far as they are used to blind the eyes of the voters to the real issues.

Friends of the Newton senator should note the fact that additional burdens were placed on him last year, in preventing unwise legislation from reaching a Democratic governor, and can lighten President Dana's duties quite materially by electing a member of his own party as governor.

The nominees for senate and house should also be remembered and given a substantial majority as the first step to successful work next winter at the State House in behalf of the city and the state.

The accident on the Brae-Burn links last Monday was regrettable enough without the unnecessary and foolish resistance which was practised by the club officials and those who witnessed the affair. The public has a right to know how, when and where the accident occurred and when attempts are made to prevent the publicity of the facts, the wildest rumors and stories are printed by irresponsible and sensational papers.
The deplorable circumstances are thereby greatly enhanced and greater attention is given than would be otherwise the case.

Had the person responsible for the accident, manfully acknowledged the facts in the first instance, he would have had the charitable sympathy of the entire community.

The revocation of junk licenses held by men who have violated the law relative to receiving stolen goods, and goods from minors should have a salutory effect on the remainder of the junk men. The GRAPHIC has always maintained that there were too many junk licenses in this city and the undesirable ones should be weeded out as fast as possible.

Newton Republicans who contemplate voting for Mr. Whitney should remember that they will have the Curleys, Fitzgeralds and Lomasneys of Boston for political bedfellows.

The democratic candidate for office who compares the lieutenant governor-ship of Massachusetts with the office of constable of the town of Hingham, should be elected to the latter office instead of the former. An office which has been filled by such men as John D.
Long, Roger Walcott, and Murray Crane is honorable enough for the Republican candidate, Mr. Draper.

Wedding Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Cook held their wedding reception last week Wednesday evening at their home on 1772 Beacon street, Waban, and over one hundred guests were present. The house was prettily decorated with autumn foliage and many handsome and costly gifts were exhibited.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook were assisted in receiving by Mr. Cook's daughter Miss Bertha Cook and Mr. Bertram Goldthwaite of Wellesley and Mr. Pietro Isola of Waban were the ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook, the latter Marion
G. Knight were married by Rev. Dr.
George T. Smart on September fifth.

Lawless-McLaughlin

Miss Mary Elizabeth McLaughlin the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mc-Laughlin of Lexington street West Newton was married Wednesday evening to Mr. Joseph M. Lawless of Waltham.
The ceremony took place at the parochial residence of St. Bernard's church, at seven o'clock. Rev. Laurence J.
O'Toole, officiating.

The bride was gowned in white point d'esprit and her maid of honor Miss Mary E. McLaughlin of Cambridge was dressed in white silk. Mr. William Cal-lin of Waltham was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony at the brides home, Mr. and Mrs. Lawless will reside at The Willard, Newton.

Among Women.

The opening meeting of the Newton-ville Woman's Guild, taking the form of a reception, was held through the hospitality of Mrs. Warren F. Gregory at her beautiful home on Walnut street last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. F. T. Benner, president of the guild, assisted the hostess in receiving and the affair was in charge of the social committee Mrs.
George T. Atkinson, chairman.

A large number of members and guests met at the Hannevell Clubhouse yesterday afternoon from 2.30 to 5, for the first regular meeting of the season of Sarah Hull Chapter, D. E.

The regent, Mrs. Benner, called a business meeting which was followed by a delightful musical program. Miss Gertrude Holt, formerly soprano soloist of Holy Trinity church, New York City, sang charmingly responding to an encore. Twelve ladies from Newton Centre then favored the Chapter with Bendall's cantata "Lady of Shalott." Mrs.
Wilder, Mrs. Truitt and Miss White being the soloists. Both choruses and solos were most artistically and delightfully rendered. The program closed with a solo and encore by Mrs. Maria Kautler Stone, whose rich contralto voice charmed
all. Mrs. Edgar Sampson acted as accompanied for all the numbers.

At the close of the program the hostesses, Mesdames George W. Cobb, Thomas M. Elwell, Daniel A. White,
Amos F. Adams, Freeman O. Stanley and Miss Anna M. Whiting received in the parlors and refreshments were served in the dining room.

An official inspection of Newton Royal Arch Chapter was held in Temple hall, Newtonville, Tuesday evening by Deputy Charles D. Burrage and suite of the 9th Masonic district. About 175 members and guests were present.

In Nonantum hall, Newton, last Monday evening a "Quaker Party" was given by the ladies' auxiliary of div. 22. A.
O. U. There were over 300 present and dancing was enjoyed under the direction of Miss Marie Cowell as floor director assisted by a corps of aids.

In Bray hall last Wednesday evening the first grand ball of Newton Centre Court, M. C. O. E. was held. There was a large number of members and friends present. Dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 3, music being furnished by Knowlton
& Allen's orchestra.

At the Churches.

The Home Dept. of Eliot church has one Tuesday each month for its mothers' meeting and on last Tuesday P. M. it was fortunate in securing the brilliant speaker Mrs. Clara S. Colton of Dorchester, the well known writer on children's topics. With her 19 years of experience as a teacher and mother, she was "brim full" of practical and helpful ideas. The subject chosen was suggestions to mothers for original story telling to their children. Perhaps in this busy age of clubs and various organizations, we forget the value of story-telling to our children entertaining them, giving recreation as well as remedies for some trivial ill. She also dealt largely with the educational side which develops intellectual, spiritual and moral growth, taking Biblical characters and fitting them to the various dispositions of childhood.

The North Evangelical church, Chapel street, will hold its annual Harvest Supper and entertainment Wednesday, Oct.
25th at 6.30 o'clock. All are welcome.

The West Newton Women's Alliance and the Ladies Aid Society will hold a joint reception in the Unitarian church parlors, West Newton, next Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5.30 o'clock. Mrs.
James P. Tolman, President of the Alliance and Mrs. Edgar J. Bliss, vice president of the Ladies' Aid will receive.

The South Middlesex Unitarian Conference will be held at the First Church at Waltham next Wednesday afternoon and evening. Rev. A. L. Hudson of the Channing church has an address on "Organized Effort" at 7.15 p. m.

About Town

The many friends of Mr. Fred W.
Atkinson, whose work while superintendent of the Newton schools was much commended, will be interested to learn that he has recently had published by Ginn & Co., a book entitled, "The Philippine Islands." In this book he describes the conditions geographical, economic, social and political in the islands and pictures the people, their possibilities and prospects.

There has been considerable printed in the papers of late regarding the slim attendance and evident lack of interest in church attendance. This condition was marked in the Newton churches last Sunday. Few after pew was vacant and it is little wonder that the ministers become discouraged and their sermons lack the strength and interest which each parish expects of its spiritual head.
If men and women would do more church going and less criticizing an improvement would soon be noticeable.

Lieut. Soule of Police headquarters is greatly interested in the work of the Massachusetts Police Association. He gives an enthusiastic account of the recent meeting of the State Association in Lynn at which he was a Newton delegate with Chief Mitchell and President Harrison of the Newton branch.
The association is doing a grand work and should be encouraged by all law abiding citizens.

Registration of Voters closed last Wednesday evening at ten o'clock with 278 new names added to the list. As 441 names were dropped the total number is now 6259.

A petition is being circulated for a grammar school building in Ward one.

Political Notes.

The Democratic senatorial convention of the First Middlesex district was held Monday evening in Freeman Hall, Newton Lower Falls. Francis H. Barnes of Watertown was nominated for senator by acclamation and John Prenderville of South Framingham was elected a member of the state committee.

Congressman John W. Weeks addresses a political meeting at Haverhill tonight.

A Democratic rally will be held in this city next Friday evening probably in Temple hall.

Residents of Chestnut hill will present the name of Mr. Allison Burr for the office of alderman from which President Saltonstall retires.

The annual dinner of the Republican Club of Massachusetts in Symphony hall, Boston, last evening was attended by a large delegation from this city, who thoroughly enjoyed the excellent speeches of General Guild, ex-governor Bates and Senator Lodge. Senator W.
F. Dana, Representatives E. W. Warren and James A. Lowell and State Committeeman W. M. Flanders were seated on the platform and among those noticed at the tables were Aldermen Cabot, White, Bosson and Weston, ex-aldermen Dwight Chester, Geo. P. Bul-

Unitarian Club

The first meeting of the season of the Unitarian Club was held in Channing church parlors last evening. Supper was served at 6.30 in the banquet hall and was followed at 7.45 by the formal meeting in the parlors at which the new president, Hon. Samuel L. Powers, presided. Hon. James O. Lyford, naval officer of the Port of Boston, was the special guest of the club and gave a most interesting address on "The Customs Service of the United States." He described the early days of the customs service and the present, gave an account of the duties of the Collector of the Port, the naval officer, surveyor and appraiser and the routine work of the inspectors. To give an idea of the immense capacity of a freighter he took the Kansas for an example and stated that its cargo would fill 345 freight cars, cover 20 acres if spread out, extend 213 miles or fill a rail road train 6 miles long. If stood on end it would be twice the height of the Bunker Hill monument with the added height of a flag staff 100 feet tall.

Rev. J. T. Stocking, the new pastor of the Central Congregational church at Newtonville, who was among the guests present, was welcomed to Newton by President Powers and made a very bright and witty response. The executive committee is preparing an interesting program for future meetings which guarantees an interesting season.

Concert

Next Wednesday evening the Newton Chorister club, composed of young boys from the various boy choirs of the city, and assisted by Mr. Robert Seaman and Mr. Charles F. Atwood, both of Boston, will give a concert for the benefit of the Newton Nurses' Alumnae association in Bray Hall. An excellent program has been arranged, and the voices have been carefully selected and trained by Miss Florence Wood and Mr. Robert Seaman.

The proceeds will be devoted by the association to the care and support of disabled and unfortunate members—a project worthy the support who know the value of a trained nurse.

Hospital Aid Association

The following tribute to the late president of the "Ladies Hospital Aid Association" of Newton, Mrs. N. Emmons Paine, was presented at the first fall meeting of the Board of Directors, October tenth, 1905.

Our Board meets today under the shadow of a great loss and sorrow, because of the sudden passing away of our beloved President since our last meeting, in the very height of her faithful and efficient service. It will surely be deemed fitting by every member that at this, our first fall meeting, a tribute of our esteem and admiration and love be paid to her, who has for years, presided over our deliberations, and constantly given of her best thought and effort for the welfare of the Newton Hospital.

Mrs. Paine had unusual qualifications for this work; she possessed with good business ability and fine judgment, a remarkable tact and a sweet courtesy that attracted all who met her. Above all, she had a heart warm toward humanity; the needs of the suffering in our community appealed to her. She took pains to acquaint herself with cases received at the Hospital, and endeavored by enlisting the help and sympathy of others, to increase its efficiency in succoring and saving the sick, for whom its benefits were specially designed.

To this end Mrs. Paine was ever prompt and energetic to undertake, through our Association, the raising of funds for needed improvements. She labored to "bring things to pass," and when the new "Domestic Building" shall take its place with the group on the hill, shall we not all feel that its erection is largely the fruit of her untiring labors?

While giving of her best to this special work, which was dear to her, many other interests enlisted her aid; her life seemed full of care for others. Those of us present at the pathetic funeral service in that stricken home, and who heard the faltering voice of her pastor as he spoke of her devoted service, and noted the tearful faces of many friends, could not fail to realize that in the home and in her church she let her "light shine," and dispensed ready help and comfort wherever her sympathies were called out.

May we not apply to her Lowell's beautiful words concerning the sainted ones "gone on before?" "We find in our dull road their shining track;

In every nobler mood,
We feel the Orient of their spirit glow,
Part of our lives unalterable good.
Of all our saintlier aspirations"
and shall we not best honor the memory of our faithful Leader by taking up in her confident and dauntless spirit, and carrying forward to complete success the work of our Hospital Aid Association?

Newton, October 12, 1905.

At the Churches

At the Newtonville Methodist church last Sunday morning Rev. Dr. J. H. Mansfield preached in the interest of the City Missions of Boston. A collection was taken toward carrying on the work. In the evening Rev. Dr. Henry J. Patrick made an address on the new hymnal which has recently been published.

A meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 at Central church, Newtonville. The topic to be considered is "Japan."

Rev. James C. Sharp of Waban was in charge of the service at the Church of the Messiah, Auburndale, last Sunday evening.

The Eliot church kindergarten for little children begins Sunday at 12 in the church parlor. Miss Jamie D. Hobart is in charge assisted by Miss Florence Manning and others as needed.

The Woman's Missionary Society and the Young Women's Mission Club of Immanuel Baptist church will unite in a series of afternoon meetings, the first of which is to be held Wednesday, Oct. 25 at 3 o'clock. The speakers will be Miss Laura O. Rice and Mrs. H. G. Safford. A social half hour will close the program.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Keith's Theatre—Another big program, fully as strong as that of the preceding six days is announced from Keith's for the week of Oct. 23. Hal Davis and Inez Macaulay will be the principal attraction, presenting the well-known comedy-melodrama, "Pals," which scored a big hit at Keith's about two years ago. Mr. Davis and Miss Macaulay will be supported by an ex-

Majestic Theatre—"As Ye Sow," a pastoral drama, written by the Rev. John Snyder, will open the third week of its engagement at the Majestic Theatre next Monday night. It is not difficult to find the reason for the great success of this new play here. Without the aid of theatrical claptrap, largely because the author, a minister, was not versed in these methods of the modern playwright, a simple, plain, homely story is very entertainingly told, and the very naturalness of it all is probably the most powerful element in the production. The Rev. John Snyder has evidently been a great student of human nature, as well as a good student of the drama, and his prime idea or object in writing the play—that of putting on the stage a real minister as he thought he ought to be portrayed—has been carried out with the scholarly direction of Elliott Schenck and the absorbingly interesting drama of The Valkyries, those fabled warrior-maidens that served the god Wotan and goddess Fricka; of beautiful Brunnhilde, the finest type of sweet womanhood in all Wagner's works; of woeful Siegmund and fair Sieglinde, will attract the attention of American opera lovers as never before. Boston will also have its first opportunity to hear in English Mr. Savage's remarkably successful production of the fascinating Puccini opera "La Boheme," with its pictures of life in the Paris Latin quarter, its stirring melodies and quaint mixture of comedy and pathos under the sympathetic musical direction of N. B. Emanuel who conducted the opera before coming to America. Brilliant productions of Verdi's florid "Rigoletto" and majestic "Aida" are also added to the repertory, the two weeks' program being as follows: First week, Monday evening, Oct. 30 and Wednesday matinee, Nov. 1, Verdi's "Aida"; Tuesday evening, Oct. 31, Wagner's "Lohengrin"; Wednesday evening, Nov. 1, Verdi's "Rigoletto"; Thursday evening, Nov. 2 and Saturday matinee, Nov. 4, Wagner's "Tannhauser"; Friday evening, Nov. 3, Puccini's "La Boheme"; Saturday evening, Nov. 4, Gounod's "Faust." Second week, Monday evening, Nov. 6 and Wednesday matinee, Nov. 8 and Friday evening, Nov. 10, Wagner's "The Valkyrie"; Tuesday evening, Nov. 7, Puccini's "La Boheme"; Wednesday evening, Nov. 8, Gounod's "Faust"; Thursday evening, Nov. 9, Verdi's "Aida"; Saturday matinee, Nov. 11, Wagner's "Lohengrin"; Saturday evening, Nov. 11, Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Castle Square Theatre—The popularity of Sardou's "Cleopatra" at the Castle Square Theatre during the past week has been unprecedented. Hundreds of people have been turned away at every performance, and as a result the management has been compelled to cancel all previous arrangements and to continue "Cleopatra" through the coming week, the second of its engagement. The spectacular effects, the scenery, and the acting have all combined to make "Cleopatra" the sensation of the theatrical week in Boston. Miss Kemble's interpretation of the heroine has been a triumph. Mr. Craig's Marc Antony has displayed all his sterling qualities as an actor, and the entire company down to the most insignificant supernumerary have done their best to make the production a complete success. For the week after next, Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" is announced, with Mr. Craig as Benedict and Miss Kemble as Beatrice.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Wakefield

Mrs. Elizabeth Adeline Wakefield, widow of Augustus Wakefield, and an old resident of Newtonville, died at the home of her son on Austin street on Saturday. She was a native of Woodstock, Conn., and was 90 years of age. The funeral was held from the house Monday at one o'clock, Rev. J. T. Stocking pastor of Central church officiating, and the interment was in Hope Cemetery, Worcester.

Mrs. Ann Farrell

Mrs. Ann Farrell, widow of John Farrell passed away at her home on Highland street, Newtonville, last Monday aged 84 years. The funeral was held from her late residence Wednesday morning at 8, services following at the Church of Our Lady at 9. High mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Malone and many relatives and friends were present. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Mothers' Rest

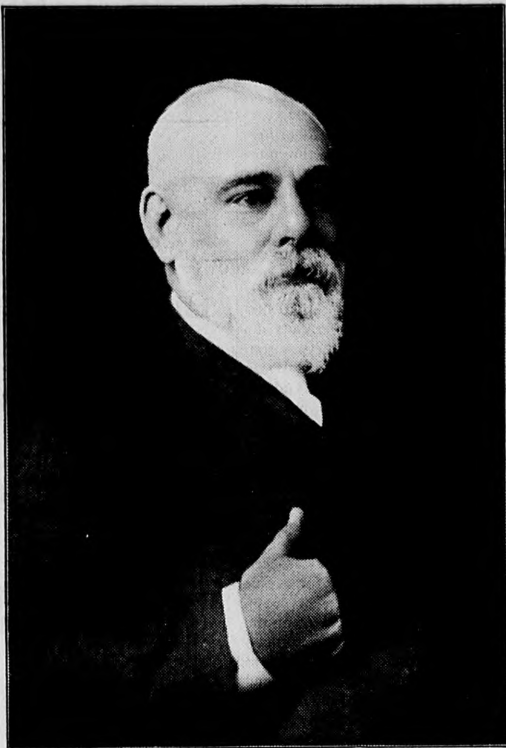

The Board of the Mothers' Rest Association desires to express its gratitude to the whole village for its hearty co-operation in the great undertaking of the Finance Committee on October the Seventh.

The success attained by the "Trip Around the World" was in a large measure made possible by the generous interest of the community. After so great an expenditure of time, personal service and gifts in varied ways from so many people, the Board feels that more than a financial success has been secured. The Mothers' Rest will hereafter really and truly be a Village undertaking.

Mrs. F. J. Tarbell

Mrs. F. Jennie Tarbell, widow of the late Hiram Tarbell and a former resident of Newton, died in a private hospital in Cambridge, Monday night following an operation for cancer. She was a native of Mason, N. H., and was 66 years of age. Funeral services were held from her late residence on Sewall street, West Newton, Thursday morning at 10.30 and the remains were taken to Mason, N. H., for burial.

The Lowell Daily Courier observes that H. M. Whitney has been chiefly notable for telling the Republicans what they ought to do to boom the Whitney interests in Canada at the expense of the farmers and manufacturers of New England.

cellent company, the scenic surroundings will be unusually good and the closing portion of the act is said to be the most stirring bit of entertainment in the varieties. The surrounding show is a notable one, including the Six Valdares, one of the best troupes of comedy and trick bicyclists in their line; Stuart Barnes, "the Chesterfield of monologue comedians"; May Belfort, a pleasing singing comedienne from Europe; Fred Ward and John Curran, in a new version of "The Terrible Judge"; Boranni and Navarre, in an eccentric his other characters and all the scenes and incidents. It is a story of real life, as a real man sees it, about a real man, who has real feelings. It is this simplicity of motive with the live action of the play that is bound to make "As Ye Sow" popular. The Majestic has been crowded at every performance these two weeks of the engagement and indications at the box office point to one of the most successful runs of a rural play in Boston.

comedy and acrobatic sketch; Walter Daniels, impersonator of noted stage celebrities; Kern's mimic dog, presenting quite a novelty in that line; the Pryors, novelty banjoists, singers and dancers; the Maginleys, in an aerial acrobatic specialty, and the Durbyclles, sisters, finger shadowgraphists. The usual list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be shown in the kinetograph. Underlined for the week of Oct. 30, are the Six Musical Cutties, presenting one of the most artistic musical acts in the varieties.

Outsiders are claiming that Massachusetts should not be in such a hurry for a revised tariff, because there are other parts of the country to be considered. Massachusetts has never shown any haste about revising the tariff. A few howling democrats do not make a state, any more than an hour of sunshine makes an Indian summer.—Worcester Telegram.

As a Republican do you want to be the bob on the tail of a kite that wants to fly free coal and iron from Canadian mines into this country to enrich a Democratic candidate on the state ticket? Be a kite yourself and a good Republican one, but don't be a bob for the other fellow.

Gen. Guild is a polished gentleman with brains and integrity enough to make him a commanding personality of full gubernatorial size. Besides he has bushels of experience to fit him for the post, while Gen. Bartlett has had none.—Lowell Courier.

Practice vs. Preaching!

In voting a man should use discrimination and choose between the Practice of the members of one party and the Preaching of the other for campaign effect.

Republican Candidates Who Practice What They Preach.

HON. CURTIS GUILD, JR.

TO SAVE THE CHILDREN.

At the recent convention of the State Federation of Labor a resolution was passed endorsing

HON. CURTIS GUILD, JR.,
Republican Candidate for Governor,

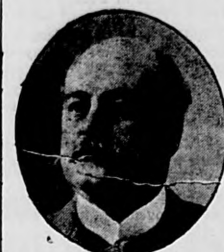

for his efforts in behalf of the abolition of child labor in this country. He was recognized as the true friend of labor.

A MODEL MILL TOWN.

Students of labor conditions have placed their seal of approval upon Hopedale, the mill town which

HON. EBEN S. DRAPER,
Republican Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and his family have established, and 3000 or more people find work in plenty there, at good wages and under the most beautiful and beneficent surroundings.

HON. EBEN S. DRAPER.

What have the Democratic candidates done to equal this? Which is the true friend of labor, the man who does things for labor at every opportunity, or the man who is continually telling what he would do if he ever had the opportunity and then dodges the opportunity?

THE TRUE FRIENDS OF LABOR ARE

GUILD AND DRAPER.

Death of Adam Beck

Mr. Adam Beck, for nearly seventy years a resident of Newton Lower Falls died at his home on Cornell street last Saturday morning at the age of seventy-six years. Mr. Beck was born at Casteltrey, Ireland, of Scotch parentage and came to this country when five years of age. He was for many years engaged in the paper machinery business and commanded the sincere respect of all with whom he came in contact. He is survived by two sons, Charles E. A. Beck and Ernest M. Beck, both residents of Lower Falls.

Mr. Beck was a charter member of Dalhousie lodge of Masons and an attendant at St. Mary's Episcopal church. The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at two o'clock from St. Mary's church, Rev. Thomas L. Cole, the rector officiating. Music was furnished by the church choir and there was a delegation of Masons in the audience. The interment was in the church yard.

The death of Mr. Adam Beck, which occurred on the 14th inst. at his residence on Cornell street, Newton Lower Falls, deserves more than a passing notice by reason of his having lived a long, honorable and useful life in this community, and by his sterling qualities endeared himself to its residents: his life having exemplified the saying of Pope, "An honest man's the noblest work of God."

Not alone to his family, but to many of his friends, the loss is a personal one, and the void created by his death can never be filled.

Of unusual intelligence, possessing an inexhaustible fund of information relating to interesting events connected with Newton and adjacent towns, he was a veritable walking history, and an oracle often consulted.

Having been held in universal respect and esteem; conscientious, honorable and considerate to the last degree in all his dealings, he has set an example of upright manhood, which should not be lost upon the rising generation.

Peace to his ashes, and may mother earth gently cover his great heart and noble spirit.

Senator Fulford is Dead

Senator George T. Fulford of Brockville, Ont., who was injured in a collision between an automobile and a street car in Newton a week ago Sunday, is dead. He is the second of the party of three in the automobile to whom the accident was fatal, the chauffeur, Louis E. Zeriah, having died Wednesday.

Senator Fulford died Sunday afternoon at the Newton Hospital, to which he was taken immediately after the accident, which occurred at the corner of Walnut and Beacon streets. When he was first brought to the hospital his condition was not regarded as dangerous. He had several cuts and bruises and a twisted leg. Until Friday he seemed to be on the road to recovery. Then there was a turn for the worse, and he sank gradually until the end came. With him at the time of his death were his wife and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. William T.

Hanson, who were members of the party, which in two automobiles was making a tour through New England. Mr. Hanson was in the automobile that collided with the street car, but his injuries were not serious.

Senator George Taylor Fulford was one of Canada's millionaires. He was a native of Brockville, where he was born fifty-three years ago, the son of Hiram and Martha Harris Fulford. When a comparatively young man he was chosen a member of the town council of Brockville, which post he held for twelve years. During ten years of this period he was chairman of the finance committee of the council, and was also a member of the water board. It was as a manufacturer of patent medicines that he amassed his fortune, having at the time of his death extensive interests in all parts of the world. In politics he was a Liberal and it was through the influence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that he was in 1900 called to the Senate.

Despite his increased honors he has always made his home in his native town, the present family homestead on the St. Lawrence River being one of the finest in the vicinity. He was married in 1880 to Miss Mary Wilder White of Fort Atkinson, Wis., who was a member of the ill-fated auto party. He was a member of the Constitutional Club, the Capucine Club of Paris, the St. James of Montreal, the Rideau of Ottawa and the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto. He was an enthusiastic lover of out-of-door sports, an ardent yachtsman and a well-known angler.

Killed While Playing Golf

As the result of an accidental blow struck in a friendly game of golf which he was playing with his lifelong friend, W. S. Waitt of this city, Charles Mann, aged 60, of 26 Crawford st., Roxbury, well known as the president of the Darrow-Mann coal company of Boston, met his death Monday afternoon on the links of the Brae-Burn country club at West Newton.

The unfortunate affair, the second of its kind in the history of the seven golf clubs in this city, has cast a shadow over the entire community and has resulted in the indefinite postponement of all events scheduled on the course during the next few weeks. The club colors are at half-staff and but few avail themselves of an opportunity to play on the links.

Mr. Mann had been a member of the club for several months, but only during the last few weeks, since coming up from his summer home at Wareham, had he played much on the course. Mr. Waitt has belonged to Brae-Burn for a long time and is an ardent golfer. He is completely prostrated by the accident and has the sympathy of every club member.

Monday the two men started over the course together and played nearly all the afternoon. Shortly after 5, as dusk was falling, they determined to play one more hole before returning to the clubhouse. Mr. Waitt placed his ball on the tee and stepped back to drive off. Mr. Mann was standing directly behind him at the time, so near in fact that when Mr. Waitt swung his stick over his shoulder for the drive that the metal end struck his companion over the right temple.

The few players in the vicinity rushed to the assistance of the injured man. Although somewhat dazed for the moment, Mr. Mann appeared not to have suffered any serious hurt, a slight cut which bled freely being all that was visible. He consented to walk back to the clubhouse to have the wound bathed, but when he reached the club parlors, some half a mile distant, he fell to the floor unconscious.

All efforts to revive him proved unavailing, and several physicians were summoned, who worked over him for nearly three hours. He grew steadily weaker and died without regaining consciousness.

Medical Examiner West made an examination of the body, after which he consented to having it turned over to a Boston undertaker and removed to the Mann home in Roxbury. A death certificate was secured from the home of agent H. A. Stone of the board of health previous to the removal of the body. Over the signature of Dr. West the cause of death was given as a "punctured wound of the head," contributed to by pulmonary oedema. It was said that there was no fracture of the skull and that death was directly due to the shock attendant upon the blow. Mr. Mann, it is said, had suffered from heart trouble and the accident aggravated this.

Mr. Mann was a native of Dorchester, where he was born Nov. 17, 1844, the son of Levi and Mary Ann (Gilbert) Mann. At an early age he entered the coal business. He had lived in Boston practically all his life and had a handsome summer home at Wareham.

He was a member of the Algonquin and Colonial clubs, Columbia lodge, F. and A. M., and of Boston commandery and St. Andrews chapter, K. T. He was widely known in social circles in Roxbury, was an enthusiastic golfer and extremely popular among his fellow club members. He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Cutler of Roxbury.

No blame whatever is attached to Mr. Waitt, who is a respected resident of this city and a widely known Boston business man.

The closing of every avenue of information to the press and public resulted in the circulation of many sensational stories. The few members of the club and the club employees who knew of the affair were sworn to strict secrecy, and it was not until the filing of the death certificate at the office of the board of health that the facts became public.

Foot Ball

Newton High still has a clean slate, although the Mechanic Arts High squad threatened to spoil the season's record in Tuesday's game.

Just after the kickoff in the first half, Pierce fumbled the ball on Newton's 25-yard line, and Barnes secured it for Mechanic Arts. The home team held for downs, however, and regained the ball and carried it the short length of the field for a touchdown.

Captain Ely carried it over, and Porter kicked the goal.

In the second half Mechanic Arts took a brace, and by cross-tackle plays advanced the ball from their 20-yard line to Newton's 40-yard line. Here Captain Rosatto was injured, and his withdrawal seemed to take the heart from the rest of the team.

They were held for downs and pushed down the field until Captain Ely again carried the ball over, after a series of excellent hurdles by Porter, who kicked the goal.

The game ended with the ball in the middle of the field.

Eighty-First Birthday

City Messenger Joseph D. Wellington of Newton, who for the past twenty-eight years has occupied that position, observed his eighty-first birthday at his home on Washington street, West Newton Sunday. He was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1824, and resided in that city until twenty years old, when he removed to Cambridge. Here, for nearly a quarter of a century, he worked at the pipe organ business, removing after his retirement to West Newton. In 1877 he was appointed city messenger by Mayor Fowle and has since held that office. During the Civil War he served in the Forty-Fifth Massachusetts Regiment. He is an Odd Fellow, a member of Charles Ward Post, G. A. R., and a director in the Massachusetts City Messenger's Association.

Political Notes.

The Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor insists that he is anxious to go before the people and talk about reciprocity. The Fitchburg Sentinel reminds him that he had better go before the people and try to prove that he was laboring in behalf of the public at the State House in 1890 and 1896 and after that he can talk reciprocity to them.

Mr. Whitney is said to be very anxious to get to work in the campaign. He surely has a lot of gas on tap that he must dispose of somewhere.

In these days, when the public temper is quick to resent laxity in public life, the voters are not apt to get very enthusiastic over the candidacy of a Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor whose attempts to encompass legislation in Massachusetts have been of a character so open to criticism as Henry M. Whitney.

"I wish you would say that I shall support Mr. Draper most heartily, and shall take off my coat to work for his success. I am a Republican and am for the Republican ticket from top to bottom, and if Mr. Draper desires it I shall take the stump for him. That's the kind of a Republican I am."—Fred S. Hall to press representative.

The Haverhill Gazette says that, according to the signs of the day, the Democratic ticket is of the kangaroo order. The hind legs are expected to do all the jumping.

Literary Notes

Pearson's Magazine for November contains an unusual collection of bright stories and clever articles for the long indoor evenings. First, there is Lawrence Perry's deep-sea story, "The Duel of Two Ocean Tramps," a tale of storm and stress and spine and the creaking of iron hulls and men's consciences. "The Shrike" is a capital Esquimaux Dog yarn, full of human interest that has made Kipling's animals immortal. "The Great Seal of England" is an exciting little in the "Burglar's Club" series; just as "How Kid Brady Broke Training" is a vivid chain of the new gentleman prize-fighter character, who appears now and then in this Magazine. Then, there is our bandit friend, "Don Quixote" and three other stories: a ghost story, an automobile story, and a funny story about George Harris—Charles Battell Loomis's new character.

Besides, there are six special articles: one on Richard Mansfield; another, "The American Diplomat in Foreign Eyes"; A Sailor of Fortune; and "The Story of the Y. M. C. A." "Night in a Marconi Station" is a vivid pen picture of the work among chained lightning, in the interior of that most holy of holies—a wireless station. "The Casualty Roll of Peace" will interest you, perhaps even more than anything else.

Read this, by Rene Bache, the juggler of statistical figures into stories. You will be interested.

"An Eye for an Eye," by F. H. Lancaster, in the November McClure's, is a rarely dainty little love story told with delicate humor in the soft music of the Cajan patois. It is long since this Louisiana dialect, the most musical of all American speech has been seen in current literature, and in this pretty comedy of hot blood and youthful hearts it rings out fresh and sweet.

Newton Highlands

—Otto Coke, 10c bags. At grocers.

—Mr. A. B. C. Deming has returned from Palmer, Mass.

—Next meeting of the Monday Club is with Mrs. Martell at Eliot.

—The Adams Express office and store adjoining are being enlarged.

—The Watson house on Chester street has been sold to Mr. F. A. Walker.

—The C. L. S. C. meets Monday, Oct. 23 with Mrs. Darius Cobb, Boylston street.

—Ray Atwood has been appointed Grove poet at commencement Amherst College.

—Mrs. Aaron Cook has purchased land at Kingston, Mass., and will probably locate there.

—Mr. Geo. S. Bryant left this week for Waukesha, Wisconsin, where he will spend the winter.

—Mills undertaking rooms, 813 Washington street, Newtonville. Tel. 112-3. Leave calls with H. S. Hiltz, Eliot station. Tel. N. H. 212-40.

—A mail box has been placed on the front of the Newton Highlands station, and a public telephone pay station established in the station waiting room.

—E. Moulton and Son have one of their store windows very tastefully decorated advertising a breakfast food for which prizes have been offered to the grocers for the best decorated window.

—Wednesday Mr. John Ward celebrated his 80th birthday and in honor of which he gave a dinner. In the evening he and his sister Mrs. J. F. C. Hyde gave a reception. The occasion was much enjoyed.

—The lecture and stereopticon exhibition given under the auspices of the Young Men's Union last Tuesday evening in the Methodist church was well attended and was a very pleasing entertainment.

—Last Sunday John Caccelley a laborer employed on the track work at Boylston street had his thumb crushed between a jack and a piece of timber. He was taken to the Newton hospital for treatment.

—Contributions are being made towards a fund to purchase land for a walk adjoining the railroad and running to Hyde street. It is understood that the railroad will maintain the walk if the land is given.

—Last Friday morning residents in the vicinity of Floral and Hyde streets were deprived of water for their breakfast on account of a break in the water main on Hyde street. Repairs were completed by ten o'clock and peace again reigned in that neighborhood.

—The funeral of the late Ebenezer H. Greenwood took place from his late residence on Hartford street on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. George T. Smart of the Congregational church officiated and the interment was in Newton Cemetery.

—Work on the depression of the tracks here is progressing rapidly. The wall on the north side is all finished and work on the south side is being pushed. The grounds around the station are being laid out. We predict this station and grounds when finished will be one of the most attractive and convenient on the Circuit.

Mothers' Rest

The annual meeting of the Mothers' Rest Association of Newton Centre was held in the vestry of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. R. Benton, the president, presided and there was a good number present. Rev. Dr. E. D. Burr offered prayer. Reports followed from the board of managers, read by the secretary, and from the chairmen of the house and ground, transportation, finance and building fund, religious services, relief and visiting committees. The secretary read her annual report and other reports given were from the treasurer, matron and nurse at the home and from the recent automobile trip around the world. It was stated that over $2000 was cleared the result of this novel venture. A vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. J. H. Sanborn, the retiring chairman of the finance committee, and to Miss Alice Freeman, the matron at the Rest, who was reported quite ill. The election resulted as follows: President, Mrs. E. R. Benton; first vice president, Mrs. Samuel Ward; second vice president, Mrs. A. C. Badger; secretary, Mrs. A. M. Fowler; treasurer, Mrs. Charles B. Cady; auditor, Mrs. E. D. Burr; additional members of the board of managers, Mrs. Frank A. Mason and Mrs. Samuel P. Brewer.

Next week's issue of the Graphic will contain the reports in full.

MacLean - Sherman

Last Wednesday evening in the Methodist church, Newton Highlands, at 8 o'clock, Miss Mabel Hailes Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. B. Sherman of Floral street, was married to Mr. Truman Stanley MacLean, of Newton Upper Falls, the Rev. John E. Charlton officiating. The bride's dress was of white Lansdowne, cut en traine, trimmed with point lace. She wore a veil caught with fillets of the valley, and carried bridal roses. The best man was her brother, Mr. George G. Sherman of Floral street. The maid of honor was Miss Eva M. Harrington of Somerville, dressed in pink organdie and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations. The flower girl was Miss Maud P. Sherman, sister of the bride. She wore a pink dimity trimmed with white silk lace, pink slippers and hosiery. The ushers were Messrs Charles L. Rhodes and G. H. Kirkley, both of Newton Highlands. The church was decorated with autumn leaves, potted plants, and cut flowers. The "Lohengrin" bridal march was sung by Miss Bancroft of Ipswich. A reception took place immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, from 8.30 to 10.30. The bridal party stood under a huge bell of white flowers. They were assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. MacLean will make their home at 994 Boylston street.

HENRY M. WHITNEY

RECIPROCITY AND TARIFF REVISION

CANDIDATE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Henry M. Whitney has had a unique career. He began his business life on a salary of $100 a year. He entered the field of Boston enterprise by paying $1,000,000 for a tract of land in order to widen a street. He has sold out every dollar's worth of stock in every enterprise he ever established as soon as it was safely afloat. Several of the plans which he has carried out were so far-fetched in their scope that the public, which was to benefit from them, resisted the innovation. He took up the fight for reciprocity with Canada at a time when he had just disposed of every cent's worth of interest he held in any company doing business with Canada. He has never taken part in politics before in his life, and he will stump Massachusetts from one end to the other in order to help put the Commonwealth back where it belongs among the manufacturing states of the country.

If the election of Henry M. Whitney depended on the votes of the old employees of the West End street railroad when he was president, there simply would not be any other candidate in the field—he would be elected unanimously. There were six horse railroads in Boston in 1887, all working with a friction that was annoying to the employees and the public alike. The men were obliged to work long and unreasonable hours for unsatisfactory wages and the public did not get the kind of service it required. Mr. Whitney consolidated all these roads, and the public gasped, for it seemed like a gigantic undertaking in those days. The employees were a little uneasy, too, for they did not know what this consolidation portended. Would it mean economy through the lessening of wages and the further increase of hours of labor? Or would it mean a reduction in the forces of the various roads? The employees asked these questions, but nothing detrimental to their welfare happened. Then of a sudden the employees of the various roads became conscious of a new force, a new feeling and personality in the operations of the various lines.

A strange thing had happened—the president of the consolidated roads visited the car stables, chatted freely with the men, joked with them, learned of their troubles if they had any—and most of them had—fixed up the troubles without delay, shortened the hours of labor, reduced the number of trips per man on some of the lines and finally raised the wages of the men from $2 to $3.25 per day on his own volition. This was when electricity was installed.

Then word went round that if any employee had a grievance against the company and he could not settle that grievance, he was free to take the grievance before President Whitney, where he would be received without any red tape and that grievance was settled then and there.

All this was new to the men, and there were not a few of them who were pessimistic about it and said it wouldn't last. But it did last, during the years that Henry M. Whitney was president of the road—it lasted until the men learned to have a regard that was much deeper than respect for their president.

He rode with the drivers on the front platform or the conductors on the rear platform, and chatted freely with them. When he met them on the street he had a cheery smile and a handshake for those with whom he had become acquainted until the whole temper and attitude of the employees of the West End road was changed from indifference to loyalty. Henry M. Whitney put a spirit into the employees of the road which has lasted to this day.

Henry Melville Whitney was born Oct. 22, 1830, at Conway, Franklin county, Mass. His father, the late Gen. James S. Whitney, was an old war horse of democracy in the days before the civil war, though he showed his independence by settling with his vote as a member of the Legislature that Charles Sumner should go to the United States Senate.

The father was a Conway merchant, with manufacturing interests. The boy was sent to the Conway schools, and afterward to Williston Seminary. When he was ready to go into business his father had removed to Springfield as superintendent of the armory. Henry found a place as office boy in the Conway bank at $100 a year. The second year he got a 100 per cent increase, and the third year was raised to $300.

"I can't remember," he says, "whether my father ever helped me out with any money besides what I earned or not. I know I boarded with the cashier of the bank and did some odd jobs for him."

In 1860 he came to Boston and entered the Bank of Redemption as a clerk. Soon afterward he took a place in a naval recruiting office, and when his father was made collector of the port of Boston, he entered the Custom House. The following year he went to New York and set up for himself in the firm of Whitney & Hawley, conducting a general shipping business.

Meantime General Whitney, the father, had established the Metropolitan Steamship Company. In 1865 the son returned to Boston as agent of this company. The father dying in 1868, the son in 1870 secured control of the company and remained its president until a short time ago, when he sold out all his stock and retired.

His first big improvement for the city of Boston was the Beacon-street boulevard. His father's dwelling was at Beacon and Harvard streets, where Mr. Whitney's mother still resides. Beacon street was a lane. It appealed to Whitney that the man who made that alley into a boulevard, with a street-car line in the middle of it, would not only confer a tremendous blessing on posterity, but incidentally make a fortune if he happened to own the adjacent land. He formed the West End Land Co., which raised $1,000,000, bought the land and sent Mr. Whitney into a Brookline town meeting to demonstrate that if he was willing to make the improvement cheap for the town as chief abettor, nobody else ought to complain. Pretty nearly everybody in sight did complain, but it went through, so far as Brookline was concerned.

The trouble came on the stretch of lane within the Boston limits. The project was resisted in the city, and the Metropolitan street railway, which would lay its tracks on the new boulevard if it went through, made such a fight that Mr. Whitney said: "There's only one way to get rid of these railways; we'll have to buy them all." And he did. The West End Land Company acquired controlling interests in the Metropolitan, the Highland, the Middlesex, the South Boston, and the Cambridge street railways, and consolidated them as the West End street railway.

The Beacon street boulevard was finally laid out, and Boston had the basis of the most magnificent parkway system in the world.

HENRY M. WHITNEY.

Candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Who Favors Reciprocity With Canada and a Revision of the Tariff Laws, So That Hides, Lumber, Iron, Coal, and Wood Pulp May Be Placed On The Free List.

It was characteristic of Henry M. Whitney that in drawing the charter of the West End Street Railway Company he peered into the future and foresaw that the surface lines were never going to suffice for all the traffic that was to be. In that document permission was expressly given the company to build and operate, under certain restrictions, a subway under Boston Common. This was fought like almost every one of the remarkable Whitney prophecies, and it was not until years later that the people had to yield to other management what it had refused to him.

In a trip South Mr. Whitney happened to see one of the earlier short-line trolley installations. He saw at once that electricity was the motive power of the future for city traction, and came back in Boston resolved to get that improvement. People said he was crazy. Others said he desired to electrocute his fellow citizens.

He went right ahead. The consolidation made a system on such a scale it was possible to try experiments which no small line could have afforded. It was all pioneer work, and involved an immense amount of labor and expense. Many cities sent agents to see what Whitney was up to.

The next great Whitney enterprise was the coal business in Canada. He organized the Dominion Coal Company, which combined a large number of mines on Cape Breton Island. The product was sold for manufacturing purposes chiefly along the St. Lawrence River. In the winter that, river is frozen, and the men had no work. Mr. Whitney conceived the idea of giving the men work the year-round and boosting international trade besides, by selling coal in Boston. A fleet of colliers was chartered, and coal carried to this port. It was developed that the kind of coal mined at Sidney was more profitably relieved of its gas, leaving a marketable coke; so Mr. Whitney went to the Legislature for a charter for what are now known as the New England Gas & Coke Company and the Massachusetts Pipe Line Company, to sell gas to the district gas companies of Boston and coke to the public. Here again he was bitterly opposed. Before the Dominion Company was organized, the product was 800,000 tons. Now it is 2,500,000.

The next commercial company was the Submarine Signal, which makes and sells appliances based on an invention of Ellisha Gray. When attached to vessels at sea the signals record the approach of passing vessels or nearby obstructions, and prevent collisions. Mr. Whitney retired from this company.

Still another enterprise which has been set down to his credit as a pure work of philanthropy, but which he protests was nothing but straight business, was the transaction by which the Boston Chamber of Commerce acquired without paying for it the site on which its building stands. The land belonged originally to two wharf companies, the India and the Central. The India wharf people desired to deed over their half for nothing excepting to get back the value with interest from sales of adjacent land. The Central Wharf Company refused to do likewise. Mr. Whitney came forward, bought the whole property and gave the Chamber its site.

Hotel Beaconsfield, Brookline, is another of his enterprises. The only other commercial concern with which he is now connected is the American Asbestos Company.

In the course of his dealings in Canada Mr. Whitney had occasion to make many acquaintances among the people of that country, and became impressed both with their fine qualities as associates and with the unparalleled resources of their new land of promise. When he had disposed of his interest in the Dominion Coal Company he took the time to renew earlier studies of the trade relations between the two peoples, and became thoroughly imbued with the idea that in Canada lies the opportunity for New England to regain all that great financial prestige which was formerly hers in building the railways and cities of the West.

"The artificial wall, the tariff, which obstructs trade, ought to come down," he says. He let it be known to his friends that he stood ready to give of his time and means to help that fight.

The President of the Chamber of Commerce, which has been doing things to further reciprocity for many years, about this time resigning, Mr. Whitney was chosen his successor.

He immediately decided that the way to get a new tariff law was to notify the law makers through the ballot box that the people of Massachusetts wanted it. Since then he has been making a continuous fight on that line.

Mr. Whitney's family life has been peculiarly happy. The son of a mother who at 85 finds her son one of the most distinguished citizens of the state, he married in 1869 Miss Green, daughter of Admiral Joseph P. Green of Brookline, and has been blessed with five children. Miss Ruth, Mrs. J. P. Gardner, Miss Laura, James S., now a Harvard sophomore, and Miss Josephine.

The Whitneys live in Brookline, with a summer home at Cohasset, where the candidate for lieutenant-governor has a small but fine stud of riding and driving horses. These he never races or exhibits. He is fond of riding and indulges in that sport much of the time.

He is president of the Cohasset Golf Club, but this is not to be taken seriously. He has never held a stick in his hand. His usual means of propulsion about the city is an automobile. He has only been to Europe once.

He is a member of the Algonquin, Boston Art and Country clubs.

He has friends wherever he has had dealings, from the older employees of the street railway system, who speak of him with great respect and esteem, to the business men with whom he is popular by reason of his liberality, good fellowship and genius for making the other man feel that he is interested in him.

Henry M. Whitney is the man of the hour. He is not in politics because he desires to fill public office. He is a clear-headed, earnest advocate of methods and measures calculated to retain and promote the industrial welfare of New England. He represents that great business interest—New England men who prefer to fight for the rights of New England rather than transfer their capital and their energy to more favored sections of our country.

In him is typified the earnest desire of 60,000 Republican voters of the Commonwealth for reciprocity with Canada and other nations. He will unquestionably receive the support of this class of voters at the polls in November, and his election would be the most effective notice that could be served on the Congress that the business men of Massachusetts demand prompt relief from the burdensome schedules of the tariff law.

their daily life by true and real time expressed in the Standard Time given by our clocks. In and about Boston Standard Time—that of all our clocks—is 16 minutes slow. Hence sixteen minutes before 12 is really 12 o'clock, and the same that all our clocks marked as 12 o'clock before May 1883 when Standard time began, 11:44 a. m. of Oct. 16th, was then the real noon, and middle point of October.

Again: Reviewing the past, I have been taking great interest in making an index to my pocket diaries beginning with 1855. Ambitious, for one thing, of realizing Franklin's saying about "Early to bed and early to rise, etc.," my hours were recorded a multitude of times for several years. But how can I compare those true hours with present ones kept by false time? If I now rise at 6 a. m. and go to bed at 10 p. m. by my clock, in bluntest plain English, I lie; for the clocks being here, as explained, 16 minutes slow, I am rising at 6:16 a. m. and going to bed at 10:16 p. m. of true and real time. To truly rise at 6 a. m. and be in bed at 10 p. m. I must rise at 5:44 a. m. and be in bed at 9:44 p. m. by the clock.

Yet again, and briefly, we note the increasing difference made by the increasing length of night, between the early morning and the midday temperatures. If a thermometer out of doors at clock 7:00 a. m. was 45 degrees one morning, and 65 degrees at 1 p. m. by the clock, those clock hours were 7:16 a. m. and 1:16 p. m. of the real day, the only day that God and nature give us. Similarly we say how fast the afternoons are shortening and how little leaf-raking, etc., we can do at twilight beginning at 5:15 p. m. we will say. But we must have intelligence enough to remember that 5:15 p. m. is really 5:31 p. m., and would have been shown as 5:31 p. m. on all our clocks before the "standard time" torment for real home life purposes, rather than for long east and west railroad purposes began.

From these, and almost endless other examples, let everyone who loves truth, reality and nature as to time, use standard time only for long east and west railroad purposes and, as much as possible, govern all the important regulating acts of his local and home life by such standard-time clock hours as express the real hours at which those acts are best done; taking breakfast for example at true and real 7:30 a. m. by taking it at 7:14 a. m. by the clock, and so on for everything.

"Standard time" is indeed deceptively named. It should have been named railroad time, and everywhere accompanied by instructions as to how to use it as herein explained so that home and neighborhood doings would continue to be at the same hours of the real and natural day that sun, moon and stars know, and give us.

Oct. 16th, 1905. S. E. W.

October and Natural Reality

This is beautiful October. Being of thirty one days the noon of the 16th was its centre, fifteen and a half days of it then being gone. But when was that noon? The thoughtless will say at 12 o'clock. Not at all. No one lives by real time except those who live on the "Standard Time" meridian of 75 degrees, 90 minutes etc., of longitude that fix the railroad time for our time belts, and those who are truthfully thoughtful enough to live to set the chief morning and evening governing events of Washington Letter.

It is the President who is standing pat now, and he is standing as those who knew him knew he would stand on railway rate legislation. He had along talk today with representative Townsend, co-author of the Esch-Townsend rate bill and after it was over Mr. Townsend said that the bill would be introduced at the coming session and would have the President's fullest approval. Mr. Townsend in speaking of the bill today said, "We had but one idea in framing it, and that was to remedy the defect in the present interstate Commerce legislation and to allow the commission to do what it was always intended they should do, namely make a decision and enforce it. The commission did actually exercise the authority it was supposed to have for several years till the matter was tested in court and the wording of the act found to be defective. The rest of the bill as we introduced it was merely to furnish the machinery for expediting the work of the commission. The matter has been discussed a good deal since the bill was first introduced, but I have heard nothing said that changed my opinion of the virtues of the measure. There are a good many people who say that the language used by the President in his last message to Congress was ambiguous and that he did not mean what he was popularly supposed to have meant. This is a mistake or the work of the people who wanted to prepare for letting the President down easy in case he saw fit to change his mind. But as a matter of fact he did not want to change his mind and he did not want to be let down easy. His language was plain enough in the first place, and if I am not much mistaken, when his message goes to Congress this time the first or one of the first things it will contain will be a paragraph on rate legislation.

Mr. Townsend was asked if the testimony before the senate committee on interstate commerce had induced him to change his mind in any degree. He replied emphatically in the negative. "The railways," he said, "were asked to send witnesses to the hearing and of course they knew whom to send. They declared that it was unconstitutional to confer any such power on the railways as the bill proposed, but they were confronted by the records showing that the commission had exercised just such powers in the early years of its existence. Then there were a number of eminent lawyers called to show that the powers proposed by the bill were unconstitutional. But they called on the Attorney General and he assured them that the bill was constitutional. They also presented a lot of theories as to what the bill would do if it did become a law. But I am satisfied that not two per cent. of the testimony presented by the railroads could be called evidences. It was simply the opinion of interested parties.

The Secretary of Agriculture announced to the Cabinet meeting that he had decided on a scheme which would relieve the Department of Agriculture of considerable expense in connection with meat inspection and enable a larger force of inspectors to be put at work. It was nothing less than a plan to make the packers pay for the labels used in the inspection and thus relieve the department of that part of the expense. Heretofore the packers have stood none of the expense of the inspection. The government has footed the entire bill. The cost of the labels alone amounts to from $50,000 and if this were saved to the department and a small fee charged for the services of the inspectors, it would be a great saving and would enable a much larger force of inspectors to be put at work. In this way not only would the inspectors for the smaller houses engaged in interstate traffic and who have heretofore complained that they were discriminated against in favor of the big houses of the trust.

The Navy Department has about decided that there shall be three cruisers to make up the little squadron that will convey and escort the President on his trip from New Orleans to Hampton Roads. There are four new cruisers in Admiral Brownson's squadron, but one of them the Maryland is now undergoing repairs and will not be available. The other three, however, the Pennsylvania, the Colorado and the West Virginia, are the pick of the whole cruiser squadron of the navy, and it has been decided that these three shall be assigned the duty of escorting the President. He will probably sail on the West Virginia, she being the flagship of the squadron, and the other two will accompany her on escort duty.

FOR THE DINNER TABLE

Centrepieces Large in Size and Profuse of Decoration in Fashion.

(N. Y. Sun.)

The centrepieces for dinner tables this fall show a decided tendency to increase in size. A piece of linen a yard and a half square makes a pretty big centrepiece, yet centrepieces come even bigger than that.

The use of lace or embroidery along the cut work lines is the favorite idea for decorating centrepieces, and all white is the rule.

Decidedly new are the centrepieces made of fine linen lawn, almost as sheer as fine handkerchiefs. One, measuring a yard and a half square, bordered with exquisite valenciennes lace and insert with a circle of the same lace, cost $75.

"They don't come cheap. How can they?" says the clerk, laying aside the filmy centrepiece for one of heavy linen inset throughout its broad dimensions with oblong panels of Italian lace and embroidered in its linen panels with a close design in cut work.

Italian lace is extremely popular for use in centrepieces this year. It comes in a great variety of designs.

Each square of it in one lavishly inset centrepiece of huge proportion showed a different picture. On one inset square a lion rampant formed the design, on another a falconer with bird on wrist, on another a quaintly gowned dame, on another an Italian coat of arms.

All the varieties of lace associated with linen centrepieces are used this season, only in a more lavish degree than ever before. Borders have crept to great depths. Many of the loveliest centrepieces are made entirely of lace.

Mexican drawn work covers many of the most beautiful centrepieces. One large centrepiece of this drawn work is bordered with a lace edge of the Mexican thread wheels. Through the drawn work design over the linen are scattered the same little dainty wheels.

Side by side with centrepieces of great elaboration of workmanship are shown others of the most rigid simplicity, which are quite as popular and rather more practical for daily use, though they are by no means restricted to use on simple occasions.

There are centrepieces of moderate sizes in heavy linen wrought with the simple but effective Madeira embroidery in a scalloped finish about the edge, and a prim, concise showing of openwork embroidery over the linen. In some of these centrepieces the only embroidery in the linen besides the scalloped border is a ring of the tiny even holes characteristic of the Madeira work defining the centre of the linen surface.

"The way to keep centrepieces fresh looking—especially those made of linen, for linen crumples almost with looking at it—is to roll them on stiff paper every time after using, and put them away rolled. The paper should be just the size of the centrepiece," advises an expert. "Just laying them away flat in a drawer won't keep them smooth."

NEW RINGS, PINS AND WATCHES

Novelties in Jewel Cases, Opera Glasses and Silver Table Wares.

(Jeweler's Circular Weekly.)

Beautiful and costly rings are displayed in some very smart styles, as a marquise shaped brown diamond edged with white diamonds; a yellow topaz heart framed in diamonds, and a large canary diamond contrasting with a large white diamond on a gold hoop. Rubies with diamonds form rich rings.

A cat-eye flanked by a diamond on either side ornaments a man's heavy ring in rose gold.

A pyramidal emerald, in almost invisible gold setting, forms the top of a unique ring.

An attractive scarfpin is in the shape of a crescent composed of alternate rubies and diamonds.

A novel design in a stock pin shows a conventionalized thistle, the bloom simulated by an amethyst with upright stalk, in gold and green, between two leaves in gold and green enamel.

Very handsome are the large diamond brooches, in strictly conventional treatment, which are principally fancy scroll patterns in a variety of artistic arrangements, the designs being based on somewhat triangular forms.

In a unique and charming little watch the mistletoe has its presentment in rose gold, of open pattern, on a surface of green gold, with tiny pearl berries grouped at intervals. Another exquisite watch has a cabochon opal filling a diamond rim, with a chateaufort pin formed of two outspread diamond wings connected at the base with slight openwork topped with diamonds. Some of the large, very thin watches are finished in plain, bright gold. Magnificent diamond watches are in elaborate designs of interlacing fancy ovals finished with points that are topped with diamonds.

Opera glasses with handles come in very attractive mountings of pearl, shell and enamel with or without ornamentation in gold. Elaborate gold bead embroidery is seen on opera bags of white silk and green, or white bead bags are decorated with conventional patterns in gold beads.

For the convenience of the traveller there is a little leather jewel case, lined with chamois and made to accommodate rings, stick pins, a brooch, or watch, and hold the same in place.

A silver egg cup with loop handle has a circular base with a tiny salt and pepper castor on the side.

For oyster cocktails little forks having pretty, slender handles terminate in two prongs about an inch long.

The acorn in full relief, the clover blossom and the grape vine furnish motifs for new and taking designs in embellishing several lines of silverware.

Extremely decorative are some large silver flagons and vases in plain or ornamental finish that attract attention by their tall and graceful outlines.

THE FALL HOUSECLEANING

A Necessary Operation After the Summer Vacation.

The careful housewife, who left her home in spotless purity in the early summer when she closed it for three or four months, has before her, when she returns to town, a week or two, according to the method she employs, of good hard work to make it ready for winter occupancy. No really good housekeeper can overlook the necessity of a scientifically thorough cleaning of her abiding place at this season of the year.

It is quite as important to make the house absolutely clean in the fall as in the spring, if not more so. In the long winter months it is neither easy nor advisable to have as thorough a ventilation as during the summer. Therefore, whatever germs of disease may have found lodgement in the house have a better chance to develop. The importance of vigilance in this matter cannot be overestimated.

The new method of house cleaning make the work easier for the housekeepers than formerly. Then the newer sanitary house fittings don't collect dust and are easily kept clean. There are many labor saving devices, as well as articles to prevent the necessity of hard work. Many a simple invention pays for itself a dozen times over by what it saves in the cost of an extra domestic.

At house cleaning time such considerations are especially important. If things be of an easily cleaned substance the saving of the time consumed in freeing them from dirt is a big factor in the cost of the undertaking. For instance, when all the fixings of the bathroom are of glass, the labor of making and keeping them clean is reduced to a minimum.

A glass surface presents an almost invulnerable exterior to any and all kinds of dirt, and when washed with very hot water is practically sterile. In some bathrooms in modern houses not only are the bath tubs of glass, but the washstands, shelves, towel rods, and even the supply and drain pipes are made of this most cleanly material.

An ideal bathroom has tiles on both floor and walls of glass of a pale iridescent green, with a frieze of tiles molded and colored like sea shells, with just a touch of warmer color than the rest of the room. The tub is of the glass, translucent, with glass supply pipes and faucets. The basin is of the same opaque glass as the tiles, and is ornamented to match the tiles, with its pipes and faucets also of the transparent glass.

There are four glass rods, and several glass hooks and knobs to hang things on. There is a large mirror set into the wall, under which is a glass shelf, and another glass shelf is over the wash basin.

For such a room there is no housecleaning time—it is always clean, and with the least imaginable effort. The one thing to be guarded against is the roughening of the surfaces by the use of sandpaper or any invention of a similar nature.

In the kitchen also has the use of glass become very popular, table tops, mixing bowls and sundry kindred articles made of glass having been in use for some time past. It is not enough that a house be made clean, but it should be so constructed and furnished that it is an easy matter to keep it so.

In the cleaning of walls in the ordinary manner it is essential that the accumulation of smoke, which is always more or less oily, and must be removed by something more efficient than a mop or long handled brush. There is to be had a scrubbing brush made of felt by means of which the walls are rendered clean and which restores the color of papered and painted walls by removing very gently, but none the less thoroughly, the grime that has collected and given them a foggy appearance.

For the cleaning of painted woodwork, especially white paint, there is a paste composed largely of whiting that is spread on, left a short while and then washed off with warm water. The paste is said to have qualities that render any surface to which it has been applied absolutely free of germs or vermin.

Housewives who are vigilant to a fault in other matters frequently allow their closets to become infested with moths simply because they do not understand that the ounce of prevention is far better in every respect than the pound of cure and that by having their closets painted every fall with a strong solution of carbolic acid and, after that has dried, by giving them a thorough spraying with naphtha there will be no trouble from insects of any kind. Naphtha is also an absolutely sure cure for buffalo bugs, and its advantage above other insecticides is that no matter how delicately the material it is used upon may be colored it will not be injured.

The results are quick and sure and the unpleasant odor is of short duration, and if it be possible to apply heat after its use the odor evaporates immediately. The one objection to naphtha is the extreme inflammability of its gas. A simple precaution is to open all windows in a room when it is in use.

After blankets, sofa pillows, draperies of all descriptions, winter clothing and in fact all the articles of use and wear that have been stored in camphor or moth-proofing substances during the summer are first taken from their coverings they should be hung in the open air and sunshine for at least two days. That precaution will insure the destruction of any germs that may have summered in them.

One thing the housekeeper should never lose sight of is the necessity of giving a thorough overhauling to every closet, drawer and hidden and little used place at least once a year. The time for this general examination should preferably be in the fall. There should be an expert inspection of all plumbing before the time comes for the general closing of windows and doors. Special care should be used in the investigation of the condition of the cellar after it has been closed all through the summer.

The fall housecleaning can be done with such economy of time and effort that no one need dread it. By the employment of the many devices that science has put into the hands of the woman of today the labor is reduced to a minimum, and consequently the cost.—N. Y. Sun.

At the Churches.

The Young People's Society of the Immanuel Baptist church will hold a praise service in the vestry Sunday evening. "Sacred Songs that have Helped," will be the topic considered. Miss Gladys Wood will be the leader.

A general love feast was held at the Auburndale Methodist church last evening. There was a good number present including representatives from the various Methodist churches in Newton.

The Helper's Division of the Young People's Society of Eliot church met Thursday afternoon in the church parlor. The subject considered was, "Going to School in the Dark Continent."

At Channing church last Sunday morning Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson preached a sermon on, "Channing Parish" in which he described the function of a suburban church and the value of brotherhood and mutual interest between its members. The new parish register, a handsomely bound volume, was presented for inspection and signatures.

The regular meeting of the Stebbins Alliance was held Tuesday afternoon at the Newton Centre Unitarian church. There was a good attendance and plans were discussed for the coming season.

The parish committee of the Auburndale Congregational church, consisting of Mrs. E. C. Chamberlain, Miss J. D. Cooley, Miss B. M. Noyes, Miss S. C. Johnson and Mr. C. S. Ober are desirous of securing the names of all who have recently taken up their residence in the village and who have not connected themselves with the church.

The Woman's League, connected with the New-Church, Newtonville, will have charge of the work of the local branch of the Needlework Guild, a national charitable organization with a central office at Philadelphia. The object of the Guild is the distribution of the articles collected among the different charities of the city or town in which the collections are made and the contribution of two new finished household garments, household linen or 50 cents or more in money, constitutes membership.

At the annual meeting of the New-Church Society held last week in Newtonville reports were read and officers elected for the coming year. Several practical questions were discussed and it was decided to give the revised order of services a two months trial. The copies will be used for the first time on Sunday.

The second address on, "The Human Steps of God," will be given next Sunday evening at 7.30 at the Newtonville Methodist church. The address will be illustrated by the stereopticon, some of the finest Briggs slides being used.

The Ladies Aid Society connected with the Newtonville Methodist church are making preparations for a Christmas bazaar to be held the first week in December.

The teaching force in the Universalist Sunday School, Newtonville, has been reinforced by the addition of Mrs. L. L. Bower. The work of the school has been greatly improved by the recent adoption of a uniform lesson. The study of the life of Christ is now being considered.

At the mid-week meeting at the Central Congregational church, Newtonville this evening the second in the series on, "Secrets and Sources of Power," will be considered the special topic being, "Faith."

There will be two Bible classes in the Sunday School of St. John's church, Newtonville, the coming year, a class of boys in charge of Mr. H. P. Dorrance. Harvard '05 and a class of girls in charge of Mr. Clifford Powers a graduate of Oxford, England. Mr. Powers and Mr. Dorrance are both studying for the ministry and have kindly offered their services.

A service of evening prayer will be held in the chapel of Grace church this afternoon at 4.30.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held Wednesday, Oct. 11, at St. John's church, Newtonville. The officers elected for the ensuing year were, President Mrs. Marguerite T. Hinckley; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. H. M. Gordon.

The offering at Eliot church next Sunday will be for the American Missionary Association.

The annual meeting of the Auxiliary of the Woman's Board of Missions connected with the Auburndale Congregational church was held Wednesday afternoon. Officers were elected and plans considered for the coming year.

Miss Clara Colton, secretary of the Union Maternal Association, gave an interesting address on, "Suggestions to Mothers on Original Story Telling to Their Children," at the meeting of the Woman's Association at Eliot church Tuesday afternoon.

The Wesley Guild of the Newton Methodist church omitted the regular meeting Tuesday evening and attended the Union Methodist Love Feast at Auburndale.

RUBY-RUB METAL POLISH.

Housekeepers notice these points, does not stain or injure the hands, you do not have to shake it. Ask your dealer for it.

It pays the buyer to buy from an advertiser and to say he saw the article advertised in this or that paper. The man who mentions an advertisement when buying goods really gets the best possible service—even better than the regular customer when this is possible. Why? Simply because the advertiser pays good money for his advertisement and he is glad to hear from it. It is a compliment to his good business judgment.

WHAT DO YOU EXPECT OF SHOES AND DO YOU GET IT?

There is something more than a covering for your feet in shoes—some dealers and people let it go at that. I am not so easily satisfied. After I have used every possible method to get together an assortment of the best leather, the most stylish lasts, the highest class workmanship direct from makers of honest footwear, I aim to use care in selling of them—a shoe, for your particular feet. Shoes, like hats, no one shape suitable for all people. My stock is now and clean; everybody buys new goods from me. My prices are low because of no additional expense connected with selling, and the grades are varied enough to satisfy all classes. I believe you will be pleased to buy if you see my shoes, and I am anxious to assure you that you will get all that you expect from my kind of shoes.

N. Curtis & Co. World's Renowned Shoes, makers of the world's best shoes for more than a hundred years. They have been worn and are now worn by the most particular dressers since 1700. They fit better, wear longer, hold their shape always. They are superior to any shoes made today. Prices, $4, $5, $6, $6.50, for which you would pay in the city $5, $6, $7, $8. Good Shoes for Men, Women and children in prices from 50c to $3.50. I did not quit looking when I bought the best high priced lines in the above prices. I can give you stylish shape, good leather, such as Pat. Colt, Box Calf, Viel Kid, Gun Metal and Velour Calf.

NONANTUM BOYS' CLUB

The Committee in charge of the Nonantum Boys' Club present to the subscribers and citizens of Newton the following report:

The year just closing has been a most satisfactory and successful one. From early in October, 1904, until May 1, 1905, the club house was open six nights each week and about three hundred boys and young men of Nonantum whose ages ranged from six to twenty-five years were registered as members of the club. The average attendance has been larger this year than ever before, a fact which shows that the club's popularity is growing.

Mr. Edward L. Rand of Jamaica Plain who for several years has served as superintendent was with us until late in December when owing to a business call in another part of the state he was obliged to resign. His faithful services will be long remembered. Mr. Charles E. Thrasher, the efficient assistant superintendent assumed the office of superintendent and carried the club through a successful season.

Owing to the increased membership there was not sufficient room for some of the industrial classes that have been heretofore conducted. Mrs. Walter C. Hosley, however, conducted a class in cane-sewing and Miss Eugenia Lockwood conducted a small class in drawing at her home.

Entertainments in charge of the boys were held during the winter on Thursday evenings.

During the summer months the clubhouse has been open on certain evenings. In the yard swings were erected and a small running track was built. The Committee wish to thank the subscribers for the funds which have enabled them to carry on the work and to thank all friends who have in any way contributed to the success of the club. The work in connection with the club is growing each year and a growing work calls for increased funds. Never in the history of the club have there been so many boys and young men in Nonantum as there are today. For this end the committee hope to receive this year an even more generous support than ever before. It is hoped that every resident of Newton will be glad to aid in the work.

Police Paragraphs.

Picking chestnuts was a popular pastime last Sunday, but the police in plain clothes from Grove Hill, Newtonville, were after other things than the succulent nut. For Chief Mitchell was aware that the woods in this vicinity were being used for gambling, and had detailed Sergeant Burke, and Officers Shaughtnessy, McLaughlin and Kiley to trap the offenders.

The officers carefully searched the woods for some time without success, until one of the men noticed a couple of fellows, who came out of the bushes glanced about in all directions and then went back again. The next time the men came out, a couple of officers were innocently searching for chestnuts in that vicinity and when the scouts had gone back to the poker game which was in progress, the officers were close at hand. The game was taking place in a little hollow, and when the blue coats came up behind the scouts, they gave them a push, strong enough to send them rolling end over end, into the group of 7 or 8 men who were in the game. A lively time followed, in which four cops endeavored to arrest double that number of men, who were materially aided in their efforts to escape by a large black dog. Each officer, however, collared a man, altho Sergeant Burke had to sprint around a small pond five or six times before making his arrest.

The men arrested were James H. Mills, Charles L. McMinn, Patrick Connors and Wm. R. Coleman, all of whom live in the vicinity of Walnut and Beacon streets. By the time the patrol wagon had reached the spot, half of Cork city was present and there was much weeping and wailing among the women.

In court Monday morning, Judge Bacon fined each man $5.00.

It will be rather surprising if Pres. Dana of the senate will be allowed at the end of next year to drop back quietly into the practice of his profession. There is no man in recent years who has made so big a mark in office as he.

Dana has made many friends, both new and strong ones, and he also has the faculty of inspiring something like hero-worship in the men about him. They regard him as the ideal legislative officer, and express themselves as ready now to pledge their best efforts to advance him politically, with or without his consent. They feel that in character and capabilities he is big enough to honor the governorship of the state. They especially regard him as a great emergency man in the event of the republican party in this state getting into a position where a change from the rats is an absolute necessity. And although the members of the railway and railroad laws recess committee will receive about $1000 each for their services to the state, it has been a liberal education to all of them, and many of the lawyers have discovered that the modest president of the senate had an insight into the legal aspects of the work which was a revelation to all who served with him.—Practical Politics.

$1,500 IN PRIZES

Offered for Subscriptions by the Publishers of "The Musician."

The remarkable success of "The Musician" in the last two years is due to the fact that in its particular field it has become almost indispensable. The reading pages contain information of interest to all teachers, students and lovers of music, besides which, each issue gives twenty-four pages of new vocal and instrumental music. The music alone, if purchased separately, would cost two or three dollars. The price of "The Musician" is a nominal one, fifteen cents a copy, and by the year one dollar and a half. The appearance next month in London of the first English edition of "The Musician" marks an epoch in the history of American journalism. "The Musician" is the first American musical journal, and probably the only periodical devoted to art, that has ever been sought by a European market. The prizes offered will be in addition to the regular commissions given for subscriptions. There will be twenty-one in all, the first prize being five hundred dollars. This is an extremely liberal offer. The commissions alone will enable all who devote a part of their leisure time to the magazine to add considerably to their incomes. Every owner of a piano is a prospective subscriber to this excellent publication. Particulars may be obtained by addressing the Oliver Ditson Co., 151 Tremont Street, Boston.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES

who comes to be the unanimous choice of the Republican party of Massachusetts for governor, is a native of Boston, where he was born February 2, 1860. He graduated from Harvard in 1881, and since that time has been active in public life, filling every position with an enthusiasm that stamped him as a man of force and fertility of resource. In private business life he is the editor of the Boston Commercial, a leading trade paper of the city. He has been lieutenant-governor for three years. Gen. Guild is a Mason.

HON. EBEN S. DRAPER.

the Republican nominee for lieutenant-governor, is a native of Hopedale, where his extensive mill interests are located, the date of his birth being June 17, 1858. He is a graduate of the Institute of Technology, and after that school training he took a practical course in the machine shops and cotton mills of the Hopedale mills. He is a director of many corporations and is a man of broad business acumen. During the Spanish war he was active in the raising of the $200,000 necessary to equip the hospital ship Bay State, which did so much good at that time.

HON. WILLIAM M. OLIN.

who has received another nomination as secretary of state, is now serving his 15th term in that important position. He is a native of Warrenton, Ga., but in spite of his Southern birth he was a gallant soldier of the Union army, and has long been prominent in Grand Army circles. He represented the Boston Advertiser for 14 years in Washington and then was secretary to Gov. Talbot, Gov. Long, Collector Worthington, Senator Dawes and Collector Beard, the latter position occupying his attention from 1876 to the date he assumed his present position. Col. Olin is affiliated with the Masonic bodies.

HON. WM. F. DANA'S ADDRESS BEFORE THE REPUBLICAN EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION

Hon. William F. Dana said: "The people of the Commonwealth are to elect at the next election State executive and State legislative officers. I emphasize the word 'State' because, amid the din created by the Democratic shouting, it seems at times likely to be forgotten. We are not going to elect a President, or a Vice President, or a single congressman. We are not going to elect even a Legislature which is to elect United States senators. That duty was performed, and, in the judgment of the people, well performed, by last year's Legislature. We are to elect simply a governor, a lieutenant governor, State executive officers, State senators and State representatives. And yet, according to the program of the Democratic party, that action is to be decided, not upon State, but upon national issues.

"For one, I dissent. The Republican party is willing to meet the Democratic party upon any or all issues. It is willing to discuss the tariff, reciprocity, protection, free trade, free silver, civil service reform, imperialism, the peace treaty, Theodore Roosevelt, or any portion of the great part that it has played in the history of the country. But it respectfully submits that a State campaign should be conducted primarily upon State issues.

"What is the record of the State government for the past year? To begin with, although the Legislature did as much work as any of its predecessors, it had the shortest session for well nigh

Republican nominee for auditor, is now serving his fifth term in this office and is renominated. He is a native of Boston, where he was born in May, 1842, but his present home is in Malden. He has been active in business life up to the time he assumed his present place. He is a Mason, a member of the Royal Arcanum and the A. O. U. W. He has served in the House, and has been prominent in the work of the Republican party for years.

HON. ARTHUR B. CHAPIN.

Of Holyoke, who is renominated this year for treasurer, is now serving with great acceptance his first term. He is a native of Chicopee, where he was born Nov. 17, 1868. He is a graduate of Amherst, and a lawyer by profession. He was elected as mayor of Holyoke five years in succession in a city that is normally Democratic in its vote, and the worth of service he rendered there which was conspicuously of a financial nature, brought him first to attention as a fitting candidate for state treasurer. He is a Mason.

HON. DANA MALONE.

Candidate for attorney-general, is a native of Arcade, N. Y., where he was born in 1857, but he is now a resident of Greenfield. He came to Massachusetts when he was in his teens and after completing his education, entered one of the law offices of Greenfield, where he read law assiduously, and later graduated from Harvard law school. He has built up a very lucrative practice and was for six years trial justice of Greenfield. He has been in the House and Senate and has served as chairman of the committee of judiciary in both branches, showing his ability, and standing in the law. He is now serving as the district attorney of his county. edit dustries, and without sacrificing the American policy of protection to American industries, under which not only the manufacturing, but also the agricultural and mercantile interests of the Commonwealth have largely prospered. The test of protective legislation, however, should not be 'a duty demanded,' but 'is a duty needed.' The General Court approves the action recently taken unanimously by the members of the delegation from this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States, favoring the readjustment of the tariff at the earliest possible time, and it relies with confidence upon them to do all that may properly be done to protect and advance all the interests of Massachusetts when the work of readjustment shall be undertaken by the National Congress.

"If this be not satisfactory, turn to this editorial from the Boston Herald, published during the campaign of 1893: 'We are now holding an election canvass in which no national candidates are in nomination. The simple and sole object of it on the principle laid down should be to elect men who shall be a credit to Massachusetts and her state officers, and shall give her a wise and healthy state policy. The people got away from the politicians so far last year that they insisted upon this even in the face of the seductions of a presidential canvass. Now, however, when there is no presidential canvass and nothing but state issues to be decided, the politicians have come out with more vehemence than ever to compel the people to vote not upon State, but upon national issues. . . . We need not say that this is all illogical, and all opposed to the object for which State elections were decreed by those who framed our form of government. The governor of Massachusetts, the state officers of the Commonwealth, the Legislature of the state, have nothing whatever, directly or indirectly, to do with fixing the tariff, or controlling the currency of the country, except in the case of the Legislature in a year when a United States senator is to be elected, therefore, as it is being held largely on both sides, is a perversion of common sense as applied to our State elections. Frequent elections were objectionable enough when employed for their legitimate purpose of obtaining the best government for the State, because they were unnecessary, expensive, the cause of trouble to the people, which was unproductive of adequate results. Held as they are now, if the politicians have their way, only to declare the opinion of the State on national questions, they are worse. They declare an opinion that is already known, for there is no doubt as to what is the view of Massachusetts upon the currency, and on the tariff that view cannot be made clearer by anything that can come from this election.'

"Is this not as good advice today as it was when it was written? Is there any reason why an independent, not to speak of a Republican, should not vote for the Republican candidates, if, under any circumstances, he ever would? I can see none; nor why we should not triumphantly elect Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., governor, and Hon. Eben S. Draper lieutenant governor, and I believe that we shall."

Letter to Fred J. Read,

Newtownville:

Dear Sir: The handsome residence of Oliver Gildersleeve on Main street, Portland, Conn., was painted in 1888 with Devco and again in 1901.

There's 13 years; there are hundreds of such; the difficulty is to hear of 'em. Reminds of another. The Farrington residence, Rockland, Maine, was painted Devco 21 years ago; the paint was in fair condition 5 years ago, when we saw it; don't know any more. Our agents there, Messrs Farrand, Spear & Co., know. Enclose a stamp, if you write 'em.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

Mr. George Frost

Mr. George Frost, for forty five years a resident of West Newton, died suddenly at his home on Highland street, in that village last Wednesday morning at the age of 76 years.

Mr. Frost was born in Waterbury, Conn., and came to Boston when quite a lad to seek his fortune. At the age of sixteen he began business for himself in a dry goods store at Roxbury and has had a long and honorable business life. Some fifteen years ago he retired from active business retaining only his position of vice president of the George Frost Co. and for a long time has spent his winters on his orange grove in Florida. During his long residence in West Newton he was actively identified with every project for the improvement of the city, church and village and was one of its most respected citizens. He was a member of the Braintree Country Club and had just retired as a trustee of the Newton Cemetery.

Mr. Frost was twice married, his widow and three children by his first wife surviving. Mr. George A. Frost of West Newton, Mrs. George H. Phelps and Mrs. Edward A. Adams of Boston.

Funeral services were held from his late residence 140 Highland street, West Newton, at 2.30 today. Rev. Francis Tiffany officiating and the interment was at Newton Cemetery.

Tootsie Dead

(Contributed.)

Mrs. George H. Shapley of Nevada street lost by death, her very valuable little toy black and tan dog "Tootsie" on Saturday morning last. This dog had won many first prizes at different bench shows and has participated in many charity affairs. He was eleven years of age and weighed three and one half pounds. At the age of two and one half years he took the blue ribbon at the Boston Bench Show and since then he has taken prizes at Newport and other shows. His little daughter, the smallest dog in the world took the first prize at Newport this year. He was a dog who attracted every one who saw him, whether fond of dogs or not, and will be greatly missed, he being the pet of the neighborhood. He was the most intelligent dog of his size in the world and Mrs. Shapley was rarely seen without him, as he was always at all the society functions and had travelled in foreign countries and had twice saved Mrs. Shapley's life from burglars.

Miss Georgiana Harris

Miss Georgiana Harris who has lived alone for a number of years was found dead last Monday night at her home 280 Melrose street, Auburndale, by the Newton police who had been informed that something was wrong by a neighbor.

Miss Harris was of an old family at Rowley and her brother, William H. Harris, died ranking United States commodore after a fine naval career. After living in Charlestown the Harris family moved to Newton. Both Miss Harris' parents died about twenty years ago in Newton. John Harris, her father, was a bank cashier in Boston, and was well known as a financier.

After the death of her relatives Miss Harris moved to the Auburndale district. She taught the piano, violin and voice culture in the Allen School, Newton, for several years.

Funeral services were held yesterday morning at ten o'clock at the Newton Cemetery chapel, Rev. Edward Cummings of Boston officiating. The Mendelssohn quartet sang "Eternal Goodness," "Some Sweet Day" and "Face to Face" and the interment was at the Cemetery.

To the Editor of the Newton Graphic:

It does not seem right that a woman of such rare talent and worth, as was Miss Georgiana M. Harris, of Auburndale, should go from us without some word from one of those to whom she meant much, and for whom she did much. Knowing her for twenty-four years, first as the child pupil and then as the woman friend, I ask room in your paper for this poor bit of verbal appreciation of Miss Harris' work and character.

Dying as she had lived, quietly and alone, with only the dog friend she loved and petted, to watch over the tired worn out body, we, who loved her, can only thank God, in spite of personal grief, for the end of her loneliness and weariness. Miss Harris was so reserved and so bound up in her profession that few knew of her life or the honors that had come to her and of which it was almost impossible to make her talk.

Going to Leipzig at a time when American, girl students of music were almost unknown, she stayed there four years, fighting against great odds and accomplishing an almost incredible amount of work. Not only was she studying the pianoforte, but vocal work and the organ also, all these in a foreign tongue. Her progress and ability were so unusual that it was not long before both Jadassohn and Reinecke claimed her as their pupil, taking her away from the under masters of the conservatory. Her personal friendship with these men was such that they each dedicated some of their compositions to her. At the end of her stay in Leipzig, she gained the whole of the Moscheles prize for pianoforte work. This prize was awarded as the result of a public trial of the applicants, and never before had it been given to one person, but had always been divided between two. But so far superior to other's work, was Miss Harris' musical understanding, expression, and technique that the judges bestowed the prize on her by a unanimous vote. But so modest was she, that when the awards were made, she was on a back seat in the concert hall, wondering who the Miss Harris was who had won that prize.

Her four years in Germany had been one continual round of work in which she never thought of her own health; so she came home to a nervous breakdown, which left it scars on her for the rest of her life. Soon after her return here she was offered a most advantageous position as a concert singer, this offer she refused because her singing did not suit her own musical ideals. So she gave herself to teaching and in this work she showed a wonderful pedagogical ability. We children would put in any amount of work and do anything for Miss Harris. And we were happy indeed, if she would play to us. As we grew older, we realized that there was a rare charm about her playing—a lift to the rhythm, a limpidness to the scales, a beauty of touch, and an insight into the composer's meaning that we found nowhere else except in the best of professionals. Through her training we were taught to know and love the best; to have her scorn and contempt for the tricks, mannerisms, fads, and second best that so many teachers substituted for the best. We were taught to hold technical ability as first helper—but helper only—to musical expression. In short, she taught us music.

Busy as she was with her teaching, Miss Harris was always studying, reading French, German, Italian and Latin, she was a mine of information to her pupils. Master of the laws of acoustics, she explained to us many seemingly inexplicable things. Understanding the theory and art of violin playing, she sent pupils on this instrument, to such men as Mr. Loedler, only to have him praise their training.

She took the most personal interest in her pupils, so that from the time we took our first bit of school sewing to show her, to the very last time we saw her, we could always be sure of her interest. It was only this last August that I spent two hours with her, telling her about my home in a New York apartment, while she threw question after question at me. And even then, she was planning to go to New York this winter for more study with Mr. Virgil. She was simply untiring in her work.

But she never spared herself, and there had to be a result to all this. Some years ago, we who cared, noticed that her brain was tired and was not responding as it had in years before. People had always called Miss Harris "queer," now she was "queerer"; and it hurt to have this so. Her long years of lonely living and work had left her with one great desire—to live and have a home with her brother—her only relative. So she counted on his retirement from the navy and they both planned for this home, only to have him taken away just before their plans were completed. Then was Miss Harris' life a desert of loneliness—the days were years to her and she filled them with everything, all the time longing for what came to her on Monday. Once she said to me, "Why do people have to live when every day is a torture?" So her friends are happy for her now.

Called "queer" by those who were not permitted to know her and see that she had no time for little things because she was busy with great ones; we, who were honored by knowing her, can only be full of gratitude for the woman who opened fields of beauty to us, who took us to concerts we should never have heard otherwise, who sent us on to other masters when she thought we needed a change in teachers, who gave us hours of her time to forward our work with these other masters, who was generous to a fault, never sparing of herself—our friend, always. And we put away the memory of these last, few clouded years to remember her as she really was, a woman who dared to stand opposed to the commercialism of this business, practical age and lived to show others the beauty of music as she saw and knew it.

Loyally,
Frances Hildreth Eddy.

About Town

The new cancelling stamp of the Upper Falls post office is fearfully and wonderfully designed.

State politics are attracting but little attention in this city where Guild and Draper will have an old fashioned Republican majority of about 2000 votes.

There is considerable criticism of the fact that the new station platform at Newton Highlands is not covered. It would seem as if this improvement would be easily obtained.

The aldermen touring the city in automobiles tomorrow will attract considerable attention. The departments will have on their best bib and tucker.

The entertainment course at Auburndale leads the city in point of timeliness and the quality is pretty well up to the head as well.

The project for a walk on the south shore of Crystal Lake is about dead. While a clever suggestion in itself, it failed to consider the practical difficulties in the matter of exits.

Any person attending the annual meeting of the Mothers' Rest Association at the First Baptist church at Newton Centre last week would have been impressed with the earnestness of all present. These women have consecrated a part of their daily lives to this noble work.

There is a new condition of affairs in Company C. The result of the recent election means that the reign of the Georges has begun.

The municipal pot begins to simmer. Many citizens had about decided that the municipal campaign would be a very tame affair. If rumors are true, however, there will be several spirited contests.

The high standard of the Newton schools is a well known fact. In an argument the other day a gentleman stated that he knew of one family that had moved to Newton from Georgia and another from the Sandwich Islands to give their children the superior advantages of the Newton school training.

Organized effort often accomplishes desired results where other means have failed. Such may be the result in Nantucket with the forming of an Improvement Association.

Notwithstanding the refusal of a religious body in New York to admit Unitarians to its deliberation Newton can set a shining example of modern progressiveness and liberality. In one part of the city a weekly paper is printed by five different denominations, in several villages union meetings are held, in which all denominations participate and at a wedding this week in a congregational church the officiating clergyman was a Unitarian.

WRITING WITH FIRE.

How a Boy and Girl Can Produce a Clever Little Show.

Did you ever see any one write his name with flame on a piece of paper without burning anything? The fire seems to travel over the surface until the letters are all outlined, and then it goes out. It looks very weird indeed, especially if the lights have been turned down, but it's nothing but a trick, and any boy or girl can do it. What you need is a few cents' worth of saltpeter, which you can buy at any apothecary's shop, and some pieces of unsized paper. Drop the saltpeter into a bowl of water until no more will dissolve. Then take a wooden toothpick or any other sharpened stick, dip it in the saltpeter and write whatever you like on the paper.

A regular little show might be arranged by a clever boy, or a girl, either, for that matter. It might better be both. The boy could be stage manager and tell a wonderful little tale about the way his star conjurer had been spirited away to some Rider Haggard land, where she had learned some of the mysterious powers over fire known only to the natives of the novellist's strange land. He will then introduce mademoiselle the wizardess, who will proceed to do wonderful things with the fire. She will hold the paper and the match in her hand, and after saying the spell in the language of this strange "people of the mist" the fire will begin to travel over the paper, perhaps spelling a motto or outlining some weird or familiar animal. Of course if you got a good look at the papers you would see a pencil mark indicating where the match should be applied, but otherwise the paper would appear unmarked. The saltpeter dries quickly and on unglazed paper will not show.

THE FLOUR MERCHANT.

A Game of Words in Which You Must Be Quick and Careful.

The one who personates the flour merchant will try every way to dispose of his stock of flour, asking question after question of the others, who must in their answers be careful not to use these words—flour, I, yes or no, as they are forbidden, and the one who is caught using them will have to pay a forfeit.

The flour merchant must persevere in his endeavors to make the players use one of the interdicted words. For instance:

"Do you wish any flour today?"
"There is none required."
"But you will soon want it. Let me persuade you to take some."
"That is impossible."
"Why so? It is the very best flour. Just look at it. It is so very fine and white."
"The quality is a matter of indifference to me."

"But it will make such good, sweet bread. Do take some."
"You have had my answer."

"Have I? I must have forgotten it. What was it?"
"My answer was decidedly not any."

"But, madam, consider. It is a very reasonable price."
"I will not take any."

The flour merchant, having succeeded in making her say "I," proceeds to the next one.

In the Bad Grammar Class.
The class in bad grammar stood up to recite. Following are the questions asked by the teacher and the answers given by the pupils:

Which tense does an army in camp prefer to use? Perfect tense.

What pronouns are universal? You and I—versal.

What pronoun is much smaller in the plural than in the singular number? I. Why? Because big I in the singular is wee in the plural.

In declining the possessive pronouns, under what circumstances would "mine" not be declined? When it was a gold one.

This Frog Fies.
A species of frog found in Borneo has very long toes, webbed to the tip. This creature can leap from a high tree and by spreading its toes be supplied with four little parachutes which enable it to easily descend. Hence it is called "the flying frog."

Timmy Toole and Willie Wise.
Said Timmy Toole: "I wish I knew as much as Willie Wise."
He always has his "ritimetic" And wins the spelling prize."

Said Willie Wise: "If I could play baseball like Timmy Toole And win the tennis match I'd be 'The happiest boy in school!'"

Mr. Hiram Borden

Mr. Hiram Borden, father of Mrs. S. P. Darling of Parsons street, West Newton, passed away in the Sherman hospital in Medford last Friday. He was a native of Nova Scotia and was 87 years of age. He is survived by five daughters. Funeral services were held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Amos Kincaid on Freemont avenue, Chelsea, at 2:30, Rev. L. B. Bates officiating, and the interment was in the family lot in the Garden Cemetery, Chelsea.

Mrs. Sarah L. Sawyer

Mrs. Sarah Lovejoy Sawyer widow of the late Frederick T. Sawyer died Thursday of last week at the home of her daughter Mrs. David S. Blampied on Crafts street, Newtonville. She was a native of Amherst, N. H., and was 62 years of age. Mrs. Sawyer, years ago, passed through the great bank robbery experience at her home in Milford at the time "Jimmy" Hope robbed the Southwestern National Bank of which her husband was cashier. Mrs. Sawyer was a member of the Milford Congregational church and was formerly active in the society life of the town. She leaves two sons and two daughters. The funeral took place at Milford on Sunday at 2:30 and the interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

City Hall Notes.

Mayor Weed, Street Commissioner Ross, City Engineer Farnham, Water Commis'r Whitney and City Solicitor Slocum made an inspection of the Metropolitan water works dam and basin at Clinton on Wednesday. The party went in automobiles and some of them were rather late in reaching home on account of automobile troubles.

Mayor Weed has invited the Board of Aldermen to inspect the public works and buildings tomorrow. The trip will include visits to the fire, police and school buildings and the important work of grade crossings on the south side.

If the voters of this city will carefully consider the qualifications of the respective candidates for lieutenant governor, the specious arguments on national affairs advanced in the interests of Mr. Whitney will soon fall to the ground and the issue clearly set forth of right down personal character. With the elimination of the tariff and reciprocity arguments, and everyone admits that neither has any possible bearing on the office of lieutenant governor, the voters are asked to choose between a man who admits using the lobby at the state house to gain his own personal ends, and a gentleman whose reputation, either as an employer of labor, as a successful business man and as a good citizen, is without a stain. We do not see how any respectable man in Newton, can vote for Mr. Whitney, in the light of the insurance scandals, Lawson charges and other matters of recent history of grafting and lobbying. Mr.
Whitney is a confessed lobbyist. That fact alone ought to defeat him. Mr.
Draper is clean, honest and above reproach. He should be elected.

The appointment of "Bob" Harrison as Lieutenant of police will be a popular one as Officer Harrison is one of the best liked men in the force. For years, Mr. Harrison has declined offers of promotion and his new honors will be worthily worn.

Mr. Lowell Mentioned.

Speaking of the contest for Speakership of the next House of Representatives, the Springfield Republican says:

"The chances are that some man from the eastern part of the State will carry off the prize. Viewing the matter from the practical side, the common belief is that Mr. Luce's positive virtues as a representative, his strong opposition in the public interest to corporation legislation, which did not commend itself to his judgment and conscience, will handicap his chances." Mr. Luce has been prominent in connection with the election law, taxation questions, and as an opponent of last year's railroad merger bill. The two year's service of Joseph Walker has been valuable and full of promise. Another of the younger men of good background and quality is also in the running, W. Rodman Peabody of Cambridge, who represents the old district of Speaker Myers, and is the son of Professor Francis W. Peabody.
Messrs. Walker and Peabody are men of conscience and ability, who have also been regarded of the public interest during their legislative service. James A. Lowell of Newton is another name mentioned. He has also served a couple of years in the House, with credit, and has proved himself a strong personality, with high ideals of public service.
Out of this list the man most likely to find favor with railroad interests is perhaps Mr. Cole of Andover. It is plain that a lively contest is in order, and that appeals for support are already being made to those who expect to serve in the lower branch of the next Legislature.

Clubs and Lodges

A large number were present at the whist party given by the L.O.O.F.M.V. at their rooms in the Nonantum last Friday. The first prize for gentlemen, a silver shaving set, was won by Percy
B. Ward; second prize, an umbrella, won by J. M. Stuart. First prize for ladies, a chocolate set, won by Miss Madeline Sweet, second prize, an ice cream set, won by Miss Bessie Walton.
Refreshments followed whist after which the floor was cleared and a large number enjoyed dancing.

The degree staff of Middlesex Court exemplified the ceremony of initiation on several candidates of John Henry Newman Court of Everett on Tuesday evening. The annual harvest party of the court will be held this evening at the lodge room in Newton.

DIED.

RICE—At Framingham, Oct. 26, Mary Hyde Rice, aged 103 yrs. 6 mos., formerly of Newton. Funeral from the residence of Mr. F. R. Glover, Framingham, Saturday, Oct. 28 at 1 p.
m. Burial private.

E. W. Burt
Mr. Knickerbocker Shoe.

While Lynn is famous the world over for its many and varied shoe manufactories, the number of concerns producing shoes that have a pronounced individuality or national fame are limited.
Such as have this distinction, however, produce footwear that is unrivalled by shoe specialists in any part of the Globe, and among them must be mentioned the finely-equipped and notable house of E.
W. Burt & Company, 210-221 Market street. They are makers of the famous Knickerbocker shoe for men and women, exclusive styles for collegians and the high class trade, retailing from $3.50 to $8.00, and a guaranteed waterproof hunting boot. Two floors are occupied, equipped with the most modern and improved machinery, and requiring 200 hands for its operation. The products are sold on their merits, in constant demand wherever known, and retailed in the company's own stores and through 100 New England representatives. Their largest and finest store, 40 West street, Boston, is an acknowledged institution of the city. Other stores are about to he opened in the largest American cities.

The industry was established in 1898, and incorporated in 1903. E. W. Burt, president and treasurer, was born in Boston, and educated in the public and Hopkins schools. He entered the factory of his father, founder of the celebrated Burt boot business, in Brookfield, Mass., and learned every branch of shoe making.
Today he is considered one of New England's most sagacious and progressive representatives of the shoe trade, and is highly esteemed in business and social circles. Mr. Burt is a great lover of outdoor sports and an interesting writer about them, contributing to the Maine Woods, National Sportsman and various Boston papers. He has also written a book, "In the Wilderness," now in its second edition. Mr. Burt resides in Brookline, and is a member of the Appalachian and N. H. clubs of Boston.

Mrs. Mary Hyde Rice

Mrs. Mary Hovey Hyde Rice, the widow of the late Prescott Rice and a sister of the late Deacon N. N. Hyde of Newton, died yesterday at the residence of Mrs. Frank R. Glover, at Framingham at the age of 100 years, 6 months.

Mrs. Rice was a native of Newton, having been born in the Hyde homestead in Nonantum square and for many years was a resident of this city.
About five years ago after the death of her only daughter, the wife of Mr. Albert P. Bugbee of Newton she removed to Framingham. She is survived by two grandchildren, Henry H. Bugbee of Walington, D. C., and Miss Edwina F.
Bugbee of Wellesley. The funeral will take place from the Glover residence, Framingham, tomorrow at one o'clock.

Police Paragraphs.

While attending the funeral of Timothy Davis in West Newton last Monday, two colored ladies from Boston got into a row and as a result Judge Kennedy on Wednesday imposed a fine of $10 on Georgie Whitfield on complaint of Carrie E. Sutton. The Sutton woman claimed that Georgie stepped on her pet corn on purpose and a little mutual jealousy did the rest.

SCHOOL BOARD

Evening Classes Quite Popular

The October meeting of the school Committee was held Wednesday night,
Mr. Gorham in the chair and Messrs
Tucker, Knowlton, Rothfield, Morton, Bassett, Howard, Wells, Smith, Caverly, Tilney and Miss Cobb being present.

A hearing was granted Benjamin F.
Adams of the High School regarding payment for his tuition as a non-resident pupil, and later in the evening an order was adopted excluding him from the school until his tuition bills had been paid and if payment was delayed, he was not to be admitted if the work which had been missed would render his return a detriment to the interests of the school.

The superintendent's report on the need of a primary school at Oak Hill for the 12 to 15 children who should not be compelled to undergo the hardships of a long ride and a long school day at Newton Centre was approved and authority granted to open such a school.
The superintendent also reported a large enrollment at the evening schools of 212 in the English and 51 in the drawing, necessitating additional teachers. The committee requested an appropriation of $250 for evening schools for December and appointed these additional teachers:
Abbie I. Fiske and Florence J. Everett at the English school and Albert S. Kendall in the drawing school.

The resignations of C. Everett Gaffney of the Emerson school and of L. Jeanette Sanders of the Pierce school were accepted and Louise Lenter appointed to the place of the latter.

Further room was granted each evening in the week to the S. S. S. club.
This club is under the auspices of the Kings Daughters of the Central church and teaches girls sewing, dressmaking and millinery.

The Christmas vacation was fixed as from Dec. 22 to Jan. 2, 1906.

The Sale of Seven

The much planned for, and much talked about "Rainbow Sale" or "Sale of Seven" given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A. commencing at 3 o'clock and continuing through the evening.
Home made pies and cakes, fancy articles, kitchen utensils etc., all will be on sale. In the evening an entertainment will be given by Dudley Prescott, the humorist, musical mimic, and ventriloquist; who is without doubt the most versatile performer in New England.

Angier-Loveland

The wedding of two popular young people in Newton society took place last Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock at the Eliot Church, when Miss Bessie Loveland, the daughter of Mrs. Isaiah T. Loveland of Fairview street became the bride of Mr. Ralph W. Angier, the son of Mrs. George Angier of Waban park. The church was well filled with the many friends of the young couple and the pulpit was effectively decorated with tall palms, ferns and white crysanthemums. Mr. Everett E. Truette presided at the organ.

The bride dressed in white liberty satin, with a tulle veil, was preceded down the aisle by her sister, Miss Ethel M. Loveland, the maid of honor and the ushers, Mr. William T. Coppins and Mr. Chess W. Flinn of Newton, Mr.
Guy B. Haskell of Bloomington, Ill., Dr. Conrad Bell of Waltham, Mr. Gibson Bell of Cambridge and Mr. Henry A. Goddard of Boston. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Fred H.
Loveland of Newton. Mr. George Angier, brother of the groom was the best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev.
Adelbert L. Hudson of the Channing Church, the double ring service being used, and Rev. Franklin S. Hatch acting pastor of the Eliot Church pronounced the benediction.

There was a small reception for relatives and intimate friends at the Loveland residence on Fairview street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Angier left for a wedding trip.

After January first, Mr. and Mrs.
Angier will be at home at 189 Bellevue street, Newton.

New Police Lieutenant

ROBERT S. HARRISON,
The New Lieutenant of Police.

Chief Mitchell announces the appointment of Patrolman Robert S. Harrison as Lieutenant of police to take effect on November 1st.

Robert S. Harrison was born in the house he now occupies on Beacon street,
Newton Lower Falls, November 22, 1852, and is consequently about 53 years of age. In 1875 he was appointed by Mayor Hyde a special police officer and

Mayor Fowle in January 1878 made him a regular officer. Since that time Mr.
Harrison has made an enviable record as an officer, serving 12 years as night patrolman at Lower Falls and as day officer in Newton, Nonantum, West Newton and as House officer at Newton, without reprimand or censure.

Mr. Harrison is married and has two daughters and one son.

Coming Attractions

Keith's Theatre—The Six Musical Cutties, three brothers and three sisters, who scored the big hit of the instrumental acts at Keith's last winter, will be the leading attraction at that playhouse the week of Oct. 30. This organization has an international reputation for the superiority of its pleasing instrumental performances and will undoubtedly score heavily with patrons of the varieties hereabouts. Among the more notable entertainers included in the surrounding program will be the Five Mowatts, unquestionably the greatest organization of juvenile club jugglers in the world, who will prove especially interesting to frequenters of gymnasia; Lew Sully, monologue and singing comedian; Thomas J. Ryan and Mary Richfield in one of their funny Irish character sketches, "Mike Haggerty's Daughter;" Augusta Glose, a young woman of most pleasing personality in a musical monologue; the Pantzer trio, contortionist and comedians; the Chamberlains, rope manipulators and lasso experts; Chadwick trio, in a singing and dancing sketch; Naomi Ehardo, skillful European equilibrist, and Clarice and Yarrington, singers and dancers. Joe Reichen with his wonderful troupe of acrobatic dogs will be the special attraction for the children, and a complete new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph.

Majestic Theatre—The fourth week of "As Ye Sow" at the Majestic Theatre begins Monday, Oct. 30th, with a record of crowded houses which has not been duplicated by any attraction in Boston for several seasons. Nearly every night the past weeks it has been necessary to put the orchestra under the stage in order to secure extra seating accommodations and all the standing room was filled as well. The out of town patronage is contributing to this success quite as much as the city patronage and in order to accommodate the out of town theatregoers the Majestic Theatre management announces that it will hold telephone orders for them until 7.30 of the evening of the performance for the evening for which the tickets are ordered, although in the case of the city patrons the demand for seats is so great that they are refusing to hold orders later than 6 o'clock. Those living at a distance from Boston must bear in mind that there are matinees on Wednesday and Saturday during this engagement.

that extended to the street. Manager Schoeffel announces that it is the largest advance sale for opera in the history of the Tremont, and that theatre has had some heavy sales in its time. The cash local and out of town orders totalled thousands of dollars, and point to the most prosperous engagement Mr. Savage's pet organization has ever enjoyed in Boston. The engagement opens Monday night with Verdi's "Aida," that is to be repeated at the Wednesday matinee, "Lohengrin" comes Tuesday night, with "Rigoletto" Wednesday, "Tannhauser" Thursday and at Saturday's matinee, "La Boheme" Friday night, and "Faust" on Saturday night.

Castle Square Theatre—The first Shakespearean production of the season at the Castle Square Theatre will be made next Monday, when "Much Ado About Nothing" will be staged for an engagement of one week only. The scenery, costumes, and all the stage-settings at the Castle Square will be especially prepared for this production. All the scenes have been designed by Frank Chouteau Brown, and will be prepared under his personal direction. The play will, moreover, bring out the varied resources of the Castle Square Stock company, headed by John Craig in the character of Benedick, and Lillian Kemble as Beatrice. For the week of November 6th, a revival of "William Gillette's civil war play, "Secret Service" is announced.

High School Notes

Mr. A. J. George's Select Poems of Robert Browning bear the following dedication which will interest many Newton people: To the Memory of Francis B. Hornbrooke D. D., Sometime President of the Boston Browning Society. A ripe scholar and rare friend.

Mr. Augustine Jones of Lincoln street was elected a vice president of the Gov. Thomas Dudley Family Association at the annual meeting held at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, Tuesday evening.

The Monday Club will have its first luncheon of the season with Mrs. Jones on October 30 at one o'clock. This is for members only, but guests may be invited by the payment of twenty-five cents to the lecture by Rev. Thomas Van Ness at three o'clock.

Auburndale.

Mr. E. F. Breck of Auburn street was in Clinton the last of the week where he went to attend the funeral of his mother.

The many friends here of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Walsh of Jamaica Plain will be interested to learn of the recent birth of a daughter.

About 25 members of the Woman's Guild of the Church of the Messiah went to Weston on Tuesday and took lunch at the residence of Miss Loring.

The annual meeting of the Gordon Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held Tuesday afternoon in the vestry of the Congregational church. There was a good attendance and plans were discussed for the coming year.

At Lasell Seminary Thursday evening a good number of the students and their friends were present to hear Mr. Leon H. Vincent give his lecture on "Theophile Gautier, the Historiographer Royal of the Romantic Movement."

The opening entertainment in the course to be given under the auspices of the Auburndale Village Improvement Society took place Monday evening in Norumbega hall. The talent was the Boston Philharmonic Sextette, all members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the artistic program consisted of flute, violin and cello solos, a selection by the string quartette and several by the sextette.

An interesting fact which has just become known is to the effect that Dr. Nathaniel N. Morse of Auburn place was married more than a year ago to Miss Helen Louise Stewart formerly of Auburn street. The ceremony took place in Providence. Dr. Morse preferred to keep it secret until he had established a good practice. While in Dartmouth Dr. Morse was prominent socially and was leader of the glee club. Their future residence will be at 222 East 17th street, New York.

Newton Centre.

The Stebbins Alliance will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2.30.

Mills undertaking rooms, 813 Washington street, Newtonville. Tel. Newton 112-3.

Mr. Ernest N. Boyden of Edinboro street is the architect for the alterations and improvements which are being made to the block of the Wellesley Association at Wellesley.

CHORISTER CLUB CONCERT

A most successful and novel entertainment was given in Bray hall last Wednesday evening by the Newton Chorister Club under the direction of Mr. Robert Seaman. The club, which is a recent organization, won many laurels and gave the audience a rare treat.

It is made up of seven boy singers between the ages of ten and fourteen, together with a tenor, Mr. Charles F. Atwood, and a bass, Mr. Seaman, and is assisted at its concerts by Lucille McConville, a most talented child of twelve, who plays the cello in a fashion to amaze even the most critical.

The program Wednesday evening was as follows:

MadeleineRoedel
Chorister Club.
Tenor Solos
a. "Estacy"Mrs. Beach
b. "By the Sea"Victor Harris
Mr. Atwood.

Cello Solos
a. "Berceuse"Godard
b. "La Filieuse"Dunkler
Lucille McConville.

"Tarry With Me, O My Savior" Baldwin
(Solo by Mr. Seaman)
Chorister Club.

Soprano Solo
"Sweetheart"Powell
Harold Perrin

Baritone Solos
a. The Temple Bells Woodforde-Finden
b. Malgre MoiPfeiffer
Mr. Seaman

"Who Knows What the Bells Say?" Parker
Chorister Club.

Soprano Solo
"Open thy blue eyes"Massenet
Howard Fessenden

Cello solo
MusetteOffenbach
Lucille McConville.

The Owl on the Pussy Cat Ingleham
Solos by Lester Davis and Ralph Pratt
Chorister Club

The boys sang each and every chorus with expression, with perfect intonation and with care that showed the conscientious training they have had. Each voice was chosen for special merit and most of the young singers are soloists in some choir.

It is difficult to say which selection gave the greatest pleasure all being received with the most generous applause.

Miss McConville's cello solos were encored and applauded to the echo as the wonderful little artist played her way straight in to her hearer's hearts.

Masters Perrin and Fessenden, soprano soloists, both covered themselves with glory, and the tenor solos by Mr. Atwood were among the best numbers on the program.

Master Howard Fessenden, who made on this occasion his first appearance before a Newton Centre audience, proved one of the surprises of the evening. His voice, a rich soprano, showed to fine advantage in the Massenet aria, and his high, clear tones rang out especially at the end, with great effect. The quality of his voice is an unusual one and resembles that of a woman rather than a boy, having a certain roundness and warmth, not often found in a young singer.

There were flowers for Miss McConville and Miss Melick and a laurel wreath for Mr. Seaman and the hall was most charmingly decorated and beautified by floral pieces and cut plants.

The nurses in their blue and white uniforms acted as ushers.

The Chorister Club is destined to fill an important place in concert attractions in future, their opening concert promises a great success for them hereafter.

Miss Gertrude Melick, president of the Nurses Alumnae Association, was in charge of the entire affair and most efficiently did she perform her work. The concert was for the benefit of the Alumnae Association and a large sum was realized, thanks to the nurses and the patronesses.

THE HALF-DOLLAR MUSIC SERIES

A unique edition and one that will be of interest to all music lovers, whether teachers or students, is the "Half-Dollar Music Series," published by the Oliver Ditson Company. It consists of twenty-six different books, each containing sixty or more pages of music of proven acceptability. Eleven volumes of this series are for piano solo, some being in the very easiest grades for beginners. "Waltzes and Two-steps for the Piano" and "Easy Salon Music," while of a popular order, are not in the same class with the "rag-time" variety, which, we regret to say, is found in many homes where one would expect to find music more in keeping with a higher standard of intelligence. Three books of piano duets are among the number, and other volumes are for the violin, mandolin and other instruments. "Thirty Songs for Children" is a book that will furnish entertainment to the little ones for many a long winter evening.

One of the latest additions to the series and a collection that is sure to meet with favor is "Popular Church Organ Pieces," compiled and edited by Hans Richter. This book comprises fourteen numbers, all of which are eminently suited to the church service. The registration in every number is clearly indicated and they may be played on two manual organs. "Haff's Cavalry," "Chopin's Nocturne in G Minor," "Consolation" and "Spring Song" by Mendelssohn and "Lovely Appeal" from "The Redemption" are among the contents of this book. One organist writes: "I am much pleased with Popular Church Organ Pieces, the type is good, the form convenient and the pieces therein 'popular' in the best sense of the word."

The price of the volumes of the series are uniformly 50 cents, as is the title implies. This includes postage. A complete catalog of the Half-Dollar Music Series, giving description and the contents of each volume, will be sent free, postpaid, to any address by applying to the Oliver Ditson Company, 101 Tremont Street, Boston.

WORN OUT?

Are Your Strength and Energy Gone?

If you are discouraged and despondent and wish to die, it is not because everything is black before you. It is simply because your vitality is so low and you are so weak that you have not the courage to face a lifetime.

Eminent physicians have been attracted by similar cases and after making a careful and scientific study of their requirements have compounded a remedy called Vin-Tone, which builds up body and mind in a remarkably short time.

Vitality is what you need and vitality is what Vin-Tone gives.

We tell you of this preparation hoping it may find its way into every home where man, woman or child is suffering from lack of energy.

Vin-Tone can be procured at a very trivial expense and will build up your system as it has thousands of others. Sold on a positive guarantee by

"As Ye Sow," at the Majestic Theatre, Boston.

Grand Opera House, "Queen of the Highlands," the new melodrama, owned, staged and produced by A. H. Woods, and which will be the next attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House, can boast of more surprises, stirring situations, thrilling climaxes and scenic effects to the square inch than any play of its kind written in the past decade. From the rise of the curtain, to the finish of the play, action is incessant. There is no attempt at exaggeration; every scene and incident in this absorbing play being true to life, and a faithful reproduction of the places they are supposed to represent. The plot is a novel, yet plausible one. The characters move and act like real human beings. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Tremont Theatre—A force of three ticket sellers in the Tremont box office have since last Monday had the busiest time since the advance sale for "Parsifal" at that theatre last season. It was the sale for the opera season of sixteen performances by the Savage English Grand Opera Company, and when the window was closed at six o'clock each afternoon to give "College Wads" patrons an opportunity to buy seats, there was still a line of grand opera people

The New England Women's Club of Boston gives its annual reception to members of women's clubs within limits of greater Boston on Monday evening and several prominent Newton women are invited besides numerous residents of this city who are enrolled on its membership list. Among these is Mrs. E. N. L. Walton of West Newton who is one of the vice presidents of the N. E. W. club. As the club has recently taken possession of its new quarters in the Grundmann Studios, the suite of rooms recently occupied by the College Club which has moved to a home of its own, the occasion will be a house-warming and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and some distinguished guests are expected to be present.

Electric Table Lamps

Some Show Tree Effects—Dragon
Flies and Flowers Decorate Others

The new electric table lamps for use in library, drawing room or boudoir are exceedingly attractive. Moreover, some of them have that home effect which was supposed to belong to the oil lamp only.

"Most of the shades," said a dealer, "are made of stained and leaded glass. There are pearly colors for light rooms and rich peacock shades for rooms done in the heavy, glorious peacock coloring which is the go now. Every degree of color tone, you see, from faintest to darkest.

"Each leaf in this tulip is a separate piece of glass." He pointed to a globe covered with yellow and red tulips. "The soldering in lead is done delicately, and its dark lines add a distinctive character to the shades.

"Among the newest lamps those of the tree design stand conspicuous for their beauty of outline and coloring. The wide, spreading dome shaped globe slightly flattened on the top and curving over at the side well below the light is decorated with a design in foliage and flowers.

"The slender standard in green toned bronze is wrought in tree trunk lines. A flare of roots forms the graceful base to the standard. An apple tree, green leaved over the top of the shade and pink blossomed about the drooping edge, supplies another design.

"The globe of another lamp shows marsh flowers and great dragon flies. The light green bronze of the standard carries down to a base of roots the stems of the big leaved flowers.

"A tripod holding aloft a shaded brazier is a favorite design. The scroll supports of many of the lamps curve over a beautiful central vase of some ware harmonizing with the glass of the shade.

"Very low lamps intended for use on the library table to throw light on the pages of a book come in the conch shell conceit seen last season. The great number of these shells seen this season proves their power for charm. Lighted, the shell glows with soft pink light, but pours from its mouth a stream of clear light to read by.

"The shell is held on a little bronze rest, in which it works on a pivot. A variation to the usual design is seen in the standard of one—a little mermaid in sea green bronze holds aloft the great shell.

"Glass butterflies wrought in all the varied butterfly colors come swung on chains to be hung over a lampshade to serve as a further screen for the light."

Bracelets Return to Favor

A Fashion Due to the Short Sleeve's
Vogue

Jewellers like the short sleeve, for it has led to a boom in bracelets.

The piece of jewelry over which women who spent the summer abroad show most enthusiasm is a bracelet, and it is a bracelet, or a pair of bracelets, that the debutante or the bride-to-be or the matron or maid still young enough to have birthdays has in mind when she demurely throws out hints as to the gift which would please her the most.

The short sleeve had a vogue on the other side of the ocean before it came here. Therefore European designers of jewelry began to get busy in the bracelet line some time ago. In New York, say the specialists, the triumph of the bracelet will occur about the time society is back in town and the opera season opens.

"There is this new feature in connection with bracelets," remarked one jeweller. "They don't sell in pairs, as formerly."

"The chic woman doesn't wear one bracelet only on each arm in these days, but hangs four or five or half a dozen on one arm and wears none at all or perhaps a single bangle on the other. Oftentimes the single bracelet is worth more than the half dozen put together.

"By these marks the distinctively fashionable woman will be known this season. She will not wear the same number of bracelets on both arms, and her bracelets will match in color tone even though entirely different in design and cost. She will not, for example, wear turquoises and emeralds on the same arm.

"One of the newest designs in the costlier bracelets is a very narrow band of finely braided platinum, scarcely one eighth of an inch wide, supporting an elaborate diamond ornament which reaches almost or quite across the wrist. This may be in the design of a bow knot, a flower or a conventional pattern. Against a gold band the diamond ornament would not be nearly so effective as against the platinum. This style of bracelet is not intended to be worn next another bracelet.

"With few exceptions the bracelets of which we sell a quartet at a time are uniform in width and of the flexible link variety. These are made of semi-precious stones as well as precious stones, cut in oblongs, rounds, squares, and connected with gold open-work.

"A favorite, though quite costly, design is of filigree gold about one-quarter of an inch wide and studded at intervals of one inch with colored stones—emeralds, turquoises, rubies or amethysts. There is no metal back of the stones to detract from their brilliancy.

"Oh, yes, there are plenty of bracelets minus jewels. A very good design is of filigree gold wrought in Italian style, perfectly flexible and about a third of an inch wide; and a second is composed of alternating links, oblong in shape and a quarter inch wide, and pointed squares, so to speak, about two-thirds of an inch from point to point.

"So far there is not much demand here for stiff gold bracelets, although I believe they are taking fairly well in England.

"An actress came in the other day to have altered the clasp of a bracelet presented to her while in London. I was interested to notice that it was a revival of the old convex gold bracelet of fifty or more years ago, barring its bright finish.

"The thing was a trifle more than half an inch wide and it was modernized by dulling the gold and tinting it in spots a pale green and sinking into it, level with the surface, round topazes an eighth of an inch in diameter. The bracelet had an Oriental look and was remarkably effective as the owner wore it clasped over a black lace sleeve.

"Egyptian, Moorish and Italian bracelets have been reproduced and brought up to date for this season's wear and they are all more or less gorgeous, for the reason that quantities of semi-precious stones are used in their makeup.

"For full dress occasions, though, women of wealth match their bracelets or harmonize them at least with the other jewels they are wearing. One of our customers, by the way, picked out four bracelets the other day set with turquoises to match a turquoise collar and corsage ornaments she is much given to wearing.

"Two of these bracelets are alike and may be linked together to form a necklace. That idea is one of the new wrinkles of the newest bracelet designs, which pleases women immensely. To be able to alternate wearing bracelets and a necklace without the expense of buying both appeals to the woman of few jewels.

"It is for the same reason that the pearl collars, which include a two-inch section of diamonds in the front, sell better than any of the others. The diamond section unhooked and may be worn as a separate ornament.

"Next to the bracelets we have more new designs in earrings than in almost any other article of jewelry, for the reason that the drop is in again. By this I mean a small solitaire resting against the ear, from which hangs a long drop of some sort.

"No, it doesn't make the least difference what the stone is, although diamonds and pearls have the preference. In other jewelry the emerald leads this year.

"The drop earring may be a single, a double or a triple drop, it may have a quarter inch or an inch drop, and it may taper or broaden toward the lower end. Some women can wear a long drop better than a short one and vice versa. Indications are that before the end of the winter earrings may broaden out to almost a fringe.

When the ever interesting topic of engagement rings was broached, the jeweller had this to say:

"The solitaire diamond so long the approved design for engagement rings is almost eclipsed by the three stone design set in a group, or occasionally lengthwise, one above the other. Naturally this is one of the costliest rings.

"Next to it in favor is a single large diamond surrounded with smaller ones, the diamond in many cases being cut heart-shaped. When a very young woman picks out her engagement ring almost invariably she inclines to the heart-shaped diamond, surrounded with smaller diamonds. It appeals to her sentiments. Left to himself almost invariably a man buys a solitaire, or two or three good sized stones set in a group.

"Often, too, young women like to include their birth stone in the engagement ring, particularly if it is a ruby or emerald. In fact colored stones are much more popular for engagement rings than they once were, and nine times out of ten the colored stone is surrounded with small diamonds or pearls."—N. Y. Sun.

Women with Federal Jobs

11,250 of Them According to the Last Report

It is more than forty years since Gen. Spinner, who has been called "the father of the employment of women in the Federal service," found places for a few women in the Treasury Department at Washington. He was then Treasurer of the United States, and there was a great dearth of eligible employees in consequence of the drafts made upon the young men of the country by the civil war. Gen. Spinner proposed the employment of women in place of men, and the idea which he stated has gone on almost uninterruptedly since, but not to the extent that is popularly supposed.

By the last Government report it appears that there are 122,000 men in the Federal service of the Government as clerks, bureau chiefs and messengers, of whom not one-half receive $850 a year or less.

There are 11,250 women and girls in the Federal departments, of whom 6,363, somewhat more than half, receive less than $720 a year. Of this number 2,000 are in the Post Office service, 1,150 in the Treasury Department, 1,500 in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, 1,000 in the Indian service, 650 in the Government Printing Office, 200 in the War Department, 950 in the Pension Office, 86 in the Navy Department, 707 in the Department of Agriculture and 19 in the Department of State.

Less than 10 per cent. of the Federal employees are women, and a great majority of them hold minor positions at small pay. An outcry was made after the close of the civil war by those who feared that by the employment of women and girls men were deprived of a fair chance of livelihood in Washington, but the fact is that the number of men has increased very much more largely than the number of women in Federal departments during the last twenty-five years.—N. Y. Sun.

Foreign Curios

The display of Foreign Curios at Mr. Shepherd's Art Rooms, 372 Boylston Street, is one of much interest to collectors and those who have traveled abroad. The first consideration and one which will commend itself to every visitor is the genuine quality which appears in every article. In this day of imitations, reproductions and fakes it requires the skill and best judgment that comes from years of experience in foreign shops to select that which has the quality of genuineness.

The collection contains fine old jewels—rings and other articles of personal adornment. A few laces and embroideries especially fine and rare from Old Florence. A number of Etruscan and Egyptian antiquities that seem to have the remote ages about them, some armor of the 17th century from the Orient, and Cashmere shawls, marvels of hand wrought fineness. Dutch scent bottles in curious wrought glass and silver. Miniatures that tell the stories of years long gone by. Rosaries and amulets that have counted the prayers of devout generations. Sketches and Drawings by the hands of old masters and some modern

Charles W. Bartlett

FOR GOVERNOR.

His Election

Would be interpreted as an imperative order to Congress that the welfare of Massachusetts industries must no longer be sacrificed for some other section of the country.

Charles W. Bartlett for Governor

Stands squarely upon the understandable platform favoring Reciprocity with Canada and other countries, as well as the placing upon the free list of hides, coal, iron, lumber and wood pulp.

Charles W. Bartlett for Governor

Is in every way qualified to perform the duties of the office, and would administer his trust in the interest of the whole people.

Tuesday, Nov. 7, is Election Day.

BE SURE TO VOTE FOR

Charles W. Bartlett for Governor.

"I consider Charles W. Bartlett in every way qualified to continue the work already begun in Massachusetts looking to a revision of the tariff duties and the making of reciprocal trade treaties in the interests of our industries."—WILLIAM L. DOUGLAS.

For Hampton Institute

The educational work for Negroes and Indians will be presented at the afternoon service of the Channing church Sunday, November 5, at 4 o'clock by Rev. H. B. Frissell, Principal. There will also be short addresses from two of the graduates of the institute who will tell something of what is being done by the young men and women who have received their training, and who are now helping their people. Music will be furnished by the Hampton Quartet, who sing the quaint old plantation melodies. The public are invited to attend this service.

It pays the buyer to buy from an advertiser and to say he saw the article advertised in this or that paper. The man who mentions an advertisement when buying goods really gets the best possible service, even better than the regular customer when this is possible. Why? Simply because the advertiser pays good money for his advertisement and he is glad to hear from it. It is a compliment to his good business judgment.

Literary Notes

The November issue of Suburban Life, while bearing signs of the approaching holiday season, is as replete as usual with practical suggestions to suburban home makers. A pleasant, chatty article on supplying the Thanksgiving market with turkeys is contributed by Frances E. Wheeler, who is one of the few women in this country engaged in turkey raising. Many will be interested in "Feathered Pets and Their General Care," for almost every home nowadays includes some kind of a domesticated bird. Mr. Stowe, in a beautifully illustrated article, gives some valuable suggestions on how to care for these pets. The idea of using pieces of furniture or relics past their usefulness as movable trellises for vines is exploited by Eva Ryman-Gaillard, and Hugo Erichsen writes on the management of a small greenhouse and what to grow in it. Another floral article by Luke J. Donaghe tells how to succeed with ferns and rubber plants, while Professor Maynard writes an entertaining and practical article entitled "The Intelligent Use of Climbing Vines," with many illustrations. In the horticultural line especially interesting are "How to Have Greens All the Year Round" and "How to Grow Strawberries and Cucumbers in Winter." A practical article on bee culture is written by Richard A. Coleman, entitled "Getting the Bees into Winter Quarters," and Ida M. Angell and Ida D. Bennett, two well-known writers on out-door subjects, have contributed respectively "Conditions for Storing Late Vegetables" and "Winter Protection in the Garden." A charming story of bird life, describing how the author found the nests of the red-eyed vireo, white-eyed vireo and the warbling vireo, is told by Sarah E. Wilcox. Some practical articles of permanent value are "How to Kill Poison Ivy," "Preserving Autumn Leaves," "Breaking a New Garden," "How to Dispose of the Waste," "November Work in Orchard and Garden" and "Holiday Decorations." A humorous Thanksgiving story is contributed by Ellen E. Rexford. The cover design of this issue is beautiful and unique, with ears of red corn as a background and a central picture of an old-fashioned fireplace with crane and blazing log. As the only ten-cent magazine of country life, Suburban Life is steadily pushing its way to the front rank of national periodicals.

THE MOTHERS' REST

Reports Read at Recent Annual Meeting

$5,000 in Building Fund, and Much Good Work Accomplished

COMMITTEE ON HOUSE AND GROUNDS.

Early in the season of 1905 it was found that the owner of the house on Winchester street intended to sell the property and it was only after much persuasion that he was induced to give a lease of it to the Mothers' Rest Association for another year. On this account it seemed best to the committee to expend no more money upon the house than was necessary for the yearly cleaning.

This was done early in May. A new range which had been obtained for us by interested friends at a very low price was set up in the kitchen, and has been the cause of much satisfaction throughout the summer to both workers and guests.

About a week before the opening of the house the committee spent a pleasant and strenuous day putting the furniture in place, making up the beds and doing their best to give an inviting and homelike appearance to each of the nineteen rooms.

On Saturday, June 10th, a reception was held at the Rest; the whole house was open to all interested in the work, and new encouragement is given the committee by the increasing number of friends seen at these yearly opening days.

We were happy in the fact that Miss Alice Creelman was able to continue her work of matron of the Rest for this year; her presence is a benediction and to her cheerful sympathetic care of the guests who come to the house and of the workers who help in their entertainment is due the fact that the Rest this year has no history to relate. All worked harmoniously for one common end, the good of all, and each party who came to the house expressed the same thought "How homelike it is." It is no common thing for a large family of from 30 to 40 members to live happily together without friction and when we find so rare a condition we naturally look for its cause to the head of the family, the house-mother. Just at the beginning of the season, our former nurse, Miss Ruth Barker, whom we had hoped to have with us again for this summer, was persuaded to change her plans, and become the head of her own household; with characteristic fidelity, however, she brought to us her classmate and friend, Miss Winifred Woods, who has done good work for both mothers and children in her place as nurse of the Mothers' Rest. The work of the House Committee has been very greatly aided by the many friends whose gifts of house furnishings, clothing, food, and toys have been sent in large quantity to the Rest. It has been my purpose to keep an exact list of all those whose contributions have gone through my hands and while it is manifestly impossible to acknowledge so large a number by a personal note, as we would prefer, we do try to publish the name of every donor in our annual report and see that each one receives this printed report in acknowledgment of gifts to the Mothers' Rest.

To all who have aided in any way in the work of the House Committee this summer we wish to extend our earnest thanks.

The house was closed on Sept. 15 having given rest, health and strength to 84 mothers and 89 children during the three months of the summer of 1905.

COMMITTEE ON GUESTS AND TRANSPORTATION.

The season of 1905 was opened on June 12 with a party of 14 women and seven children one mother having been invited who did not come. Mrs. Swanton invited this party through Miss Miller, the missionary of the Walnut Ave. Congregational Church of Roxbury. There were some elderly women in the party, and it was a real pleasure to see how much enjoyment these old ladies got out of their stay in the country. Only one woman was obliged to go home before the close of the two weeks' term.

Mrs. Cady had the second party in charge, which came June 27. The most of them came through the Associated Charities. There were 16 women and 23 children. One woman could not stay the full time on account of her work at home; and one was there only one day, as her child was taken with measles. She was a woman who needed the rest very much, and we were sorry that she had to lose it. No one took the disease; the remainder stayed the full time.

On July 13 Mrs. Bartlett's party arrived, under Mrs. Cady's charge, as Mrs. Bartlett was unable to attend to them. Twelve women and six children came. Three were obliged to go home on account of tonsillitis, two of whom were able to come later in the season.

Two others were unable to stay the full two weeks.

Mrs. Shedd brought out a party July 28. It consisted of 16 women and 22 children. One woman in this party proved from the first a disturbing element; but she went home the morning after she came, and there was a marked difference in the atmosphere as soon as she was gone, and the rest of the women were contented and happy. This party was composed of very poor people, and in many ways was a very trying party. One girl of 17 came who had the care of her sister's baby, and the rest was most beneficial to her.

The next party, coming August 14 and conducted by Mrs. Brown, consisted of 13 women and to children from the N. E. Deaconess Association of Boston. There were some exceptionally nice women in this party, and the most of them stayed the full time. One woman, however, was very homesick and stayed only four days.

The last party came out August 29. Some were from St. Stephen's church, Florence street, some from Associated Charities of Newton and from Mr. Waldron, the city missionary of Boston. Mrs. Hall had charge of this party. There were 14 women and 19 children. This was one of the best parties of the summer. They appeared very grateful. One woman of this party was called home on a very sad errand; her little boy who was away from home being cared for in her absence was drowned.

One woman was talking to another about going home at the end of the week (the party were to leave on Tuesday), and the other woman said: "Don't go. Mrs. Hall said she was coming out to see us Sunday, and she would feel badly if we were not here to see her." Mrs. Hall received one very grateful letter from a woman who had not had any vacation for 18 years. She was very much reduced, and had been unable to sleep for three months. Her friends arranged for the care of her family and she was given a room by herself; and the very first night she slept all night, and while she was at the Rest she gained materially in strength.

There was only one letter received in acknowledgment of their outing, as most of these women were of a class who do little or no writing; but gratitude was expressed by very many while there. One woman, well along in years, who supports herself by sewing in a shop, was very enthusiastic over the good cooking. She was very happy and wanted everyone to know what a good time she was having. She was always ready to help some one to wipe dishes or help Miss Woods or Miss Creelman.

Not as many were entertained this year as last, as we had one less party. It was deemed inexpedient to have the party for the last of September on account of the lack of facilities for heating the house during chilly weather. Eighty-five women and eighty-nine children were entertained. Fifty-one of the women were Protestants, eight were Roman Catholics, and of the remaining twenty-eight the religion was unknown. Two women were colored. Eleven nationalities were represented. There were 14 Americans, 11 Irish, nine from Nova Scotia, seven Scotch, seven English, two German, two Italians, two Swedes, two Syrians, one French and one Armenian.

These women were invited through the Roxbury Presbyterian Church, the Walnut Ave. Congregational Church, Roxbury Mt. Vernon Church, Associated Charities of Boston and Newton, Margaret Fuller House, St. Margaret's Home, Baptists Bethel, Old South Church, University Settlement, Society for Helping Destitute Mothers and Infants, Ruggles Street Church, Denison House, New England Deaconess Association, and a few from the different parts of Newton.

We feel sure that our summer has been a success, and that many a mother will find her burdens easier to bear during the coming year for the bright spot in her memory of her two weeks out in the fresh air, amid green fields, birds and sunshine.

Ellen H. Putnam, Chairman.

The Committee—Mrs. W. H. Swanton, Mrs. C. B. Cady, Mrs. C. F. Bartlett, Mrs. W. E. Shedd, Mrs. E. F. Brown, Mrs. J. B. Hall.

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

The present year, although a short one, carries with it a record of money received and liberality shown on the part of friends interested in this charity far beyond any other year in the existence of the Mothers' Rest.

An increased income, from personal appeals of members of the Finance Committee, has made the possibility of a new building almost assured in the near future.

As was stated, in the report given in the Spring, it was decided to concentrate our first efforts to the raising of the amount essential for the running expenses, before turning our attention to the greater work; the Building Fund. This has been nobly met by regular contributors.

We have previously, had many each year left from the running expenses to add to our fund for building and the present year is no exception to that rule, although great effort has been made to complete the amount needed for the Building Fund, the past few months.

I must repeat, what was plainly stated in my last report, that the Fellowship membership is limited to Newton Centre women, who pay $2.00 a year, or its equivalent, of material or work, and which, in every case where the name is given to us, is acknowledged by a certificate of membership. Where the money is collected in the churches, with no name attached, we cannot credit such gifts, since we do not know the givers. Any person, whether in Newton Centre or out of it, may be an associate member, by the payment of $2.00, or more annually, and a large membership could place this organization on a firm financial basis.

A stronger interest than usual, has manifested itself in our work the past year, and all efforts have met with a hearty response.

The enforced obligation to possess a building of our own, because of failure to retain the present home on Winchester street longer, gave an impetus to attempt to raise money sufficient for that purpose to be added to the magnificent gifts pledged at the beginning of the year for the new building. It seemed best to your committee, to attempt to raise the balance of the money essential, and in May last your Finance Committee planned "A Trip Around the World, Via The Globe and Transportation Co., over the New Overland Route."

A unique entertainment, entirely foreign to New England, although had been successfully given in two of the Middle States.

The suggestion came to us, through Mrs. Edward Ray Speare, who has always been greatly interested in this charity and after its presentation to the committee in May last, the entire membership became enthusiastic and pledged themselves to do all they could. To each of the different committees belongs the praise of the most successful entertainment in every respect, ever given in our village. Too much praise cannot be given to each person connected with the enterprise, for all worked early and late, at home or abroad, at sea or on land, to advance the interest of this project.

Each member of the Finance Committee gave her undivided attention to the special department of the work delegated to her. The many sub-committees held, amount of time, strength and thought put into each, the devotion to the cause, the self-sacrifice on the part of each in detail, can never be given, can never be known, in fact, but the net results of this clever conception will be given to you this afternoon.

Most delightfully did it develop, as conference after conference was held until October seventh dawned brightly and continued a summers day, till the

H. M. Whitney's Methods

"I Freely Admit Giving the Dinners, of employing counsel and making use of the lobby, but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpose which was championed by you in violation of your oath."

—Henry M. Whitney in his reply to George Fred Williams.

EX-GOV. WILLIAM E. RUSSELL, DEMOCRAT,

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In his speech at Lynn, Oct. 31, 1890, Hon. William E. Russell said:

"In my opinion that measure has great merit. It meets the just demand of the community for quicker and better transit. It is a practical solution by able and responsible men of a difficult problem, and it will promote the convenience of the public; but if I had been Governor of this Commonwealth, I would, under the circumstances disclosed by the investigation, have vetoed that bill as quickly as I could have put pen to paper.

"FOR I HOLD THAT IT IS FAR MORE IMPORTANT TO GUARD SACREDLY THE PURITY OF LEGISLATION AND TO REBUKE THE LOBBY THAN THAT ANY MEASURE OF MERIT SHOULD BE HASTENED IN ITS PASSAGE. I HOLD THAT ONE OF THE HIGHEST DUTIES OF THE GOVERNOR OF THE COMMONWEALTH IS TO PROTECT ITS FAIR NAME FROM LEGISLATIVE SCANDAL AND TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE FROM THE IMPROPER CONTROL OF LEGISLATION BY SECRET INFLUENCES."

The Supreme Court OF MASS.

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In a ruling of the supreme court (6—Allen 193) the law was laid down that:

"THE PRACTICE OF PROCURING MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE TO ACT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF WHAT THEY HAVE EATEN AND DRUNK AT HOUSES OF ENTERTAINMENT TENDS TO RENDER THOSE OF THEM WHO YIELD TO SUCH INFLUENCES WHOLLY UNFIT TO ACT IN SUCH CASES.

"They are disqualified from acting fairly toward interested parties, or toward the public.

"THE TENDENCY AND OBJECT OF THESE INFLUENCES ARE TO OBTAIN BY CORRUPTION WHAT IT IS SUPPOSED CANNOT BE OBTAINED FAIRLY."

Will Massachusetts now endorse the man who boldly admits that he employs these methods?

The Republican State Committee, Thomas Talbot, Chairman, William M. Flanders, Secretary.

"Moon took up the wondrous tale," and the "Trip," proved an overwhelming success.

All the facts I have given you is an evidence of a larger proportion of contributors and an increased interest in our work in helping to care for a charity to carry out its very highest mission.

Our needs are perpetual, and this charity has a right to become an every day responsibility. We are entirely dependent upon the loyalty and generosity of the helpers and donors.

Each year we are greatly encouraged by the total amount of the contributions, and also by the increased number of givers.

We invite all who are interested and all who are not, but should be, to contribute smaller or larger amounts to this most worthy charity, annually.

We trust you will count it a privilege to share in this service and we confidently expect you will continue the same relation to the work as you have in the past.

Our sources of income, for the running expenses, have been from membership fees, individuals and from The Womens Club, The Charity Sewing Club, The Friday Morning Club and The Wednesday Club.

Toward the Building Fund from Private Contributions, The Musicals, through the check books and The Automobile Trip.

Mrs. J. H. Sanborn, Chairman.

The Committee—Mrs. E. B. Benton, member ex officio, Mrs. Arthur C. Badger, Mrs. Edward B. Bowen, Mrs. Henry Bailey, Mrs. Adams D. Chadlin, Mrs. Charles A. Clark, Mrs. Sumner Clement, Mrs. Morton E. Cobb, Mrs. Joseph L. Colby, Mrs. Norman H. George, Mrs. Frank C. Hatch, Mrs. Albert L. Harwood, Mrs. Stanton D. Loring, Mrs. Plimpton, Mrs. Frank A. Schirmer, Mrs. Samuel A. Shannon, Mrs. William E. Shedd, Mrs. George S. Smith, Mrs. E. Ray Speare, Mrs. Arthur C. Walworth, Mrs. Harry H. Wyman, Miss Haskell, Mrs. Lewis R. Speare.

BUILDING FUND COMMITTEE.

The Building Fund was started in 1903 when the Baptist church of Newton Centre handed over $815.01 to the newly organized Mothers' Rest Association. The women of the Board of managers then elected were of one sentiment in regard to that money. It must not be touched for the year's expenses. The task was accomplished, the summer's work was paid for, and $184.39 was added to our first sum making an even thousand to deposit as a shikung fund at the end of the first year. With a small balance in the treasury we began our second year's work, sure that the necessary money would come. Again we paid our bills, and had a balance which enabled us to put aside $375.00 toward the Building Fund.

Now you may ask why we were constantly working for a new building.

First—Because we are very poorly housed where we now entertain our summer guests. The house while large and pleasant, is very old and sadly out of repair, except as we patch it up at a constant expense.

Second—The neighborhood is not the best, and houses are crowding close upon us, while even the playground is ours only by the courtesy of a faraway owner.

Third—Our tenure of the property has always been uncertain, and now it has become a certainty that we must move.

Just at this crisis in our affairs a most timely and generous pledge of $5,000 started us in the attempt to raise the necessary money at once. A musicale given on April 11th, 1905, netted us $200. For this we are indebted to a chorus of ladies from the Singers, and other friends who gave their services as soloists. We adopted as a regular plan the distribution of pledge books among our members, which have been used to good account.

On October 7th the Finance Committee gave an Automobile trip around the world which proved a most novel entertainment, as well as most remunerative.

The actual figures are as follows:

Money in Savings bank	$1659.51
Subscriptions from Pledge books	1120.50
Musicals, April 11th	200.00
Interest	18.64
Automobile Trip	1834.39
On Deposit	$4833.04
Unpaid pledges	94.00
Total	$4927.04

As the money from the Automobile Trip has not all been paid in, we can say today that we are somewhat over $5,000, though we cannot show quite that amount in the bank. We make no formal statement of the large pledges which started us on this enterprise until the gentlemen who so generously made them are ready for us to do so. What we report today is the result of the work of your Finance Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

Grace R. Badger, Chairman Building Fund Committee.

Mrs. Harwood the Treasurer of that enterprise will give a full report for the Automobile Trip.

COMMITTEE ON RELIGIOUS SERVICE.

During the summer of 1905, beginning June 18th, closing Sept. 10th, services have been held at the Mothers' Rest every Sabbath afternoon with but one exception, when the Rest was closed between the transportation of parties.

Five of the services were conducted by the pastors of the Newton Centre churches, the others were in charge of the Rev. George Hovey, D. D., Rev. W. H. Cobb, D. D., Mrs. W. B. Parshly of Yokohama, Japan, Mr. Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook and Mr. Frank Day.

The mothers who come to our Rest all appreciate music, this they show by heartily joining in the hymns, and by their earnest, happy expression while listening to either instrumental or vocal solos, and our Sunday afternoons have been made much more enjoyable by the hearty cooperation of those in our community who have so gladly helped with the singing and playing.

May God bless the words of his messengers, spoken at the Mothers' Rest, May they comfort and strengthen, in the midst of weariness, and discouragement, all those who heard them.

Mary Elizabeth Polhemus, Chairman.

The Committee—Mrs. William Rice,

VISITING COMMITTEE.

William Cullen Bryant has told us
That to him who in the love of nature holds

Communion with her visible forms, she speaks

A various language: In her gayer hours
She has a voice of gladness and a smile
And eloquence of beauty, and she glides
Into his darker musings with a mild
And healing sympathy, that steals away
Their sharpness, ere he is aware."

The ladies interested in the Committee on Visitation, in the Mothers Rest have assisted many tired mothers and children from June to September to enjoy nature in all her beauty in the little country home on Winchester street.

The time of entertaining these guests was divided into periods of two weeks, and each week two ladies visited the "home" to talk with the mothers. All found the mothers most easily reached through the little ones, and even those most reserved would talk in a heart to heart way. The ladies who visited the rest felt repaid for the effort made to make the guests happy. All tell stories of contentment and music and recitations made many an afternoon or morning pass very quickly.

This year an added interest has been shown by the young ladies. They, too have visited the "rest" in periods of two weeks. Many were kindergarten teachers and taught the little ones to make pies and cakes out of sand, to swing, to learn about the pretty flowers around them.

Some took the children to drive and the intense interest they took in all nature and animals showed the little minds only too eager to "Go forth under the open sky and list, to nature's teachings." The work of the young ladies in assisting the mothers to entertain the children has not only helped the mothers, but has been a source of great enjoyment to them and in the words of the King we can say "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

SECRETARY'S ANNUAL REPORT.

(Year ending October 10th, 1905.)
The last annual meeting of the Mothers' Rest Association was held in the vestry of the First Church, on March 3rd, at which time the following amendments, having been duly presented at the October meeting, were voted upon and carried:

Article VII.

1st. The Ass'n shall hold at least two meetings in the year, upon the 3rd Thursdays of May and October, or at such other time as the Board may determine.
The October meeting shall be known as the Annual meeting for the hearing of reports and election of officers.

2nd. By Law I. Any person not eligible to regular membership may become an associate member by the annual payment of $2.00 or more.

Owing to this material change in the Constitution, the year just past has been a short one of but 7 months, and but one regular meeting has been held, the Mass meeting of May 18th, held in the vestry of the Methodist church, at which time, having previously received generous gifts from Mr. Schirmer and others, it was possible to bring before the Association, the idea of having a new Home. Much enthusiasm was felt, and no effort has been spared throughout the year to promote this plan.

In order that the money for the building fund might not in any way conflict with that for the running expenses, a separate account was opened with the Trust Co. and a cheque book system adopted for collecting pledges.

On the recommendation of the Finance Committee which was put in the form of a motion and voted upon, the annual printed report will hereafter be sent out April 1st, together with other printed matter, thereby circulating them just prior to the beginning of the Summer work.

During the year the Board have held 14 meetings, with an average attendance of 8. These meetings, while business like, have really been times of earnest consideration for the welfare of the Home and its guests, and whereas perhaps few votes have been carried, much has been accomplished that cannot be recorded.

According to By-Law I as referred to above, an associate membership was inaugurated, and by the persistent efforts of the Finance Committee and others of the Association the list now numbers 78. During the year 51 have been added to the active members, making a total of 182 active, 78 associate and 1 honorary, or 261 in all.

A very pleasant reception was held at the "Rest" on June 10th, at which time many friends were entertained and an opportunity given to view the house.

The House Committee had left nothing undone, and a very homelike atmosphere must have been felt, when, 2 days later, the first party arrived. It may be of interest to note the different nationalities represented among the guests, namely American, Irish, Nova Scotia, Scottish, English, German, Italian, Swede, Syrian, French and Armenian.

The Home closed September 12th, having entertained 84 mothers and 89 children.

The Association were most fortunate in having such a competent matron as Miss Creelman, for she was a veritable mother to them all, and under her wise guidance, peace and harmony prevailed.

Together with the valuable services of the nurse, Miss Wools, the informal calls of the ladies, the faithful work of the Relief Committee in preparing garments for distribution, we feel justified in saying that we have endeavored to insure the comfort and happiness of those to whom this vacation was an oasis in a desert.

The Sunday services have been delightful and helpful, and to the clergy of the village who have so freely given of their time, and to all who have assisted, our thanks are gratefully offered.

A great debt of gratitude we sincerely owe the retiring chairman of the Finance Committee, Mrs. Sanborn, who for 3 years has so faithfully labored in the interest of the Association, and who with her committee has helped to make possible so much of the success attained.

The year now past has marked a new era in the life of the Association, for at no time has such general interest manifested itself, not only in the splendid work of the committees, but throughout the entire community, and with this record, we have no fear in the larger possibilities opening before us.

Respectfully submitted,

Mary L. Fowle,

Secretary.

At the Churches

The helper's division of the junior young people's society of Eliot church will meet Thursday afternoon in the parlors. The topic will be, "Our Red Brothers and Sisters."

The Missionary Committee will be in charge of the prayer meeting of the young people's society at the Immanuel Baptist church next Sunday evening.
The topic will be, "The Foreign Mission Work of our Denomination."

A well attended meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held in the parlors of the Newton Centre Methodist church last Tuesday afternoon. A number of important business matters were brought up for consideration.

The first meeting of the Young Peoples' League was held in the New Church parlors, Newtonville, Sunday evening. A new president and a new chairman of the Cheerful Letter Committee were elected and several important business matters were considered.

At the West Newton Unitarian church
Thursday afternoon the annual representation of the Ladies Aid Society and the Women's Alliance was held from 4 to 5.30.

At Channing church last Sunday the Channing Unit Club discussed, "The Exclusion of Unitarians from the National Federation" and the Class in history of the world's religion listened to an address by the pastor on, "The Religion of Babylonia and Assyria."

At a recent meeting of the Auburn-dale Congregational church a committee was appointed consisting of Waldo
G. Cole, Charles H. Johnson and W.
G. S. Chamberlain to present to the church a list of twelve names from which the church shall choose four to act with a committee of the society to select a pastor.

The book of Job is being studied at the Friday evening prayer meetings at the Newtonville Methodist church.

Rev. John Goddard is conducting an adult class in the Sunday school connected with the New Church in Newtonville. The doctrines of the faith will be studied and the book used is, "The New Jerusalem and its Heavenly Doctrine."

Miss Kendrick, instructor of Bible at Wellesley College is to give one of her instructive studies later before the Bible History class of the Newtonville Methodist church. The date will be announced later.

Rev. P. W. Rust, pastor of the church at Arlington Heights, occupied the pulpit at the Methodist church last Sunday.

The Ladies' Social Circle held an important business meeting at the Newton Methodist church Wednesday afternoon. Supper was served at 6.30 and was followed by an entertainment under the direction of Miss Elsa Leonard.

Arrangements are being rapidly perfected for the Christmas Bazaar to be held in December at the Newtonville Methodist church. The various tables and those having charge are as follows:
Domestic, Madam Rich and Directresses; fancy, Mrs. Stewart; food and preserve, Mrs. Terrell and Madam Leonard; children's, Mrs. Davidson; candy, Miss Wetherell; ice cream, Miss Sylvester; country store, Mr. Stewart; lemonade, Miss Alona Wetherbee.

The gift of an up to date lantern for stereopticon views is greatly needed for use in the Sunday school of St.
John's church, Newtonville, during the study of the Old Testament. Arrangements are being made to darken the church so that the last Sunday of every month the stories taken up during the previous weeks can be illustrated by the lantern slides and made more vital and real.

The ladies of the Immanuel Baptist church will give a supper or an entertainment with light refreshments on the second Wednesday of each month. November, supper, Mrs. Short, chairman; December, entertainment, Mrs. Durgan, chairman; January, supper, Mrs. March, chairman; February, entertainment,
Mrs. Ingraham; March, supper, Mrs.
Hayden.

The Woman's Association met at Eliot church Tuesday afternoon. It was a foreign missionary meeting and the topic was, "Modern Christian Missions in Japan."

At St. John's Episcopal church, Newtonville, the coming year, the rector, Rev. Richard T. Loring, will have charge of the Bible class for young men.
The subject to be considered will be,
"The Ten Commandments."

The subject for the devotional meeting at Central church, Newtonville, this evening in the series on, "Secrets and Sources of Power," will be "Love."

Rev. Dr. Samuel W. Dike will be the leader of the prayer meeting at the Auburndale Congregational church this evening. The theme will be,
"Prophecy in the work of the church Today."

The first in a series of afternoon union meetings of the Woman's Missionary Society and the Young Woman's Mission Club was held in the parlors of the Immanuel Baptist church Wednesday afternoon. The speakers were Miss Rice, late of Vassar, and Mrs.
Safford.

Street Railway Notes

The Newton & Boston Street Railway Company has equipped one of its cars with a new hand grip, which is now on trial, and judging from the favorable comments heard, the new grip has come to stay.

In place of the old fashioned strap which is awkward to get hold of and uncomfortable to the hand, the new grip is a clean, neat appearing wooden handle, which does not cramp the fingers or oil the hand. It is so made that it can be attached to the old straps or put in place of them. On the Newton car the grips are attached to the old ones by means of rivets.

This new holder is as simple as it is effective, being composed entirely of cable cord and wood, and it adds very materially to the beauty of the interior of the car. One passenger on the car who was unable to secure a seat, remarked that she didn't mind standing so much since she had something clean and comfortable to take hold of. It is reminded that the company are considering the equipment of all their cars with this new grip and it is safe to assert that its patrons will be pleased by such a move.

Literary Notes.

In looking over your magazine I was surprised to find how little mention is made of Newfoundland, with almost unlimited game, both fish and fowl, deer and bear, for those that go far enough. And scenery so beautiful that parts of it vie with famed Killarney. The rugged grandeur of Peter Harbord, or the beautiful bay of Outer Cove, and the rock hills near Logy Bay. I may be prejudiced, but I have not seen anything pictured to come near them. Oh, Newfoundland, with your beautiful bays and shining creeks, wherein salmon and that pet of good anglers, speckled trout, with its firm, pink flesh, abound. I often wonder that more lovers of fine sport don't visit you. Top-sail is an ideal place to spend a summer; its beautiful scenery, the old-fashioned hospitality of its people leave nothing to be desired. And then, in September, when the partridge or ptarmigan comes in, what sport to go up to Pettigrew's and out to Toad's Cove, when the ship, a point out on the barrens, usually finishes the trip. Then the lovely ride back amidst such scenes as can only be found among people that both fish and farm for a living.—Bessie Bogan Cowman in Recreation for October.

The November McClure's begins a new volume with the opening chapters of two great series and a big Kipling story, which promise the magazine's continuance as torch-bearer in public affairs and the leader of excellence in present day literature. In this number Carl Schurz begins his "Reminiscences" the life story of a patriot-soldier-statesman-author, a fighting idealist who never compromised with his conscience. Ray Stannard Baker, with "The Railroad Rate," opens his series of articles on the greatest national perplexity, the outcome of more than a year's digging into the most difficult subject American voters have ever had to master. Last of the "articles" in November is the second half of Charles F. Lummis's breezy story "Pioneer Transportation in America," the epic of the heroic age of travel which waited till now for a writer. Kipling's most remarkable story is "With the Night Mail," in which he projects his wonderful imagination into the twenty-first century and takes a thrilling air-ship flight from London to Quebec. He has invented a new world of mechanics and found strange highways in the sky, which are pictured in color by Reuter Dahl. In passing he glimpses a transformed earth so vividly real that it is hard to wake up to the fact that Utopia does not exist. Another story in this number that stands strongly out is the "Last Love Feast," a tale of the French Commune which focuses in a terrible, brief, dramatic moment every human passion. It is splendidly illustrated by Castaigne. Fitly following this piece of fiction is "The Lottery of Death," a true story of the Civil War's most appalling episode. In sharp contrast to all this stress of emotion is "An Eye for an Eye," a dainty little tale of hot blood and young hearts told in the sweet patois of the Louisiana "Cajun." There are besides stories by Samuel Hopkins Adams, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, Jean Webster and others.

Law Off on Moose October 15

Good Sport Promised This Season

October 15th the law goes off on Moose. The outlook this year for big hunting in the Maine woods is better than ever before. While some dissatisfaction is found with the late season for moose hunting, still the weather conditions this fall are such to satisfy everybody, for the month of October this year, with its beautiful Indian Summer weather, will prove an ideal month in the Maine woods for the sportsman who desires to couple with his hunting sport enjoyment of all Nature offers to the vacationist in the fall of the year. Mr. Katahdin, famous as a feeding ground for moose, is especially prolific this season, as numbers of these animals have already been seen by the early hunters. Down in Aroostook County, moose are very plentiful, and in Washington County, in fact throughout all of northern Maine, these animals have been appearing lately in large numbers. The supply of deer already shipped from the various railroad centres proves that Maine's record this year, in this species of game, will be a dandy; and the hunters who are in search of good bird shooting and small game report everything auspicious. The camps and hotels which care for the sportsmen have made preparation for entertaining the hundreds of hunters who yearly assemble in the Pine Tree State, and this business has grown to such proportions that the person who desires good hunting, and at the same time likes to take life easy, will find a suitable camp or hotel where he has nothing to worry about, not even his game. Registered guides, guns, ammunition, clothing, and all that sportsmen require, are furnished at some camps and hotels. It's up to you now to pick out your section. The Boston & Maine is ready to take good care of one or one thousand who desire to visit the Maine or New Brunswick hunting territories, and in order to facilitate your selection they have published a beautiful illustrated booklet which describes the gaming section of Northern New England and New Brunswick in detail. The title of this booklet is "Fishing and Hunting," and it will be mailed by the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, to any address upon receipt of two cents in stamps.

No Free Transfers

The following order of the Board of Railroad Commissioners was issued last Friday.

Petition of the Newton and Boston Street Railway Company for extension of time for withdrawal of free transfers in Newton.

"A little more than a year ago the board, after extended public hearings and able discussion by counsel, and a careful examination of the affairs of the company, decided to sanction the temporary withdrawal of certain free transfers on the Newton and Boston Street Railway in the city of Newton.

"Dealing only with investment in actual railway property and legitimate capitalization, and assuming that common ownership of stock and community of interest make the Newton and Boston line practically a part of the Newton system of railways, we are satisfied that the history of the past year fairly demands that the company continue the withdrawal of these transfers for a further period, to end on the first day of January, 1907. This means another year of experiment, with sufficient additional time to enable all who may be interested to examine the returns of the company for that year before the matter is again considered.

"The board fully realizes the desirability of a five cent fare throughout the city of Newton, in force upon all the connecting lines of railway. We believe that the only way to permanently secure this is to approve every reasonable effort on the part of the management to put this company upon a prosperous footing. A first step in the gradual reissue of transfers has been taken during the past year, after consultation between the company, the city government and this board. Further steps in the same direction are to be expected as soon as conditions will permit. In our opinion the continuance of this experimental period will promote the public interests and eventually lead to a perfected system of freetransfers which will meet the convenience of the travelling public without exhausting the resources of the company."

Death of Mrs. Coleman

Mrs. Margaret Coleman widow of James Coleman, and a resident of Newton for half a century passed away at her home on Cherry street last Saturday, after a somewhat protracted illness, aged 71 years. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. John Hurley of Cohasset, Miss Josie and Miss Annie Coleman who reside at home, and one son Mr. Maurice B. Coleman the Newton inspector of plumbing. High mass of Requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father O'Toole at St. Bernard's church Monday at 9 and Rev. Father Radican of the Working Boy's Home was in the chancel during the service. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and many floral tributes. At the conclusion of the Mass the hymn "Cross and Crown" was most beautifully rendered by Miss Minnie Barry. The bearers were Messrs Harry D. McBride, John P. Connors, Richard B. Conroy, Thomas J. Green, Daniel Reardon and John W. Gaw. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham, where the committal service was read by Rev. Father Radican.

A new feature at the Association this year will be a series of entertainments held on Saturday evenings. Next Saturday evening will be given over to the entertainment arranged by the Women's Auxiliary. On Nov. 4th George E. Garretson will give his unique entertainment. His specialties are "musical coins," "juggling" and Hand Bells. This entertainment is for members and their friends.

Mr. Charles A. Haskell will be the speaker at the younger men's meeting next Sunday at 3 p. m. Boys over 14 invited.

The Basket Ball season will begin Nov. 15th. The team will be picked this week and it is now certain that two strong teams will represent the Association.

The Seven Sale on Saturday evening should attract large numbers to the building. A fine entertainment will be given in the evening. Men and women are invited.

The driver of the Newton engine is in such good training now owing to the frequent runs to Watertown that he can make the trip in an even three minutes. There has been considerable comment in the square over the quick service which our sister city is rendering us, and one of the faithful who is ever ready with helpful suggestions proposed that we give up our fire equipment and depend upon Newton for our protection. Not just yet, young man. We'll wait till we get through with the fire-bug anyway.—Watertown Enterprise.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Auburndale Congregational Society was held in the church parlors last Tuesday night. Mr. William A. Knowlton was the Moderator and Mr. William H. Blood was clerk. Mr. Charles E. Sweet was re-elected treasurer, and Messrs Arthur C. Farley, David F. Parker and George M. Fiske as members of the Standing Committee.

The usual appropriations were made for the year and this committee appointed to act with the church committee in the matter of selecting a new pastor—Messrs George D. Harvey, F. E. Davidson and A. L. Goodrich. The church committee already appointed for that purpose consists of Mrs. C. M. Lamson and Arthur C. Farley with two vacancies.

GEO. FRED WILLIAMS CHARGES HENRY M. WHITNEY WITH POLITICAL CORRUPTION

Democratic Leader Declares Democratic Candidate for Lieut.-Gov. Unworthy the Suffrage of Democratic Voters

MR. WILLIAMS QUOTES THE SUPREME COURT ON MR. WHITNEY'S PUBLIC RECORD.

THE LETTER IS AS FOLLOWS:

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have addressed you a letter protesting against the nomination of Henry M. Whitney for the office of Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Whitney has answered in a letter to me personally. I prefer still to address myself to my party and the public, to whom alone is my responsibility.

I have clung to my party amid many disappointments, and do not wish to see it committed with justifiable cause. Mr. Josiah Quincy declares that Mr. Whitney was nominated with the understanding that I would hold the nomination. Inasmuch as I had not made my views in the matter known to any one, it is clear that Mr. Quincy and his associates deliberately made the issue I now raise.

If our party, under false leadership, proposes to meet the public sentiment against political corruption by nominating for public office the foremost representative of such corruption, it deserves to lose honest men's support. My desire is to save our party from such leadership. The case seems not yet hopeless.

I charged Mr. Whitney with procuring the passage of an Elevated Railway charter by employing an enormous lobby, by securing the silence or assistance of the leading politicians with legal retainers, by influencing the nominations and elections of members of the legislature, by attempting to influence the appointment of the Street Railway committee, by expending from $33,000 to $51,000 and by buying off competitors for a charter.

Mr. Whitney denies none of these charges, and in his answer to me in the West End investigation. The above charges constitute corruption of the legislature as defined by the Courts.

I desire now to add that when a man employs agents to influence legislation, who are known, as some of his employees were, to be unprincipled and wicked men, and places in their hands large sums of money, that man makes himself responsible for the bribery of legislators, which inevitably follows. The whole history of legislative corruption is covered by the employment of wicked tools by responsible men.

At maintain that our legislatures will be scandalized as long as such methods are permitted, and that to elect such men to public office is to place the public indecent upon all the corruption which their employment of bad men and unlawful methods involves.

Mr. Whitney's answers to my charges are as follows: That,

First, my opposition to his measure was demagogical.

Second, I sought to give another party the right to build an elevated road.

Third, I tried to deprive the public of the blessings of his measure.

Fourth, he was justified in giving dinners to legislators and lobbying for their votes.

I fully realize that Mr. Whitney is attempting to turn public attention from his own misdeeds by questioning my motives in attacking him in the legislature. I am not a candidate for office and my motives in 1899 are unimportant, but I choose none the less to have the truth known.

To take the answers seriatim, Mr. Whitney says,

First, he invited me to his office that he might explain his plans, and that "When I got your reply, I knew that I had to deal with a first-class demagogue."

The best answer to this statement is to publish the letter, and I ask the public judgment whether there is anything "demagogical" in it. Here it is:

"Dear Sir:—The fact that I have been unable until now to answer your courteous note of the 12th inst. is an answer to your question. I attend to legislative duties all day and crowd my law business into the hours between 12 and 1 and after the session, and in the evening."

"I cannot give any time to an inspection of the work of the West End Street Railway Company, neither would it be perfect work to have the public know what I am doing in the granting of corporation charters."

This letter seems to me perfectly respectable and consistent with my duty as a legislator.

Two months before this time, the West End bill had been referred to the committee on Street Railways. "With instructions to hear the parties and report."

There were others who voted against this bill, such as William D. Sobier, shall direct." I thought then that Mr. Whitney's proper place was before the committee and not at his office privately soliciting legislators, but I refrained from this criticism.

Such methods had clearly been condemned by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, which after stating that the committee hearings give to adverse parties the opportunity "to meet face to face," uses these words "Common fairness requires that neither party shall be permitted to have secret consultations and exercise secret influences that are kept from the knowledge of the other party."

If I was a demagogue to refuse to meet Mr. Whitney in private, I have the excellent company of Mr. Justice Chapman, one of the foremost men who ever occupied our bench.

But indeed this cry of "demagogue" is the familiar resort of guilty men against their accusers. Tweed branded Mr. Tilden as a demagogue, the Standard Oil Company found the same fault in Henry D. Lloyd, when he published his "The whole lobby" and I doubt not Mr. McCall, of the New York Life, and Mr. McCurdy, of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, regard Mr. Hughes as the same light.

If to be a demagogue is to seek one's reward for popular service in the appropriation of one's fellow-citizens, I must plead guilty.

Mr. Whitney accuses me of mercenary motives and thinks I am actuated by desire for notoriety. Yes, I was: namely, the notoriety of being the only man of several hundred who was willing to denounce Mr. Whitney's methods, to be followed by his spies, to pursue a righteous cause with no reward in sight, except the gratitude of a people, which stood defenseless against the unrighteous methods of Mr. Whitney in grabbing public rights for purposes of private gain.

Second, Mr. Whitney charges that I sought to give another party the right to build an elevated railway. His whole letter is filled with false statements indicating that I had other motives than the public good in my opposition to his bill. I was interested in no railway scheme whatever. The plain answer to this statement is, that I voted against every elevated railroad bill which came up for consideration. I did this because I did not consider the public interests to be properly guarded, and this was my only objection to Mr. Whitney's bill.

Mr. Whitney's attempts to make me appear as the advocate of a competing scheme are absolutely baseless. How can I answer such unfounded charges except by denial and by reference to the records of the legislature?

It is also not true that I advocated competition among street railways. I merely opposed a monopoly without proper safeguards of the people's rights.

Third, Mr. Whitney complained that I tried to deprive the public of the blessings of his measure. Here Mr. Whitney is guilty of the most unpardonable misstatements.

He says first, that I tried to siphon from the pockets of "the poor" an additional five cents every time they travelled over the road. This statement is absolutely false. On the contrary, I tried to clear up the dubious language of the West End Bill, in which free transfers were promised.

What makes this assertion of Mr. Whitney a monstrous piece of audacity is the fact that three that time year after year five cents every time they travelled over the road. This statement is absolutely false. On the contrary, I tried to clear up the dubious language of the West End Bill, in which free transfers were promised.

Fourth, I now come to Mr. Whitney's justification of his lobbying methods, the worst which blot the annals of our Commonwealth. He says, "I freely admit giving the dinners, of employing a lobby, and making use of the lobby; but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpose, which was championed by you in violation of your oath." I leave the public to judge whether this may be an honest error or must be willful misstatement. Mr. Whitney employed his first lobbyist in July, before I was nominated or ever considered for the legislature; he paid this lobbyist $5000 before I was sworn in as a member. Mr. Whitney bought out the Ames-Shepard opposition before I was elected to the legislature. His whole lobby was a nefarious business before I knew there was a West End bill. He gave his dinners to the legislators before I had raised my voice in the legislature against his bill. How wanton his conduct! I now assert that all his sins were prompted by my opposition.

What I championed "in violation of my oath" I know not, unless it was my sworn duty to stand by voiceless while he corrupted my associates.

Mr. Whitney says that for 15 years he has waited and longed to bring before the public the real facts; this is indeed a long time to wait for the privilege of confessing his own guilt.

He justifies his employment of the lobby in express terms. He justifies his acts, as he has charged upon me, by saying what the Supreme Court of Massachusetts says of this: "The business of 'lobby members' is not to go fairly and openly before the committees—but to go secretly to the members and to lobby with statements and arguments that the other side cannot openly meet, however erroneous they may be; and to bring ill-gotten influences to bear upon them."

Mr. Whitney justifies his resort to political leaders: the Supreme Court says: "If the 'lobby member' is selected because of his political or personal influence, it is a gross wrong." Mr. Whitney justifies the buying out of competing petitioners. The Supreme Court says: "If his business is to unite various interests by means of projects that are called 'log-rolling,' it is still wrong."

Mr. Whitney justifies his private dining and winning of legislators: the following language of our Supreme Court I commend not only to him, but to the Boston editor who writes: "Is hospitality a crime?"

The Supreme Court says: "The practice of procuring members of the legislature to act under the influence of what they have eaten and drunk at houses of entertainment tends to render those of them who yield to such influences wholly unfit to act in such cases. They are disqualified from acting fairly towards interested parties or towards the public, and the tendency and object of these influences are to obtain by corruption what it is supposed cannot be obtained fairly."

All these quotations from the Supreme Court may be found on page 480 of the sixth volume of Allen's reports.

In these matters I leave Mr. Whitney to reckon with our highest judicial tribunal and with the conscience of an honest people. If Mr. Whitney admitted his error and regretted it I should be the first to commend him, but it is commonly known that his pipe line bill was procured by the same unlawful methods. A vote for him, therefore, is a vote to confirm his repeated defiance of political honesty and legislative purity.

My exposure of legislative corruption is the proudest effort of my public life, and I am glad to have reviewed it here, even though I know Mr. Whitney's purpose to be to escape punishment at the bar of public opinion, by diverting attention from himself to the false charges which he desperately scatters through his letter.

I stand to-day as I stood then, to expose and denounce the methods of corruption, not am I to be deterred because I shall soil my hands upon my opponent.

At the meeting of the Twentieth Century Club in Boston last Saturday afternoon, Representative Robert Luce spoke upon the proposed merger of steam railroads and electric railways, saying in part:

The Massachusetts plan has been to encourage state-regulated monopoly when development has been virtually completed, and not until then. The opponents of the merger urge that in every field of public service there should be free competition up to the point where the public need is met.

The development of electric transportation is far from complete, and only in the field of passenger traffic in urban districts competition is no longer desirable.

Three great opportunities remain. Passenger traffic at low speed and low fares between urban centers has been in part accomplished by some roads, but much remains to be done.

Passenger traffic at high rates of speed between large cities has not even begun. In Germany, two years ago, a speed of from 80 to 125 miles an hour was shown to be practicable and safe, while now two great electric companies propose a line from Berlin to Hamburg, 155 miles, with trains every two hours or oftener at speeds from 80 to 125 miles an hour, according to the capital invested. Such speeds would reduce the time between Boston and New York to 2 hours 40 minutes, or 1 hour 40 minutes. The result could not be achieved on any steam line between Boston and New York, because of the curves. With the lighter electric trains, however, heavier grades are possible, and so straighter lines.

PARCEL AND LIGHT FREIGHT.

Parcel and light freight transport between urban and rural districts, already a success in the west, is almost unknown in New England. It will revolutionize the delivery of country produce and perishable foods; supply farmers at large saving of time, and supplant express with quicker and cheaper delivery of goods to suburbs. In Manchester, Eng., the railway service delivers parcels at not over 15-minute intervals to immediate suburbs, at 4 cents up to 14 pounds and by gradual scale 12 cents for 112 pounds, while to the farther suburbs the rate is from 6 to 16 cents for the same weights.

It is submitted that so far as the two services, electric and steam, have little in common, these undeveloped or partly developed fields will the sooner be developed to the public good by completing groups of ambitious, progressive, energetic promoters and capitalists than by the conservative, cautious, contented owners of steam railroad properties. While the state may not prohibit a steam railroad man from going into electric railroading, it may at any rate discreetly say that he shall not have any preferment, and that he shall abandon one service if he proposes to take up another.

So far as the two services come in contact the older, costlier and poorer has no claim to protection, but must yield to the march of invention and enterprise. The steam roads today fight the development of electric roads at every turn because the newer and cheaper and more flexible service threatens the earnings of their fixed capital. Put the new service within their reach and they will retard its development for many years.

They have proved this in such things as smoke-consuming devices, car-heating, ventilating and lighting methods, automatic couplers and other matters.

POSTHUME MONOPOLY.

The enormous development of electric roads has been accomplished without any contributions of judgment, knowledge, experience and financial strength from the men owning and controlling steam lines.

The feeding functions of electric roads to steam lines is of small consequence. Already the electric roads of the state carry four times as many passengers as the steam roads. Ten years from now the electric travel wholly independent of steam travel will be very much greater still.

The steam roads have not materially lowered fares for years, and notwithstanding the cry of ruinous competition, their average dividend rate last year was the highest since 1872.

With the past in mind, it seems doubtful if monopolization of the transportation of Massachusetts would conduce to an aggregate or average of lower passenger fares, lower freight rates quicker transit for goods and passengers, more personal comfort in travel, cheaper food, better housing, or higher civilization. Therefore, while the ultimate monopoly is probable, it should be the duty of the legislature to postpone and delay that monopoly in every way possible at least until the development period of electric railroading has been completed.

THE TRANSFER EVIL.

It was apparent even a year ago that, without doubt, many of the roads of the state were suffering because of their over-generous system of free transfers. Even now the Boston & Northern is before the railroad commission seeking the right to limit the issue of these transfers. That certain municipalities are getting much more for their money than they ought, more than any company managed on business principles can afford to give, is obvious. The railroad commissioners themselves are undoubtedly impressed with this fact, and Chairman Jackson at a recent hearing before the board intimated that the rate given Malden, for example, was "extraordinary."

There must be increases of fares in different places or there is going to be financial trouble somewhere. No matter how the situation came to exist, whether through the fault of the companies in establishing at the beginning too loose a rate and too generous a transfer system, or not, the situation does as a matter of fact exist and this is what the railroad commissioners will have to deal with. In many instances the demand for increase of fares is a natural one on the part of the company. The increased cost of construction, of maintenance and operation ought to be readily understood. The man who builds a house understands it. The ordinary householder understands, and sadly comments on the rise in prices over a few years ago. There is nothing mystical about a corporation. There are no little fairies that suddenly drop on the desired spot their necessary rails, the heavy double-trucks, the coal. Companies must keep up their equipment. Sufficient account must be taken of maintenance and depreciation. If only those roads that have been toys in the hands of promoters now found themselves in something of "a hole" there would be little public sympathy. But the men, or most of them, who are facing quasi-crisis are among the ablest, and incidentally, most honest railway managers in the state: men who have put their own energy and brains and money into the enterprises, and who are anxious only for what the law allows them—a fair return on their investment and reasonable recompense for energy expended.

But the general discussion of the fare question has brought out just what the 5-cent fare means and what is accomplished through and by it. With electricity as the motive power citizens are transported along miles of streets, highways, through suburbs and on elevated structures. The suburbs are speedily reached. Outlying places are brought in close contact with the big cities, and development follows directly. The passenger often comments on the speed, rarely on the cost of this high-class electrical equipment. The consolidations of street railways have created large centres. These consolidations were at first looked at askance. But before those consolidations it took from two to five fares now reached by a single fare of five cents. The congestion of the large cities has been relieved, communities have been brought almost together and the prosperity of the places touched has, of course, increased.

CONSTANT CLAMOR FOR REDUCTION.

It has cost money, lots of it. And even though the increased travel has been enormous, the outlay has been tremendous. Before investors have begun in many places, to get anything like a fair return on their investments and in the face of increased cost of materials and equipment, especially in Massachusetts and New England, the cry of "further reduce" fares is raised. Touching this question the Boston Globe editorially suggested a few days ago:

"The public never objects to a lowering of prices for anything it uses, but it demands above everything else the best accommodations and a superior service."

"Debate on this topic should be confined oftener to the cost of expenses and what is a reasonable profit on the investment. It is purely a business question."

"The present discussion is the outgrowth of the controversy over the railway problem in Chicago and other western cities. A writer in the Review of Reviews, citing the experience of Cleveland, says:

"Tests made by the Cleveland electric railway company in January and February, 1905, showed an actual stimulation of traffic of but 1 per cent. during the three-cent-zone test, and but 1.38 per cent. during the four-cent test. On the other hand, there was a loss in gross earnings of about $764 per day with the three-cent fare in effect 13 hours per day, while the decrease in earnings during the four-cent test averaged about $1375 per day. Applying these results to the whole system, the three-cent fare would cause the company a loss of over $1,000,000 per year if it were in effect 24 hours per day."

"A reasonable deduction to make from such tests as these is that if municipalities in the future become the owners of electric systems they should not rashly believe at the outset they can serve their customers satisfactorily with too cheap a system."

The cost of cars, rails, etc., is double what it was a few years ago, and these expenses, with the general cost of operation, has left the magazine writers in a maze of figures, the real purport of which they evidently do not fully know.

But, as suggested above, the discussion can do no harm. The more open and honest discussion there is, the more keenly will the public appreciate what they are getting, what it costs to give it to them, the necessity of strict public supervision and control and the absolute danger of municipal ownership.—Practical Politics.

Resolutions

At a recent meeting of the Trustees of the Newton Savings Bank the following action was taken regarding the death of the late Vice-Treasurer of the Bank.

RESOLVED: That this Board of Trustees recognizes that in the death of Alden A. Howe the Newton Savings Bank has lost a faithful servant, a man of broad practical experience and useful originality. As a courteous and dignified official his presence at the Bank will be sadly missed by the Bank and its depositors.

RESOLVED: That this expression be inscribed on the Bank records and a copy be sent to the family of Mr. Howe.
